LONDON CONFEREES APPROVE PROPOSED 12-MILE DRY LIMIT

Experts' Committee Agrees in Principle to Extension of Area for Search for Liquor.

PREMIERS' CONSENT LIKELY

State Department Has Received No Word, but Is Hopeful of Success.

CANFIELD FORESEES AID

State Prohibition Director Says Agreement Would Allow More Effective Patrol of Coast.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(Associated Press).—The fact that the expert committee of the Imperial Conference had agreed in principle to accept the proposal made some time ago by Secretary Hughes that vessels in American waters might be searched up to a twelve-mile limit for contraband liquor became known today. It was also ascertained that the recommendation of the committee was likely to be approved by the plenary conference of the Premiers next week.

The well kept secrets of the long discussions in the imperial conference on foreign affairs gradually are seeing light. Those that have become known prove that the conference bids fair to render decisions of importance with regard to the empire's foreign relations, and that they will revolve to a large extent around the future relations between England and America.

Recalling the firmness with which Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, not so long ago announced in Parliament the impossibility of sanctioning any change on the question of the three-mile limit, it had been thought an impossibility to convert Lord Curzon to the point of view of Secretary Hughes. But the Foreign Secretary was Chairman of the expert committee of the imperial conference and himself agreed in principle to the Hughes proposal.

The influence of striking figures in the conference, like Premier Smuts of South Africa and Premier Bruce of Australia, is seen to have been very considerable, though it is impossible to say how far it has been a moving principle in the British Government's policy in regard to the proposed reparations conference and the efforts to meet the American Government's views in the matter of liquor smuggling.

Though the Government's stand on the three-mile question has been generally approved by the country, there are many persons who are said to have failed to see why it should be an iron bound principle. In some sections of the press strong sympathy was expressed with the American demand for measures to restrain any British participation in liquor smuggling.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Neither the State Department nor the British Embassy had confirmation tonight of the reported acceptance in principle by Great Britain of Secretary Hughes's proposal that vessels be searched for liquor within twelve miles of the American shore.

If the expert committee of the Imperial Conference, as stated in the London dispatches, has drawn up plans which will meet the essential points of the American proposal, no official notification has been received in Washington.

State Department officials, however, were much gratified at the reports and expressed the hope that they would be officially confirmed. It was pointed out that a favorable report by the committee of experts did not necessarily mean the British Government was ready to accept the Hughes proposal for a reciprocal treaty to permit foreign vessels to bring liquor into American ports in return for the privilege of searching ships for liquor up to a distance of twelve miles from shore, but a favorable recommendation from the committee of experts undoubtedly, the belief was, would have much influence with the British Government. This was the more to be expected since the committee of experts represented the Dominions of Great Britain as well as the home Government.

Some months ago there was a report here that a British Government parliamentary committee had reported favorably on the Hughes proposal, but this was denied. At that time State Department officials expressed the opinion that such action by the committee, headed by Ronald MacNeil, would have been almost tantamount to an acceptance by the British Government.

The most recent communications from Downing Street to the State Department informed this Government that it had been decided to submit the question to the imperial conference, in as much as the colonies were deeply involved.

Canfield Says It Will Aid Dry Force.

"The action of Great Britain in accepting in principle the proposition to permit the searching of vessels for contraband liquor within twelve miles of the American shore, will constitute a valuable aid to this Government in its efforts to suppress the rum smuggling by means of the Atlantic Ocean.

"Firstly, this action will constitute an indirect notice to the rum runners operating vessels under British registry that Great Britain is not particularly in sympathy with such activities, and

$100,000,000 Employe Policy Sets Record for Insurance

A new record in the size of a single insurance policy has been made by the Southern Pacific Company, which yesterday took out a $100,000,000 contract with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The policy will cover 90,000 employes of the railroad, according to the announcement of Julius Kruttschnitt, Chairman, and will go into effect on Jan. 1.

Mr. Kruttschnitt explained that the Southern Pacific will insure the lives of all employes who have been with the road for six months or more. The employes will have the privilege after the company has made the initial policy out, expense of which is borne entirely by the company, to increase these amounts by purchasing additional insurance up to a maximum of $3,500 for those receiving a monthly pay of $200 or more. This additional insurance will be paid for jointly by the employe and the company and is known as the "contributory plan" of insurance.

WILL NAME KELLOGG ENVOY TO LONDON

Coolidge Is Expected to Select Former Minnesota Senator, Who Was Harding's Choice.

PARTY LEADERS SURPRISED

Republicans Doubt if Appointment Will Mollify the Insurgent West.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Frank B. Kellogg, former Senator from Minnesota, has been selected an Ambassador to London, according to a report in well-informed circles. President Coolidge today refused to confirm this report, although a formal announcement of his appointment is expected to be made as soon as England notifies this Government that he will be persona grata at the Court of St. James's.

His selection, it is understood, is an inheritance of the Harding Administration. Members of the Cabinet say tonight that it was known that President Harding had decided to name Mr. Kellogg to succeed George Harvey.

President Coolidge found it easy to keep the promise of his predecessor, after it was found that ex-Governor Lowden of Illinois would not consent to leave the United States at this time. Mr. Lowden had been sounded as to whether he would accept the post, and when his views were learned the place was not offered him.

Ex-Senator Kellogg was one of the intimate friends of President Harding. His intimacy went so far as the golf course, where he and Senator Hale frequently played with the President.

Republican Leaders Surprised.

Republican leaders, while recognizing the absolute fitness of Mr. Kellogg for the post, were surprised to learn today that the President had gone so far as to select him. They say that while he is an eminent lawyer and an authority on international law, yet his appointment will not advance the interests of the Republican party in Western sections of the country which have been showing an insurgency against the party.

Mr. Kellogg is regarded as a reactionary and was defeated by Hendrik Shipstead for the Senate by a majority in excess of 80,000. When in the Senate he supported President Harding's World Court proposal and under the Wilson Administration was a mild reservationist in the Versailles Treaty debate.

Even members of the reactionary wing in the Senate agree with the conclusion of the politicians and they are mildly expressing disapproval against the reported appointment. Their views, however, are not expected to extend so far as to cause any delay in his confirmation by the Senate.

Even Senatorial courtesy, which is a very strong lever, is also expected to overcome the very pronounced feeling against Mr. Kellogg held by the La Follette bloc. Senator La Follette toured the State and helped defeat Kellogg in 1922.

His experience as a member of the bar and in the Senate peculiarly qualifies him for the post. No objection is raised to him on that score, but Republican leaders do not hesitate to say that the cause of the party has not been enhanced by his selection in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa and the group of States which in the last two years have been turning away from the Republican Party to radicals and the Farmer-Labor candidates.

Says He Will Accept Post.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 26.—Although he had not been officially notified of his appointment as American Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, former United States Senator Kellogg said today he would accept the post if selected.

TEXANS TO PUT KLAN BEFORE THE SENATE AS NATIONAL ISSUE

Will Charge Its Political Dominance in Move to Keep Mayfield Out.

ALLEGE THREATS TO VOTERS

HEFLIN FOR THE DEFENSE

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 26.—The Senate will have to meet the Ku Klux Klan issue in the next session of Congress. It is a matter of common knowledge that a very considerable number of Senators, most of them from States in which the Klan has developed great strength, have been hoping that they would be spared this ordeal at least until after the 1924 election has passed into history.

Such, however, will not be the case, for it is the intention of the men who are behind the move to unseat Earle B. Mayfield, the Ku Klux Senator from Texas, to bring that question before the Senate soon after the Congress assembles on Dec. 3.

The Mayfield case, in the opinion of those who are familiar with the evidence which is to be submitted to the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, is destined to create an even greater interest in the nation than did that of ex-Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan. The evidence which will be submitted to the Senate by Bailey, Nichols & Bailey of Dallas, who will direct the fight to unseat Mayfield, will place before the country what is declared to be irrefutable evidence of how the Klan works when it sets out to elect one of the hooded brothers to high office.

In advance of its presentation to the Senate it is not now possible to disclose some of the most important of the charges which will be submitted, charges involving intimidation of voters, the taking over of the election machinery in important counties by the Klan, the spending of a vast sum of money many times in excess of the $10,000, which is the maximum permitted under the Texas law, and, as a climax, the submission of documentary evidence which, it is alleged, will prove beyond all reasonable doubt that Mayfied was before and after his election a member in good standing of the Klan. Mayfield will contend that he resigned from the Klan prior to the election.

Says Klan Rely on Heflin.

At the big Klan mobilization in Dallas on Wednesday the Mayfield case was continually under discussion. One of the most prominent of the Klansmen in Dallas County told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the Klan will back Mayfield to the limit.

"And if they unseat him," he declared, "we will send him right back."

Another Klansman who was present, a man who holds a high State office, said that Mayfield would not be without friends in the Senate. Asked to identify these friends, he mentioned just one Senator who, he said, was going to resist all efforts to unseat Mayfield.

The Senator he named is Heflin of Alabama who, according to the Klansmen, will move to investigate and unseat Senator Lodge in the event the move to declare Mayfield's election null and void comes to a vote in the Senate.

"What will you do in the event there is no evidence warranting the unseating of Mr. Lodge?" the Klan spokesman was asked.

"Oh," he replied, "we will leave that to Heflin."

It was recalled that during the Newberry fight the Senator who spoke more often than any other Senator, the Senator who was the most bitter in his denunciation of Mr. Newberry, was Mr. Heflin of Alabama.

"Will Senator Heflin vote to seat Mayfield if the charges against him are proved?" the Klan spokesman was asked.

"Will he be so inconsistent as to vote to seat Mayfield under such circumstances in view of the stand he took in the Newberry fight?"

"We can't say; ask Heflin," was the reply.

The Klan is also counting on support

Germans Alarmed at Divorces; Fear 'Americanized' Marriage

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—Germany's press is apprehensive lest married relations in the new republic be "Americanised." Divorce is on the increase and German newspapers fear that Renos will spring up in the country.

Last year Berlin alone had 2,000 divorces. Germany still falls far short of the American 1922 record of 125,000 divorces to 1,000,000 marriages, but the rate is growing, and letter writers are telling the newspapers what must be done to preserve the home and family.

Loveless marriages, especially those which are made for financial reasons, are held by most newspaper contributors to be responsible for the change. Some, however, insist that unions based on "reason" rather than love are more enduring.

C. P. STEINMETZ DIES IN SUDDEN RELAPSE

CALLED BIG LOSS TO SCIENCE

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Death came suddenly today to Charles Proteus Steinmetz, the "wizard" of electricity, while he was alone in his sickroom, which he was counting on leaving soon, so far had his recovery progressed.

The scientist slept most soundly last night of any night since the breakdown which sent him to bed following his recent trip to the Pacific Coast. He asked his nurse to have his breakfast served to him in bed, and she left the room to have the meal prepared. William Hayden, one of his adopted grandsons, entered the room a short time after 8 o'clock with the breakfast and found the scientist dead.

The physicians gave out the following statement:

"Dr. Steinmetz died suddenly a few minutes after 8 o'clock this morning of acute dilation of the heart, following a chronic myocarditis of many years' standing, which is a weakening of the heart muscles."

Last night Dr. Steinmetz's improvement had been so marked that he left his bed and chatted for a short time with members of the Hayden family. The head of the family, J. L. R. Hayden, is his adopted son.

After returning to bed, he read a book, "The Physics of Air," and marked several passages which he wanted Mr. Hayden to read with him. He was bright and cheerful and remarked that he would soon be out again and back to work. He fell asleep about 10 o'clock, and for the first time since he had been ill slept through till 5 o'clock this morning.

The body will lie in state on Sunday afternoon from 4 until 8 o'clock at the Steinmetz home, 108 Wendell Avenue. On Monday afternoon the funeral service will be held at 2 o'clock.

While Dr. Steinmetz was reported to have received one of the greatest salaries ever paid to an electrical expert, his friends say he left a very modest fortune, probably not more than $25,000. In fact it was said that he was not on the payroll of the General Electric Company, but that the company paid all of his living expenses and the expenses of his experiments. He held that sufficient.

The trip which Dr. Steinmetz had made to the West started Sept. 1, and proved much more strenuous than either he or members of his adopted family had planned. As a result he was forced to bed soon after his return, on Oct. 13. At the time his physicians announced that a rest was advisable, although it was emphasized that his condition was not serious.

Came to America When 24.

Charles Proteus Steinmetz was born in Breslau, Germany, on April 9, 1865. His father was in the Government railway service and was able to give him a good education. He studied in the universities at Breslau and Berlin, and the Polytechnic in Zurich, Switzerland, specializing in mathematics, electrical engineering and chemistry. In addition, he was deeply interested in politics and economics and became an active Socialist at a time when the German Government was taking drastic steps to stamp out socialism.

This led to conflicts with the authorities, which prevented him from taking a university degree. As a leading spirit in student Socialist clubs and an editor of Socialist papers, Steinmetz was regarded as a dangerous youth, and plans were made to prosecute him. Warned of this move in advance, he escaped to Austria and then to Switzerland, where he continued his studies, supporting himself by writing articles on political and scientific subjects. He intended to return to Breslau and become a professor in the university after the storm blew over, but he happened to meet an American student at Zurich who induced him to come to the United States.

In 1889, at the age of 24, Steinmetz arrived here with his American friend in the steerage of a French liner. Penniless and unable to speak more than a few words of English, the youthful genius was under the additional handicap of an illness which left him with

MORGAN MAY BE DELEGATE

LLOYD GEORGE ENCOURAGED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Acceptance by Premier Poincaré in behalf of France of the plan to appoint an international advisory commission of experts to make an economic inquiry into the capacity of Germany to pay reparations and also to evolve a financial plan under which she can make such payments, was received in Washington today.

The French acceptance is conditioned on the appointment of the commission of inquiry by the Reparation Commission in accordance with the terms of the Treaty of Versailles. This is understood to be acceptable to the Government of the United States.

While the American experts would be designated by the Reparation Commission, it is understood that, as a matter of fact, this would be largely a formality, as they would in reality be the choice of the American Government.

The substance of the French reply is understood to have been communicated to Secretary Hughes at the State Department this afternoon when André de Laboulaye, Counselor and Chargé d'Affaires of the French Embassy, called in the absence of Ambassador Jusserand and conferred with the Secretary. The full text of the French reply to the British invitation had not been received in Washington up to a late hour tonight. Only a summary had been received but this was sufficient to give a clear idea of the position of the French Government as to the method of appointment of the proposed economic advisory commission.

That the French form of acceptance of the invitation interposes no insuperable obstacle to the success of the plan was clearly indicated at the State Department after the call of the French Counselor. No formal announcement is likely to be made, however, until after the full text of the French communication has come and State Department officials have an opportunity to study more closely its exact terms.

Sees Bridge Across Chasm.

While Secretary Hughes refrained from authorizing any statement on the latest important development in the reparations situation, the assertion was made this evening by one high in the councils of the Coolidge Administration that the acceptance by France had at last offered "a bridge across the chasm—a bridge that ought to prove to be a stout one." This official also remarked after the receipt of the summary of the French note of acceptance that "a ray of hope is now seen in the eastern sky."

There can be no doubt, according to the view expressed here, that today's developments are the most important and promising in the reparations situation that have occurred since the armistice. France, as was pointed out in the note of Lord Curson to Secretary Hughes, has hitherto refused to assent to the setting up of an advisory commission. But the acceptance by Paris of what is virtually the original Hughes proposal of last December, with a slight modification relating only to the method of appointment of the experts, and the satisfaction with which the French action was received by high officials here leave no doubt that the kind of an impartial inquiry for which the American Government has stood will now be conducted.

In the course of his visit to the State

Berlin Welcomes Plan for a Conference; Has Always Favored Proposals of Hughes

BERLIN, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Much satisfaction was expressed in Government circles today over the report that the plan of Secretary of State Hughes for the appointment of an international commission to ascertain Germany's capacity to pay reparations had been accepted as the basis of a proposal for a discussion of the subject. It was pointed out that Germany has been a consistent supporter of the program of Secretary Hughes from the moment it was put forward by him in his speech in New Haven last December.

Notwithstanding what was deemed the caution manifested in the American reply to the British Government's "feeler" regarding the conference, official quarters evinced satisfaction over Premier Baldwin's speech at Plymouth last night and what were termed the frank utterances of General Smuts, the South African Premier, in his two recent talks on the subject of reparations.

The speeches of both statesmen were characterized as material contributions to the attempt to revive discussion of the question of Germany's ability to pay reparations.

In the opinion of Die Zeit, which usually reflects the Government attitude, the utterances of the British statesmen and the exchange of views between London and Washington plainly indicate that England during the last few months has devoted her efforts to reconstructing her foreign policy in the direction of establishing a firmly co-ordinated front against French imperialistic politics.

"The Anglo-American exchange of views is an urgent admonition to France that it can no longer remain oblivious of common world interests, and that both Governments desire to restore conditions essential for European peace," says Die Zeit.

Pillaging Arouses People to Violence, but Outbreaks Are Quickly Put Down.

COBLENZ, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Open and active French support enabled the Rhineland Republic today to extend its hold over a number of small towns and villages. French and Belgian troops enlarged their policing activities in Republican-controlled towns and quickly suppressed disorders growing out of attempts by the Loyalists to throw out the Separatist groups.

Joseph Matthes and his supporters in the Separatist movement still hold Coblenz, which became the capital of the new republic over night, when the French military curfew kept Loyalists off the streets while the Separatists, who previously had been driven from the town, returned and marched down the streets past the French sentries and took over the Government buildings.

The French representatives, known as the Superior Delegates of the Interallied High Commission, have been active in establishing or re-establishing new governments in various small towns. The Republicans are immediately accorded de facto recognition by the French and the Belgians, who aid them in maintaining order.

The Separatists have brought upon themselves the united opposition of the Nationalists and Communists. The mass of the population is supporting the normal Government, but under the Franco-Belgian military policy of disarming the police the old officials have been unable to defend themselves.

The French communiqués have revealed much dissatisfaction with the Separatists at several points, but it is said the French delegates have been able to strengthen the Republican position in various ways. Rumors that violent reactions were due today were current, but as far as is known tonight all outbreaks were put down promptly. Much fear is expressed, however, regarding conditions next week, when unemployment will be greatly increased and the food problem develops. The French report that the free distribution of food already has commenced at Duisburg.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Paris dispatches announcing that France will welcome an American representative on a committee of experts to examine under the Reparation commission Germany's capacity to pay reparations have been received in political circles here with great satisfaction. It is not all that the British Government hoped to attain by its recent moves, but it is a good deal.

Belgium and Italy have also accepted on the same terms as Poincaré, word having been received to that effect today.

A cartoon in The Star tonight represents the view taken generally of the advantage of American support of Great Britain at this particular juncture. It represents Poincaré going for Baldwin, to roll him in the mud of humiliation, but held back by "Big Brother Sam," who stands behind "Little Stanley" and restrains the Frenchman by a mere glance of his eye. It is, however, noted that France in giving way is apparently accepting the smaller and much less satisfactory of the two Anglo-American proposals.

Poincaré, unless he changes his mind, is very far from agreeing to the wide conference of the powers to review the entire Versailles settlement, which General Smuts put forward, and is simply assenting to a commission of experts which will not be very different and may not be more effective than the commission of bankers of two years ago.

Moreover, it is feared here that even this commission will be subjected to severe conditions. It will certainly not be permitted to take into account any political considerations, and it may find that the French will impose restrictions even on its examination of the financial situation. Of course, all this will be decided by negotiation between the Governments, and when every subtraction has been made there still remains, in the opinion of well-informed circles here, solid ground for satisfaction.

Expect Big Reduction in Reparations.

Moreover, even Poincaré, once he has assented to the appointment of the commission, can no longer adhere relentlessly to the estimate of German indebtedness at £6,600,000,000. One of the difficulties of negotiating with him has always been his tendency to revert to that figure whenever a discussion of more moderate figures has failed. At times, indeed, France has seemed willing to accept a settlement based on some such sum as £2,500,000,000, but that has always been coupled with an arrangement by which she would escape direct payment of her debt to her allies, and as soon as her proposals on that head have been rejected, she has always brought up again the larger figure.

But now America has firmly refused to couple the interallied debt and reparations problems, and France consequently has agreed to a new examination of German assets and can hardly complain if the international experts decide to reduce the estimate.

Then there is the question of the effect the appointment of an expert commission with American participation will have on Germany's internal condition. It is thought not unlikely that it

PARIS, Oct. 26.—Premier Poincaré made two important announcements today affecting the reparations situation. In the first he agreed to the naming by the Reparation Commission of a committee of experts, including an American, to advise it on questions relating to Germany's capacity to pay. In the second he agreed to the appearance before the Reparation Commission next week of a German delegate to explain why the Reich cannot finance payment in kind.

The French Premier took both these decisions more out of regard for American and British opinion than from any belief that they would work wonders. He may be right, he may be wrong, but that is how he feels about it.

The Premier's acceptance of a committee of experts was contained in a note sent last night to London, of which the British Prime Minister had no knowledge when he made his speech last evening.

It is made quite clear here that the proposed committee would in no way arrogate to itself any of the powers of the Reparation Commission. This means that then the Reparation Commission would be free to accept or reject its recommendations.

It is also made quite apparent that the French do not desire nor intend that this committee shall even recommend a reparation total, but shall rather give expert advice on how Germany should make payments toward meeting the total otherwise fixed.

In form the French acceptance appears on its face to meet the Hughes proposal of last December, and Lord Curzon's proposals. But it is quite clear that in the minds of both Secretary Hughes and Lord Curzon there was the basic idea there should be an international fixation of the total that Germany can pay the Allies. That is not the basic French idea.

It is understood that M. Poincaré has given London to understand that he cannot accept a conference of Governments on reparations the decision of which would be final and not subject to review so long as America maintains her position that the interallied debts could not be discussed at such meeting, for the French Premier sticks to the position that the two are correlated.

Recalls Morgan Committee.

The proposed international committee recalls the experiences last year of the similar committee named to advise the Reparation Commission and headed by J. P. Morgan. This committee broke up when Premier Poincaré refused to permit it to discuss the total reparations, taking the stand that the committee should advise only on how to collect the total already fixed.

The newly proposed committee probably will face the same difficulty. In addition it will face another and perhaps a graver difficulty, the occupation of the Ruhr. It is a basic part of the French reparations plan that the occupation of the Ruhr should be continued. The British Government regards the occupation of the Ruhr as illegal. Could the British member of the committee agree to work out a plan for German payments which comprised the Ruhr occupation? What would be the stand of the American member on that issue? Unless M. Poincaré completely reverses himself, which he is not in the habit of doing, the committee would at once confront this formidable barrier.

Premier Poincaré has consistently held that no one, not even international financiers, can estimate what Germany can pay twenty years from now, and that therefore it is unwise for them to try to fix the total she can pay. He has frequently said that the Reparation Commission would welcome the advice of experts on how to collect the payments from Germany; in other words, how to exploit the guarantees and pledges which might be assigned to the Allies by Germany in reparations settlement. Such payment would be applied against the official total until paid, or until it became more apparent than it is now that Germany cannot pay that sum.

The French Premier fixes the total at fifty billion gold marks in addition to what France must pay to America, or in round numbers somewhere near seventy billion gold marks. It is not believed he intends to permit the proposed committee of experts to say this is too much.

Paris Press Is Critical.

Tonight's papers say France has never refused to allow the Reparation Commission to name a committee of experts,

Henry Ford Is Caught by Process Servers Who Hid in Bush as He Posed for Movie

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Oct. 26.—By breaking in uninvited Fred Ginski and Arthur Barker, Deputy Sheriffs, today got personal service on Henry Ford with a subpoena, the first time such a thing has happened in years.

Last May Mr. Ford was named defendant in a $100,000 suit brought by B. Frank Emery for alleged personal injuries suffered in 1919, when he was thrown from an automobile owned by Mr. Ford and in which Ford representatives were conducting him, as a representative of Truman H. Newberry, to Mount Clemens, Mich., during the Ford-Newberry Senatorial controversy. Since then deputy sheriffs have tried many a ruse to get personal service on Mr. Ford but only to meet with defeat at the hands of the emissaries of the auto maker.

Judge Henry A. Mandell, in the Circuit Court, had set next Monday as the day of the trial. Unless Mr. Ford was served personally with the papers before that time, the case could not proceed.

Working, they say, on a hunch, the deputies wandered out in the country and came upon an old farmhouse. There also was a motion picture machine. There was a new thrashing machine. There were camera operators and the customary supes. A few minutes later a large gray automobile drew up at the house and Henry Ford emerged.

From the safe shelter of a bush the officers saw him pose beside the thrashing machine. The camera crank began to turn and—Ginski stepped forward, the subpoena in one hand, a two-dollar bill, the regular fee, in the other, and carried out his task.

The deputies say that Mr. Ford appeared much surprised, and at first a little annoyed. But when he asked, "Who tipped you off that I was to be here today?" and they told him it was a plain case of inspiration, he smiled and shook hands with both men.

Unemployed Seize Krupp Works at Essen; 7 Killed, 200 Wounded in Fierce Fighting

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A mob of several thousand unemployed seized the Krupp Works at Essen today and barricaded themselves in the main buildings, says a dispatch to The Daily Express from Essen.

At least seven persons were killed and 200 wounded in a desperate fight with the Blue police, who are described as inadequate to deal with the situation.

The attack, according to The Express correspondent, developed at noon, a few hours after Dr. Krupp von Bohlen and his three co-directors in the Krupp Company returned to Essen on parole from the Düsseldorf prison.

Essen tonight is wild with excitement. The police are engaged in a conflict at the Krupp works and are attempting to put a stop to pillaging.

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 26.—A crowd of unemployed persons took part in a violent demonstration in the Stahlstrasse today. They pillaged a number of stores and broke many windows.

Stores and food supplies in transit have been pillaged at Essen, Gelsenkirchen and other places, leading to numerous clashes with the police. One civilian was killed by the police at Katernberg.

At Bochum there was a pitched battle between 1,000 unemployed and the blue police. Several persons were wounded.

Two men were killed in a fight between a band of demonstrators and the police at Barmen.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—One hundred rioters were killed in the street fighting in Hamburg on Tuesday and Wednesday, the full reports on the disorders show.

including Americans, and has no reason to repulse these proposals today, on condition that the Reparation Commission conserves all its powers under the treaty, and it is noted that the American Government accepts this method of procedure.

Secretary Hughes's reply to Lord Curzon's note was well received in Paris because of the part which refuses Lord Curzon's invitation to join a reparation conference despite France, which of course meant an effort to force a solution upon France. The French regard that attitude as eminently fair.

The Temps expresses pleasure that the United States "did not lend itself to this manoeuvre directed against France."

The Journal des Debats thinks the committee of experts will amount to nothing and comments in a discouraging manner upon American participation, construing the Hughes note as saying America would name no official representative, but merely send a prominent American "who naturally would assume no responsibility on the part of the American Government to see that Germany executed any solution America might adopt."

Noting that Washington refuses to name an official member of the Reparation Commission, the Journal des Debats concludes that the United States is once more offering free advice backed by moral suasion, which it thinks will not make Germany pay.

"Theoretically the idea of a number of wise experts and financiers sitting around a green-topped table and deciding what is reasonable and practical as to reparations is beautiful," it says. "Mr Hughes said last December that since statesmen could not agree on reparations they ought to turn the whole thing over to practical men who are free from Foreign Office strings and should remove the reparations question from politics and settle it. The trouble is you cannot remove the reparations question from politics. The reparations question is essentially a question of the relations of France and Germany. It is tied to the question of security. It is camouflaged by the national aspirations of more than one country.

"It is dyed with hate. It is colored by dreams of revenge. It is surrounded by fear. It is connected with a hundred other questions which are political questions. When it is settled it will be settled by the accommodation of national interests, which means it will be settled politically.

"When statesmen, or politicians if you like, once get on the road to a settlement the experts may help. But the coming experts' commission cannot settle the reparations problem any more than Mr. Morgan's committee settled it last year, and therefore the Poincaré's acceptance of one more expert commission to give advice by no means justifies the conclusion that the reparations problem is near a settlement."

Poincare Was in Dilemma.

PARIS, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—The French Government has accepted in British proposal for an examination into Germany's capacity to pay reparation. It is regarded in diplomatic circles that Premier Poincaré has thus avoided a bad turning in France's international relations, for this morning, when the American note and Prime Minister Baldwin's speech were published here, he appeared to be beset on all sides.

Incited by the German Chancellor in a speech which was regarded as presaging prolongation and intensification of the troubles with the Reich, and summoned by his allied associates to accept the principle of a conference which he had hitherto steadily rejected, the French Premier seemed to have been isolated, if not cornered.

His prompt acceptance of one of the alternative proposals made by the British Prime Minister clears the atmosphere, and while nothing is expected by French officials to come from a reexamination of Germany's capacity, France will have at least avoided the appearance of hanging back on the proposal approved by the American Government.

The first impression regarding M. Poincaré's reply was that it practically rejected Mr. Baldwin's proposal, since it limited the examination of the Reparation commission by putting the nominations up to the Reparation Commission, which was tantamount to rejecting the idea of a conference of plenipotentiaries named by the various Governments.

When it transpired later that there were alternative projects in the British proposal, one for an international conference of plenipotentiaries and the other for a committee to be named by the Reparation Commission, it was seen that the Premier's reply constituted an acceptance.

A high official of the Foreign Office tonight declare that M. Poincaré's decision was largely influenced by the American approval of the project. France, he added, was particularly happy to welcome and facilitate all she could such participation by the United States in settlement of the European tangle as the American Government saw fit to undertake.

Germany May Ask Hearing.

It is regarded as possible that the Germans may decide to ask for a hearing by the special commission of experts instead of pursuing their request that they be heard by th Interallied Reparation Commission.

Valuable time may be gained in any case by the procedure accepted by M. Poincaré, it is pointed out in diplomatic circles where there have been grave apprehensions over the crisis in the Franco-German relations. While the commission of experts is at work other developments may modify the situation, such as the eventual success of the Rhineland Republic, which would comprise, according to some estimates, 40 per cent. of the paying power of Germany.

On the other hand the intimation has reached the Quai d'Orsay that Great Britain would regard the Versailles Treaty as nullified if the Rhineland separated from the Reich and became an independent republic.

Ambassador Jusserand, who is expected to reach Washington next week, will be able to supplement in personal talks with Secretary Hughes and President Coolidge what Premier Poincaré has already communicated to the State Department. The Ambassador had a long talk with the Premier Wednesday evening, when the whole subject was gone over.

M. Poincaré had already carefully weighed all the consequences of the decision, having had Prime Minister Baldwin's proposal in hand since Saturday, with all of Sunday to think about it in calm at his Summer home in Sampigny. The Premier was placed in an extremely difficult situation. He was most reluctant to reject any proposition that had received the approval of the American Government, but at the same time, it is understood, he does not wish to throw the whole question into an international conference which would possibly deal with the matter as though the Treaty of Versailles did not exist.

Consequently, the Premier chose a middle course, to accept in principle an international appraisal of Germany's capacity to pay, but to arrive at the international discussion in a legal manner, that is, through the Reparation Commission. This procedure, it is pointed out, will leave France as free after the international conference as she was in June of last year when the international bankers invited by the Reparation Commission met in Paris to deal with the proposed international loan.

Fear Move for Reduction.

Reappraisement of Germany's capacity to pay reparations strikes the afternoon newspapers as futile and objectionable, because they see in it an effort to reduce the amount of reparations. They find it futile because they say the question is political rather than financial. Germany, they assert, is hopelessly bankrupt, as any economic expert must agree, but if by some means she could be inspired with a desire to pay, then she could clean house and pay, for her capacity in the future is entirely dependent upon her good-will.

"Germany's trouble," says the Temps, "is caused by German fraud, the repression of which alone will assure payment of reparations, and by British errors, for which British industry today is paying the penalty."

The newspaper asserts the latter is due to the fact that Great Britain broke the allied Entente and co-operation which, had it been maintained, would have avoided German resistance and the present chaos.

The Temps says the British policy, which dates back to the first Duke of Marlborough and still survives in Lord Curzon's mind, "is to prevent the creation on the Rhine of a political situation that would guarantee France's security."

The newspaper refers to Lord Curzon's inquiry of the Washington Government as to the attitude of the United States if the Allies were not unanimous for the conference, and says such a conference, "if against France's wish, could be utilized both to prepare the way for a reduction of the German debt and to demand the premature evacuation of the Ruhr."

The Intransigeant, like all the other newspapers, refers to the speech at Hagen of Dr. Stresemann, the German Chancellor, as indicating continued resistance by Germany, whether passive or not, and says Premier Poincaré might well reply to Premier Baldwin as follows:

"Yesterday Stresemann threw off the mask and declared he would not make any payment while the Ruhr and the Rhine are occupied. The Rhine? We are there by virtue of the treaty of Versailles, which I presume you have no intention of tearing up. The Ruhr? I have always said I was ready to evacuate it progressively, as payments were made, but this Stresemann would not do."

"France, declares M. Bainville in La Liberté, "might afford to listen to Premier Baldwin's plea, if that would give our British friends any pleasure. But a conference will result in nothing. We can say that in all certainty in advance."

M. Bainville then asks whether the British proposal would certainly not rather add to Europe's confusion instead of bringing about order.

GERMANY APPEALS FOR FOOD FOR RUHR

BERLIN, Oct. 26 (Associated Press)—Germany has issued an appeal to the charitable institutions of the world, through its official representatives abroad, for relief work in the Ruhr and Rhineland, where the food situation is speedily becoming worse.

Admission that the Government had been forced to send out such an appeal was made by Chancellor Stresemann in his address before the industrial and labor leaders of the occupied area at Hagen, Westphalia, last night. The material resources of the Government, he declared, had been found inadequate to cope with the situation in a commensurate manner.

An official of the American Society of Friends who recently completed a tour of inspection of the Ruhr and the Rhineland expressed the opinion today that conditions there were rapidly assuming a grave aspect. He asserted that the populace in the occupied zone was not only underfed but completely broken in spirit. As an example of the conditions confronting the people, he said that in many sections the limited stock of milk was permitted to spoil because the price was prohibitive.

The cost of bread now is made the basis of daily wages in the metal industries, where a married worker with children is given the equivalent of three loaves, and unmarried men and women are paid on the basis of the price of one loaf.

LLOYD GEORGE HAILS REPARATIONS MOVE

SEES NO REAL OBSTACLE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The Curzon-Hughes correspondence on reparations and the reported attitude of the French Government toward the Hughes proposal for an economic commission to investigate Germany's capacity to pay are regarded by David Lloyd George as a step in the direction of a settlement.

While speaking with reserve on the new stand taken by France, and while unwilling to make any extended comment for the present, he expressed the view that the susceptibilities of the French Government should be considered in dealing with the situation. He declared, however, that should the Poincaré Government fail to give its assent to any plan upon which the other powers are in accord, this should not be permitted to stop negotiations.

Mr. Lloyd George regards the situation as decidedly more hopeful and thinks the political skies are clearing.

When Mr. Lloyd George received the newspaper men today he was asked if the insistence of France on the inquiry regarding Germany's capacity to pay being conducted within the terms of the Versailles treaty might mean that America, not being a signatory, would be left out.

"Not necessarily," he replied. "Each of the Powers interested would appoint an expert, and it looks as if France would be ready to accept an American among the number. As far as I can see M. Poincaré merely does not want the inquiry to go outside the four corners of the Versailles treaty."

Says Treaty Provides for Inquiry.

"But would not that limit the inquiry's scope?" he was asked.

"I do not think so," Mr. Lloyd George said. "Under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles you can inquire into the capacity of Germany to pay; in fact, the treaty specifically provides that Germany from time to time is entitled to come before the reparations commission and make representation relating to her ability to make reparation payments.

"M. Poincaré," he added, "apparently does not want the proposed commission to have more than advisory powers. He wants his Government to have the final say. But that is precisely the proposal advanced by Mr. Secretary Hughes. I do not see why they should not meet now, unless there be something in the statement of the French position that we do not as yet know."

"Then you regard what is known regarding the position of France as an advance in the right direction?" was asked.

"It looks like it, unless there is some catch that we have not heard of. I regard the Curzon note, the answer by Mr. Secretary Hughes and the French statement as an advance upon anything that has been said before."

It was recalled to Mr. Lloyd George that General Smuts in his recent speech had suggested that the proposed economic food commission should be equipped with ample powers and not be a subordinate body.

"I do not regard it as of first importance that the powers should be bound by the findings of the commission," Mr. Lloyd George replied. "What matters is the composition of that body. It must be composed of men of decided business ability and men in a position to command public confidence, and they must be truly representative of the powers that send them. Once such a commission begins to investigate, I am very hopeful of the outcome."

"But what guarantee is there that their findings would be accepted, any more than were the findings of the International Commission of Bankers which started out to investigate this very thing?" he was asked.

"Ah, but the bankers did not examine into Germany's capacity to pay," Mr. Lloyd George replied. "Poincaré would not let them. Every other power was willing they should. That was a fatal error."

Reference was made to recent utterances of General Smuts to the effect that the failure of any one power to come in should not be permitted to block the inquiry.

"That," said Mr. Lloyd George, "is not the best method of approaching the subject. I do not think, however, that failure of M. Poincaré to accede should terminate the negotiations."

Would Keep Politics Out.

The method of procedure, with the inquiry decided upon, the British ex-Premier held, could safely be left to the commission itself.

"Our misfortune in the past," he said, "has been that we had politicians working out this situation. A group of business men will consider all material evidence with a bearing on Germany's ability to pay not only within but beyond her frontiers and that is important. A nation can pay vast sums within her own borders, but when it comes to payment beyond, goods or securities are required. We realized the difficulty when the time came to adjust our debt to you and Germany's debt is much bigger."

"Do you think the politicians should be kept off the commission altogether?" Mr. Lloyd George was asked.

"I should think so," he said. "A politician would always be thinking how his finding would affect his politics. And business men have a way of arriving at conclusions almost by instinct. They seem to smell it, as it were."

"The Reparation Commission," he said in reply to another question, "could not disregard the advice of such a body as this commission would be if properly manned. Its findings would carry such weight as to command the support of public opinion in the United States and throughout the civilized world. But I think the susceptibilities of the French should be scrupulously considered. It is desirable in my opinion to meet even their prejudices. They are very sensitive in regard to the Versailles treaty, which is natural. The French seem to attach importance to form, but form should not be permitted to stand in the way of a settlement."

"The State Department gave a very fine present to Mr. Lloyd George," said William Jenning Bryan, with a smile as after his breakfast to the Lloyd Georges this morning he escorted them back to their suite in the New Willard. "He is arriving here under the most happy circumstances imaginable."

Mr. Lloyd George today placed wreaths on the grave of the unknown soldier at Arlington and on the sarcophagus that holds the remains of George Washington at Mount Vernon. He was accompanied to these historic shrines by his wife and daughter and Secretary Weeks.

Mr. Lloyd George had dinner tonight with Secretary of State Hughes, who asked the ex-Premier to meet him an hour in advance of the dinner. The guests at the dinner included the Chargé d'Affaires of Great Britain and Mrs. Chilton, Secretary Mellon, Secretary and Mrs. Weeks, Secretary Hoover, Secretary and Mrs. Davis, Sir William Sutherland of Lloyd George's party; Richard Washburn Child, Ambassador to Italy, and Mrs. Child; Mrs. Frederick A. Keep, Miss Mellon, Miss Helen Wolcott and Edwin W. Dillingham.

Dame Margaret and Miss Megan Lloyd George were entertained at luncheon today by Mrs. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor, and afterward accompanied the Premier to the home of the British Chargé, where they had tea.

Tomorrow Mr. Lloyd George and his party will visit Gettysburg, motoring to the battlefield and returning by train. At night the British War Premier will be a guest at a dinner of the Overseas Writers, leaving early Sunday for Richmond, Va.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—David Lloyd George, accompanied by Secretary Weeks, visited the Walter Reed Hospital late today. The ex-Premier passed through wards in which disabled war veterans lay quietly, and at the Red Cross Auditorium met others who had gathered to greet him.

Speaking in a low voice and with every evidence of deep emotion, the war-time Premier thanked them for their contribution "to the freedom of Europe and the freedom of the world." He wished to thank them, he reiterated, "personally as one who was in charge of the resources of the British Empire" in most critical, anxious days.

"I can not tell you the feeling I had when I heard you were coming," he said.

The American soldiers, he continued, by coming to Europe "sustained our courage and gave us confidence," while to the French soldier he gave assistance in the spirit.

When in 1918 the allied lines had been broken and it was realized American divisions were coming over in increasing numbers, he said, "we knew that the days of anxiety were about over."

CONGRATULATE HUGHES

Members of Foreign Policy Association Approve His Move.

The Executive Committee of the Foreign Policy Association, which brought Lord Robert Cecil to this country last Spring, wired yesterday to Secretary Hughes the following message of congratulation and approval:

"We cordially congratulate you and we believe the country will heartily approve your forthright proposal that this Government is entirely willing to take part in an economic conference in which all the European allies chiefly concerned in German reparations participate for the purpose of considering the questions of the capacity of Germany to make reparation payments and an appropriate financial plan for securing such payments.'

"The three specific conditions you urge seem to us under the circumstances well adapted to secure the largest measure of success for such a conference. There can be no doubt that 'the establishment of sound economic conditions in Europe, the serious reduction of military outlays and the demonstration of a disposition of the European peoples to work together to achieve the aims of peace and justice' would make our people much more willing to consider a generous adjustment of interallied indebtedness.

"The press reports that France, Belgium and Italy have accepted your proposal, coupled with the certainty of Britain's hearty co-operation, gives hope that at last the deadlock which has threatened the political and economic disintegration of Central Europe has been broken. We believe that American public opinion, if you and your associates explain the reasons therefor, will support you in whatever measures may prove to be necessary to make this Government's participation in the proposed conference most helpful."

The message was signed by James G. McDonald, Chairman Executive Committee, of the Foreign Policy Association.

SENATORS FOR PLAN IF FRANCE WILL JOIN

ENDORSED BY BORAH

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Secretary Hughes's proposal to aid Europe in the adjustment of the reparations question met with the general approval of Senators who were in Washington today. All of them, however, appeared to be opposed to the United States joining in any settlement move unless France was a member of the commission to decide the amount of reparations which Germany could pay.

Some opinions expressed were:

Senator Borah of Idaho—I think the proposal of Mr. Hughes is in the right direction. I regard it as a proper effort to be put forth, and it should be boldly and determinedly followed up.

Senator Smoot of Utah—I have favored all along an international commission to determine the amount of reparations which Germany can pay. I looked into what Germany could pay while I was in Europe. She cannot pay 132,000,000,000 gold marks. I believe that if the amount she could pay was determined by a competent commission, the public opinion of the world would force France to accept. I doubt the wisdom of the United States taking part in such a commission unless France goes into it. Unless something is done very promptly in effecting a settlement there will be a revolution of greater proportions in Germany.

Senator Burton of Ohio—I certainly hope that the plan suggested by Secretary Hughes will be carried out and that France will agree to it. Unless she does, I do not believe that sentiment in this country would support our joining a commission in opposition to France's wishes.

Senator King of Utah—The proposal does not go far enough. They should bring in all the allied and associated nations, and any reparations settlement decided upon by such a gathering would compel France, by force of world opinion, to accept.

ILLINOIS FRESHMAN KILLED BY POLICEMAN

Slayer, of Motorcycle Squad, Is Also a Freshman of the University.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 26.—Phil Sharp, 22 years old, a freshman at the University of Illinois, was shot and killed here tonight by J. D. Hillyer, a motorcycle policeman and freshman at the university.

The shooting occurred as Sharp and Alexander Schulz, a son of Professor W. F. Schulz of the Department of Physics were preparing to attend the Northwestern-Illinois football game at Chicago tomorrow.

The boys, the police learned, bought an old automobile and overhauled it, intending to go to the football game in it. According to the police they went out tonight to obtain tires and were discovered by Hillyer taking a tire from another car.

Hillyer, according to the police, called upon the youths to halt. Instead, Schulz fled in the car and Sharp ran down an alley. Hillyer fired at Sharp, killing him almost instantly. Schulz was arrested.

The police said they found tires and auto accessories, taken from other cars, in the machine the boys had intended to use for their trip.

WET TELEPHONE CABLE TIES UP 2 EXCHANGES

A wet cable played havoc last night with telephone service in the New York Telephone Company exchange at 208 East Seventy-ninth Street, which houses "Lehigh" and "Regent" switchboards. Dampness, exchange officials said, began penetrating the Regent cable between 110th and 116th Streets, near Third Avenue, at 5 o'clock, the beginning of the evening rush hour. By 10 o'clock it was estimated that more than 90 per cent. of the telephones served had become affected. An emergency repair crew "boiling out" the injured cable could not say last night when service would be fully restored.

The Seventy-ninth Street exchange takes care of one of the busiest sections of Harlem—the rectangle between Eighty-sixth and 116th Streets and Fifth Avenue and East River. It also controls the monitor system of signal boxes in the East 104th Street Police Precinct, whereby patrolmen report hourly to the station.

When these boxes became affected extra sergeants were detailed in police flivvers to visit all beats and check the patrolmen. To make ambulance calls it was necessary to go out of the exchange district all evening.

But one hospital is in the Lehigh-Regent district—the Manhattan State Hospital on Welfare Island—and its telephone connection was not impaired. Much confusion occurred at the public telephones in drug stores and business places, where coin-box users could not understand the failure to secure service or the return of the nickel.

The dampness in the cable was attributed to the flooding of conduits by recent heavy rains.

BAVARIA TO THREATEN DEATH TO PROFITEERS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUNICH, Oct. 26.—Drastic regulations are to be issued in Bavaria to deal with profiteers and speculators. In extreme cases the death penalty is to be inflicted.

As in the case of von Kahr's abortive beer edict, this may be regarded merely as good street politics. In fact, it has been admitted by those in close touch with the Dictator that the mere threat of the death penalty is expected to have the desired effect.

The policy of deporting persons who do not find favor with the Government for business or political reasons is to be rigorously pursued. The campaign is directed mainly agaist Jews and "troublesome foreigners." One of the best known art dealers in the city is the latest victim.

Definition of the word "troublesome" is left entirely to the Government, which up to the present has preferred to maintain a discreet silence on the whole matter, but comment in the non-Bavarian press apparently has made it necessary at least to attempt to justify this policy.

The principal offense of persons deported, according to the Munchener Allegemeine Abend-Zeitung tonight, is that they came to Bavaria in needy circumstances and are now in positions of affluence. That this wealth has been acquired in some cases by hard work and attention to business in preference to supporting Bavarian storm troop organizations presumably is an additional offense. In a majority of cases it is clear that the deportation order is issued on political grounds, and the mere fact that a person has subscribed to Socialist Party funds may be considered as sufficient reason for issuing an order of deportation.

COOLIDGE TO OPPOSE ARMY-NAVY MERGER

President Would Hesitate to Recommend to Congress Unifying of Departments.

OFFICERS DISAPPROVE PLAN

Cabinet Considered Only General Idea of Consolidation on Which Opinions Differ.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The proposal for the consolidation of the War and Navy Departments into a Department of National Defense, as provided in the Government reorganization plan worked out by the commission engaged in a study of that subject, probably will not be approved by President Coolidge.

The reorganization plan was taken up today by President Coolidge and his Cabinet, and, although the proposal for merging the War and Navy Departments was not reached, it became known that the President would hesitate to recommend such a consolidation in passing the general plan on to Congress for necessary legislative action.

The plan for the consolidation of the departments has been opposed by a board of army and navy officers and has also failed to receive the approval of the present Secretaries of the two departments. The President believes that, while such a merger may be logical, changes in governmental institutions cannot always follow logical policies, but must often be made dependent on history and governmental growth.

Mr. Coolidge furthermore believes that, even should later study convince him that consolidation of the War and Navy Departments is feasible and advantageous, it should be provided in a separate piece of legislation, because of its importance, rather than combined with a general reorganization scheme.

Only the general features of the reorganization plan were considered today by the President and his Cabinet, and questions on which there is a difference of opinion were left for a later meeting, at which it is probable that Walter F. Brown, Chairman of the Reorganization Commission, will be present.

'KISS' VERDICT SET ASIDE.

Court Orders New Trial After Jury Awarded Woman $5,000.

Supreme Court Justice May in Brooklyn yesterday set aside the "stolen kiss" verdict of a jury in his court on Tuesday, which awarded $5,000 damages to Mrs. Alice Mercer, 1911 Church Avenue, in her suit for $50,000 against Louis Goodman, a merchant, of Albermarle Terrace, Brooklyn.

"The conceded facts in the case and all surrounding circumstances belie the contention of the plaintiff herein," said Justice May. "The story told by the plaintiff and her husband, the manner in which the stories were told, and their appearance and general attitude convince me that their testimony is unworthy of belief. It is evident that the sympathy of the jury was unduly aroused by the testimony of the plaintiff, a young, slight and attractive woman, to the effect that she had been brutally attacked by the defendant." A new trial was ordered.

Eleven Sinaloa Defendants Freed.

Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in the Tombs Court yesterday discharged eleven men who had been arrested a month ago in the office of the Sinaloa Exploration and Development Company, 25 West Forty-third Street, on a charge of attempted grand larceny made by Philip Francis, President of the corporation. The Magistrate told Assistant District Attorney Murphy that evidence of an attempt at grand larceny by the men had not been produced.

TELLS JEWS TO FIGHT FOES.

Rabbi Wise Calls Klan an Underminer of American Life.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise last evening addressed 1,500 men and women members of the Congregation Temple Emanu-El, Fourteenth Avenue and Forty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, and told them that as President of the American Jewish Congress he brought a message for them to organize against the enemies of their race. He warned the gathering that "the moment we organize we are going to be criticised and damned, but we are being damned now, and there is no harm to be damned for being brave, courageous Jews."

"We Jews are too strong to set ourselves against one man—Henry Ford," Rabbi Wise went on, and referring to attacks on Jews by the Ku Klux Klan he said: "The Ku Klux Klan is a body of undoors and underminers of American life and institutions." He deplored the fact that so few youths among the Jews of America took up Jewish theology.

BONAR LAW IS WORSE.

Physicians' Bulletin Says Recent Chill Confines Him to His Bed.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Andrew Bonar Law is still abed with a serious throat affection, and his condition today became so aggravated as to justify his physicians issuing a bulletin, the first since the former Premier's breakdown last Summer.

The bulletin, which was signed by Sir Thomas Horder, the famous cancer specialist, and Dr. Gould May said the patient was suffering from an exacerbation of his recent feverish chill, necessitating continued confinement in bed.

HUGHES SEES RESULTS NEAR

Department the French Counselor informed Secretary Hughes that the Paris Government, in its reply to the British Government's invitation for the proposed economic inquiry, had given notice that France was willing to have a body of experts appointed by the Reparation Commission for the purpose of examining the capacity of Germany to pay, making recommendations as to the method of collection, and working out a financial plan for securing payments. The French reply also informed the British Government that Premier Poincaré would be glad to have the United States name experts to co-operate.

Substantial Point Is Gained.

Secretary Hughes has felt all along that the substantial thing to be achieved has been to obtain the services of an advisory body of experts as soon as possible so that they may go to work on the formulation of a financial plan for the making of German reparations payments. Although he has received only the summary of the French reply, he is understood to feel that the way has at last been opened for the achievement of that important end.

Neither the French Government nor any other is bound in advance to adopt the recommendations of the advisory body of experts, but it is confidently believed that the report of such a commission will carry the greatest weight with the Reparation Commission and the Paris Government.

It is learned that Premier Poincaré's reply indicates that France wishes to conform to her position of maintaining the treaty and acting within its terms. The treaty itself has provision for the setting up by the Reparation Commission of adjunct bodies for its assistance which may contain members who are not necessarily members of the commission. The French reply points out that this authorization is contained in Paragraph 7, Annex 2 of Chapter VIII. of the Treaty of Versailles, which reads:

"The commission is authorized to appoint all necessary officers, agents and employes who may be required for the execution of its functions, and to fix their remuneration; to constitute committees, and to take all executive steps necessary for the purpose of discharging its duties; and to delegate authority and discretion to officers, agents and committees."

The acceptance of France, coupled with the recent German note concerning the Reparation Commission, is believed by officials here to open a clear avenue for approach to the whole important question of the formulation of a financial plan, which this Government believes to be imperative if the world is to be spared from the economic breakdown of Europe. While the American Government might have preferred acceptance by France untrammeled by any reference to the Treaty of Versailles, the Coolidge Administration is satisfied.

Advisory Rôle Emphasized.

It was again emphasized that the body to be constituted by the Reparation Commission would be purely advisory and would have no power to bind the Governments concerned. It is nevertheless, the belief of the Administration that if this advisory body does its work well, it can be of immense value in providing an estimate of Germany's capacity to pay, based on expert knowledge and entirely free from political bias.

In the absence of the text of the French note, the exact method by which France expects the membership of the new commission to be selected was not clear here, but it was assumed by high officials from their understanding of the French communication that this Government would have entire freedom of action in the selection of its representatives and that the Reparation Commission, after their nomination, might go through the formality of designating them. As for the selection of the experts to represent other interested countries, it was assumed that the Governments involved would name them in co-operation with the Reparation Commission.

The statement was made in an official quarter that the American expert or experts would unquestionably have the sanction of this Government under the plan suggested, as it was pointed out that men of the capacity necessary for such a task would hardly be willing to serve without such sanction. Neither at the White House nor the State Department were suggestions available as to the number of experts which each Government would select for service on the economic advisory body nor was there any official intimation as to the identity of the experts to be designated. Secretary Hughes has stated, however, that they should be men "of such prestige, experience and honor that their agreement upon the amount to be paid, and upon a financial plan for working out the payments, would be accepted throughout the world as the most authoritative expression obtainable."

It was suggested here that J. Pierpont Morgan of New York was one of the Americans whom this definition by Mr. Hughes would fit, and it can be stated that for nearly a year the belief has existed in quarters which have closely followed the history of reparations that Mr. Morgan would be asked by the American Government to serve in the capacity of such an expert. The probability is that other experts will be chosen, and the representation of each country on the economic advisory body not limited to one man.

Mr. Morgan was a member of the Committee of International Bankers which was consulted in the reparations situation more than a year ago, whose recommendations were not then adopted by the Reparation Commission because the French banking representative, reflecting the view then held by the French Government, was opposed to the recommendations by the international banking groups. The name of Thomas W. Lamont has also been mentioned as a possible appointee on the economic advisory body, in the event that the services of Mr. Morgan are not available.

So far the State Department has not heard officially regarding the replies of Italy and Belgium to the Curzon invitation. Press dispatches from London indicate that Italy and Belgium have accepted. Italy in the past has shown an inclination to accept the Hughes plan, and Belgium has always followed the lead of France on reparations. Japan, it is believed, would have no hesitation in naming experts to participate in the work of the commission.

The fact that the Administration has declined to name a representative on the Reparation Commission, on the ground that Congress must authorize such action, would not prevent, it was stated tonight, the Administration from naming experts to serve on the Advisory Commission of Inquiry, even though France proposes that it be constituted under the authority of the Treaty of Versailles and under the auspices of the Reparation Commission. Theselection of the Treaty of Versailles cited in the French reply provides, it was pointed out, that membership of commissions or committees set up by the Reparation Commission need not be composed of persons on the Reparation Commission itself.

In some respects the plan which the French have accepted is not unlike the commission of international bankers which inquired into the reparation question something over a year ago. Upon that commission J. P. Morgan was the American representative. It was named by the Reparation Commission and was purely advisory in capacity.

The advisory body to make the economic inquiry, it was stated, would be much broader in character and of greater international scope, since the United States would be participating officially. The situation with respect to reparations has also greatly changed. French occupation of the Ruhr has had a trial of nearly a year without effecting economic victory for France and passive resistance in the Ruhr has broken down, bringing the whole issue to the point now where the interested powers are in a more favorable attitude of mind.

Further facts regarding the sudden shift in the reparations situation were obtained in an official quarter today. Lord Curzon's note of the 13th inst. states that the British Government was already engaged in formulating an inquiry to the United States as to the manner in which, in the opinion of the latter, united action could best be brought about, "when he read in the press yesterday morning a declaration reported to have been made by President Coolidge that the American Government would rest on their proposal of last December."

Former Premier Lloyd George, who has just arrived from Europe, had delivered his speech of Oct. 9 at Ottawa, in which he asked the Allies to take up the Hughes plan now, saying that President Coolidge's statement that the proposal stood meant a new offer. Mr. Lloyd George had urged action both in his Ottawa speech and in an interview on his train.

On Oct. 12 inquiries at the White House brought the statement that President Coolidge could not take notice of statements made by an unofficial visitor, and it was made clear that the Washington Government would not enter into any arrangement of the character suggested by Mr. Lloyd George that was not put down in black and white.

This information was brought to the immediate attention of the British Government, with the result that Lord Curzon's communication of Oct. 18 was delivered on that date to Secretary Hughes by the British Embassy at Washington. Secretary Hughes replied in his aide memoire of Oct. 15.

Told Poincare in Advance.

After these notes had been exchanged, it was learned in an official quarter today, Secretary Hughes held an informal conversation with the French Counselor in Washington, and told him what had transpired. This information was immediately cabled by the French Embassy to Premier Poincaré.

Consequently the French Premier was aware of the new development in the situation some days prior to the publication this morning of the Hughes-Curzon correspondence. He was ready to give the answer of France immediately.

It was made manifest at the White House today that President Coolidge was pleased with the "favorable reaction" that has taken place. The statement was made by a White House spokesman, that with acceptance of the proposal, the next step will be the selection of the representatives of the interested Governments and their meeting in conference.

It was also stated in an official quarter that if Germany had thrown up her hands when the French first went into the Ruhr the working out of a plan of settlement would have been made imperative at that time. Passive resistance produced delay.

BRITAIN IS PLEASED THAT FRANCE AGREES

will have a distinctly valuable effect. After all, German society, it is argued, has been evincing a wonderful tensile strength amid most terribly trying conditions. It has stood up against an unparalleled currency confusion, has so far resisted the efforts of the separatists, and it should gain encouragement now at the prospect of a new inquiry into the true condition of its finances.

But it is also realized here, from recent British experience, that there is great danger that Germany will read into the American desire for a settlement an intention to save her from her just penalties. Great Britain has found it extraordinarily difficult to make the Germans understand that, because she thought the French were pushing them beyond what was economically wise, she was not prepared to forgive them all reparation payments, and it is quite likely that Washington will find the same perverse misunderstanding of its desire for justice and common sense.

Commenting on the new situation, The Daily News says:

"Mr. Hughes rightly points out that the question of Germany's capacity to pay the Allies is absolute, and is not conditioned by the question of the Allies' capacity to pay America, but he appears to admit by implication that the Allies' capacity—or the capacity of some of them—to pay America is to some extent conditioned by what they can get out of Germany.

"America's real point, we imagine, is that she will not be drawn into offers to reduce or remit the Allies' debts to her, as Britain suggested to them to remit or reduce the debt of Germany to themselves, and that it is an entirely understandable and even commendable attitude to adopt. Let the Allies, she says, make a just and reasonable settlement with Germany on the merits of the case. When they have done that, and not till then, she will discuss with them what they can reasonably offer and she reasonably accept. Yet the inter-relation of the two problems remains a very obvious and depressing fact for the Allies. The Frenchman says 'if Germany pays us we may be able to pay Britain and America; if she does not, we cannot. If we are to be made to pay, then we must make Germany pay.' He has tried to 'make' her pay, and so far has egregiously failed. That is why America's renewed recommendation of an alternative method is opportune."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"The prospect of American intervention, hedged about with reservations as it was, has caused M. Poincaré to move. Mr. Baldwin spoke of the statement of President Coolidge as though that had been the beginning of this promising event, but Secretary Hughes said practically the same thing as President Coolidge as long ago as December last. What has happened now might have happened then had the Government seized the chance, as Mr. Lloyd George urged it to do.

"There never has been a worse example of slow moving diplomacy, and it may be that the world will never again be straight, with the arrears that have accumulated in consequence of this delay.

"Poincaré has hedged his acceptance about with certain conditions which will be made clearer when his dispatch comes, but no conditions can really wholly destroy the utility of the conference, which now seems assured."

The Morning Post says:

"We were once told about the war that it was to end all wars, and we should like to hear of the conference that was to end all conferences. Lloyd George has gone, but alas! some of his tricks remain. This new inquiry will have only an advisory character. An American will probably be present, but, though his presence will be welcome, his status will be uncertain. He may be a member of the Government or he may be simply an eminent citizen who has been asked to drop in on those interesting deliberations in the course of 'doing' Europe, but whoever he be, there will be one subject which will be barred at that conference table and that is the subject of France's debt to America.

"Or if it be broached, the delegate or observer from Washington will probably rise from the table, as a virtuous lady leaves the drawing room when a risque anecdote is ventured.

"The American attitude is delightfully simple and commendably frank. Mr. Hughes says in so many words 'England and France can reduce their claims on Germany, but our claims on both remain fixed.'

"General Smuts and our British pro-Germans do not assail Mr. Hughes with invective for this businesslike attitude, but when M. Poincaré takes much the same line and puts the bailiff in the defaulter's house he is described almost as an assassin. An inquiry then, which cannot take into consideration the question of the interallied indebtedness, cannot really solve the reparation issue, though it may possibly reach some valuable conclusions conc

SEPARATISTS HIRE DESPERATE GANGS

BELGIANS FORBID DEFENSE

London Times Correspondent Says a "General Slaughter" Is Predicted Next Week in the Rhineland.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The London Times correspondent sends the following dispatch from Crefeld:

"In the ruined Rathaus I have just had the frankest confirmation from the lips of their leader that the Separatist movement is, as frequently stated, merely an attempt to tear the Rhinelanders away from their country by the employment of professional adventurers and crowds of roughs, mostly criminals. There are collected in this town hundreds of men of the very worst criminal type which I have ever seen among the Separatists. Their leader, a broad-shouldered man with a sly yet commanding manner, told me frankly he was a professional bandit leader.

"'I have nothing to do with politics,' he said. 'I am not a German, but a French citizen of Polish birth. My name no one knows. I am called the Captain.' (His adjutant told me, however, that his name was Captain Parsifal.) He continued: 'I was brought to the Rhineland three weeks ago to put this affair through by force and have been made commander in chief of the flying Rhine army. I have several thousand men under me, all armed to the teeth. We have machine guns, rifles, hand grenades and revolvers with unlimited ammunition. Frankly, the movement could not succeed otherwise.

"'I am no raw recruit at this sort of thing. It is my trade, as you will realize when I tell you I organized the whole of the troubles in Upper Silesia and have been concerned in similar affairs in other parts of the world. Discipline I learned years ago in the Prussian army, where I was once a regular officer, and it is more than Prussian discipline that I shall enforce on my rough crowd here. I arrived this morning from Düsseldorf to fortify this place, from which we shall proceed to overthrow the existing local authorities of all the Rhenish towns, while maintaining our hold on those we have seized. My subordinates are unduly nervous. Today, for instance, I was told that help was urgently needed at Duisburg, but fortunately the Belgians reassured me that all was going well for us. We have assured supplies of money by setting up our own printing press. Food is supplied to us from Düsseldorf. My orders come direct from Coblenz.

"'The type of men I have under me will fight for any one who will feed and pay them and desert to the other side when the pay stops. With us are a number of old comrades of mine, French secret agents from Upper Silesia, who fight in our ranks. Under me my men will stick at nothing. It is my trade to hold the roughest in the hollow of my hand.'

"'The Captain' then took me in one of the stolen Separatist motor cars to visit a 'parade.' In the school courtyard were drawn up 150 of the most dangerous looking roughs it ever has been my misfortune to encounter. Every type of criminal and degenerate was represented. I looked in vain for a single honest face. The Captain in Prussian parade tones addressed them as follows: 'Men of the flying army, I am your commander-in-chief and you will obey my every order absolutely. The Belgian delegate today complimented me on your discipline. See that it is maintained.'

"'No plundering or requisitioning without duly stamped authorization. I will shoot any one disobeying. Two plunderers already await sentence in the Rathaus. Look at me well. For you I am lord over life and death. Dismiss.'

"The Captain then asked me to withdraw while he gave instructions to his subordinates, as I subsequently learned, for an assault at München-Gladbach tonight.

"By another Separatist who has just returned from Paris and did not know me to be English I was told: 'I learn in Paris that the British will withdraw within four weeks from Cologne, which will then fall to us.'

"In München-Galdbach, which I visited earlier, I found such feeble preparations as the Belgians will allow being made to defend the seventeenth century Benedictine Monastery, which is today the Rathaus. Barbed-wire entanglements, sandbags and wire netting some protection over all windows furnished an ironic comment on the Benedictine motto, 'Pax in Trantibus.' Four days ago Separatists, after appointing two ex-convicts as Burgomaster and Police President, respectively, were ejected by the populace, but now things look black.

"'The Belgians forbid us to concentrate our police here,' I was told, 'and in any case we have only a firehose and limited number of rounds for our Browning pistols to oppose heavily armed assailants. How can this arming of a mob be tolerated by a High Commissoin in direct defiance of its own laws? When 200 business and professional men came to the Rathaus after the last attack, armed only with walking sticks to do what they could to defend the building, the Belgians arrested them all on a charge of conducting a political meeting and marched them to prison with their hands above their heads. They were only released yesterday.'

"In Coblenz last night the Separatists were escorted back to town by French gendarmes. From a journalist who visited them today I learn they are guarding every window of the Schloss with rifles and carbines—despite the fact that the High Commission whose ordinances forbid absolutely possession of weapons sits barely a stone's throw from the Schloss and despite British protests—and approaches are guarded by Moroccan troops.

"In Bonn this afternoon your special photographer, who tried to take a photograph of the Rathaus, where the Separatists are under the protection of French troops, was driven away and roughly handled by the latter. Another British press photographer was knocked down and injured, threatened with bayonets and his camera smashed by the French troops.

"Anarchy is already here. In Düsseldorf I passed through a street of great shops this afternoon, the windows of which had three minutes before been shattered by the unemployed. In Essen Krupps was attacked by unemployed and plundering is going on in many parts of the town as in Düsseldorf. Four people already have been killed in the former and one in the latter town. In every town and village outside the British area one sees closed and shuttered shops and hungry men muttering sullenly at street corners.

"In several districts people have been killed and wounded by Separatist gangs and every one expects a general slaughter next week. French and Belgian troops remain impassive except that they protect armed gangs everywhere from police interference.

"It is stated here that direct instructions have been received by the French and Belgian High Commissioners that at tomorrow's sitting of the High Commission they are formally to recognize the authors of Separatist Putsch as constituting the legal Government in the Rhineland. Lord Kilmarnock will, it is said, make a strong protest in the name of the British Government against such a violation of the Treaty of Versailles and of the Rhineland agreement."

STRESEMANN URGED TO CHECK SEPARATISTS

Chancellor Charges French and Belgian Support Violates Versailles Treaty.

BERLIN, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Political leaders close to the Government believe that Chancellor Stresemann is confronted with the immediate necessity of adopting a definite policy toward the Rhineland in view of the headway made by the Separatists during the last week.

Official quarters are inclined to admit that the secession movement is developing more strength despite what they term the heroic opposition of the German population.

The plan of having the Rhineland converted into an autonomous State within the German Republic was seriously discussed in the course of Dr. Stresemann's conference with the Ruhr and Rhineland leaders at Hagen last night. Lord Mayor Adenauer of Cologne and various political and industrial leaders urged upon the Chancellor and the Cabinet members who accompanied him the necessity of definite action by the Berlin Government in order to calm the apprehensions of the German populace.

Chancellor Stresemann in his speech at Hagen last night, said the Separatist movement in the Rhineland was against the unanimous wishes of the German inhabitants, who would have put it down speedily but for the support of the French and Belgian bayonets. The Chancellor added that the tacit recognition of the republicans by the Franco-Belgian occupation forces was the worst kind of breach of the solemn promises contained in the various interallied treaties.

Passive resistance, Dr. Stresemann asserted, showed that millions of people, despite the greatest distress, had remained faithful to powerless Germany, but that now, with poverty threatening them, the blame for their troubles lay wholly with France, which had acted contrary to the treaties.

Chancellor Stresemann asserted that Germany had reached the end of her economic strength, but that her rights must no longer be infringed.

"In this connection," the Chancellor declared, "one of the big allied powers is at one with Germany on the question of the legality of the Ruhr occupation. The moral honor of all the Allies is engaged. A decision as to whether the Rhineland and the Ruhr belong to Germany must soon be taken."

Dr. Stresemann expressed the hope that as a result of Wednesday's conversations in Berlin the differences between Bavaria and the Reich would be composed.

Naturally the Reich was taking a hand, he said, to see that the German Palatinate remained with Bavaria. The German Government had already protested to France against the conduct of a French General there which was a breach of the peace treaty, and it would also protest to the other powers.

Discussing Germany's economic situation the Chancellor asserted that the German Government had turned to the charitable institutions of the whole world with an appeal for intervention so as to prevent starvation in the occupied territory.

"In reparations," he continued, "Germany has perhaps already delivered more than she ought to have, if she had considered the German people. Nevertheless, the Government is prepared to make further sacrifices for Germany's freedom. In a choice between freedom and occupation, the freedom-loving German people will always decide for the former.

"So long, however, as the Rhine and Ruhr are cut off from Germany, she can only make her deliveries with great difficulty."

GERMANY PRINTS 'DOLLARS.'

Substitute for Gold Currency Will Be Issued Today.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—Germany is having today the worst money shortage in its history. It has become a physical impossibility to produce enough paper marks to supply the insistent demand. Work has accordingly been hastened on printing the so-called new dollar currency, which will be sprung on the hopeful public tomorrow.

Particularly has work been rushed on the smaller denominations of this emergency substitute for gold currency. The basis and framework of this is the late so-called dollar loan, which was floated to finance passive resistance in the Ruhr. Only one-quarter of the issue was actually subscribed at the time.

The new gold dollar notes can be bought by all comers with paper marks at the day's official rate of the paper mark to the real dollar. They will be offered for sale over the counters at banks, the State having the supreme interest of getting them into circulation.

Germany's new "dollar bill" is printed on brown paper and is of the same size as the new ten billion paper mark note. On its face it bears the words: "Schatzanweisung des Duetchen Reiches" and underneath "4.20 gold marks equals one dollar." Underneath it is printed that these Treasury notes are redeemable with an additional premium of 70 per cent. of the face value on Sept. 2, 1933.

The smallest new dollar currency is 10 cents, on blue paper of the size of the one mark "shinplasters", familiar to Americans in Germany in 1919 and 1920. Other fractional denominations of the same size are printed on white paper and are for 25 and 50 cents.

WIEDFELDT FEARS FAMINE IN GERMANY

Thousands Will Starve and Freeze to Death This Winter, Says the Ambassador.

HAS FAITH IN REPUBLIC

Neither Separatists Nor Monarchists Can Triumph, He Declares —Hugo Stinnes Jr. Arrives.

Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, German Ambassador to the United States, returned yesterday on the Resolute of the United American Lines from his trip to Berlin, where he handed in the treaty of amity and commerce drawn up by the State Department in Washington for the approval of the German Foreign Office. The Ambassador said that the treaty had been favorably considered and he had left it in Berlin for signing and then the document would be sent over for ratification in Washington.

He told reporters on the ship that Germany was unable at this time to pay any reparations, that the Separatist movement would not succeed and that any monarchist rising would be a failure. The German Republic will stand and the Stresemann Cabinet will remain in power for some time, in the opinion of Dr. Wiedfeldt.

"The German people feel strongly what must happen during the coming Winter and shudder like a sick man in fever," said the Ambassador. "There is a hard Winter before the German people and thousands of them will starve.

"If the mines in the Ruhr district were worked to their utmost limit the coal delivery would be about the same as it was before the French invasion. The German bankers and business firms are not sending their money out of the country in large amounts. The new Government is trying hard to create a new stabilized currency, as you all know.

"When I left Germany there were several schemes under discussion and I can only hope that one of these will soon be realized. But even then the German people will not be secure against starvation. There will be a shortage of coal in every part of Germany. If the Winter is a severe one many families will be frozen to death.

"All over Germany the great relief work which the United States citizens, especially those of German descent, have been carrying on is greatly appreciated. It has saved thousands of women and children who would otherwise lie under the green turf. While the relief work can and is doing a great deal in Germany it cannot cope with the amount of distress among the people this Winter, as I am sorry to say that it will be beyond any expectation."

With regard to the application made by the ex-Crown Prince to return to Germany, the Ambassador said that it was not with a desire to start a monarchist movement but simply a natural feeling of any man to be with his family instead of being cooped up on a small island in the Zuyder Zee with fishermen and seaweed. He denied that he had discussed a possible German loan while he was abroad, and said that it depended entirely upon the good will of the American bankers. "I don't believe that a loan could be floated in Germany until after the reparations question has been settled," he said.

Another passenger on the Resolute was Hugo Stinnes Jr., the second son of the German industrial king, who has come to spend four weeks in the United States looking over business conditions. His wife accompanied him. He refused to talk to reporters, but he had carefully prepared a brief statement for the reporters, which he had typewritten and handed to the agent of his firm who met him for approval before giving it out. It read:

"It is the first time in my life that I am coming to the United States. My house has several connections in the United States. The reason for my coming over is to meet my business friends and to get a personal impression of your famous country, from which I have heard so much."

The Resolute brought 170 saloon, 400 cabin and 408 third-class passengers and mails.

SHIPS AVOID HAMBURG.

Strike Forces Them to Go to Cuxhaven and Dutch Ports.

HAMBURG, Oct. 26.—The harbor strike here is forcing numerous steamers to tie up at Cuxhaven, at the mouth of the Elbe. Other steamers are turning about for Dutch ports.

The American liner Manchuria has been unable to discharge here her 7,000 tons of cargo, principally foodstuffs. The steamer Orduna has halted at Cuxhaven and will depart without discharging her cargo. The vessel will take on emigrants at Cuxhaven.

£100,000,000 IN OFFERS FOR ROTHERMERE STOCK

Subscriptions for £8,000,000 Financing Exceed Issue Five Times on the First Day.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—It is announced that subscriptions for the stock issue of £8,000,000 for financing the amalgamation of the Rothermere and Hulton newspapers reached a total of £100,000,000.

Whatever financial distress Great Britain is suffering, there appears to be plenty of money awaiting investment. Subscriptions for the newspaper flotation were received on Monday and on the same day a South African Government loan of £9,000,000 was put on the market. The two projects differed in character, the newspaper loan bearing 7 per cent. interest and the Government issue 5 per cent. Subscriptions for the newspaper shares on the first day were five times the amount of the issue, while the South African loan was fully subscribed early Tuesday.

Altogether, nearly £30,000,000 in new securities have been absorbed in London so far this month.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Pall Mall Gazette announces tonight its suspension under the form of amalgamation with The Evening Standard. Its last independent issue will be tomorrow night.

This leaves London with only three evening newspapers, The Evening Standard, The Evening News and The Star. The first two are controlled respectively by Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Rothermere, who have in the past month entered into financial association with each other. Consequently the only independent evening newspaper is The Star, which is of radical opinions.

ITALY HALVES NUMBER OF DRINKING PLACES

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 26.—Premier Mussolini's latest law against the excessive use of alcoholic beverages goes into effect today. This law provides that the number of shops selling beer, wine or any other alcoholic drink shall not exceed the proportion of one to 1,000 inhabitants, and that the sale of intoxicants shall continue only from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M.

A certain amount of adverse criticism has been aroused, because many see in the law the thin end of the wedge of prohibition, active propaganda for which has been going on for some time. Italy is a land of wine. It is true that official statistics show that only 600 people die each year from the effects of alcohol, which works out at something like sixteen per million inhabitants. The Government, on theo ther hand, justifies its course of action by pointing out that the statistics of death from the effects of alcohol do not include those cases in which death is really caused by excessive drinking.

It is interesting to note that of the 600 deaths yearly from excessive drinking by far the largest proportion is in the industrial north of Italy, while the deaths from this cause in the wine-producing south are comparatively rare. Thus, in the provinces of Vicenza and Belluno such deaths are in the respective proportions of 5 and 4¼ to every 100,000 inhabitants, while there are none in Sicily and Calabria.

Service is to be opened from Southampton by the Columbus, of 33,000 tons, built last year, which will maintain monthly service until March, when she will be joined by the Munsen, of 14,400 tons, and the Stuttgart, of 13,325 tons.

MONTANA MINES CUT PAY.

Reduction of 50 Cents a Day Announced in Three Centres.

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 26.—Notices of a fifty-cent reduction in the day's pay, effective Nov. 1, were posted at all mining properties in Butte, Anaconda and Great Falls today. The wage cut affects all working on day pay and contract workers. It is estimated that 14,000 men are affected.

High cost of production and low price of metals are given as the reason for the reduction in wages.

BALDWIN'S VIEWS ON TARIFF A PUZZLE

British Are Waiting to Learn if He Favors Radical Change in Fiscal System.

TALK OF GENERAL ELECTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The expression of views on Premier Baldwin's declaration in favor of protecting home products waits upon fuller elucidation of his intentions. If it only implies protecting the wool and steel industries, which are endangered by competition from countries favored by low exchanges, it may be accomplished without great difficulties.

It would in that case mean only an extension of the scope of the Safeguarding Industries act, but if the Premier had in mind anything like such change in the fiscal system as is usually connoted by protection he would certainly find that he was called upon to go slow, even by those who are by no means wedded to extreme free trade ideas. Thus, in the past week, The London Times and J. L. Garvin in The Observer have insisted upon the necessity of educating the country at large to the changed conditions which have made the institution of protective duties necessary.

Meanwhile Mr. Baldwin's speech and the brief remarks made at Plymouth by Nevil Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, have revived the rumors of an impending general election. The Premier has acknowledged that the present Government is bound by Mr. Bonar Law's pledge of no substantial change in the fiscal system without an appeal to the electorate, and it is clear that if the Government is to introduce a sweeping scheme, it must go to the country.

It is suggested that, if it is decided to do this, the most likely time would be the early Summer of next year. The budget would be out of the way, and there is some hope of a sufficient revival of trade to favor the success of the Ministry at the polls.

The parliamentary correspondent of The London Times writes:

"On Thursday night Mr. Baldwin was cheered to the echo when he declared his belief that the home markets must be protected. Yesterday some of those who had cheered were the sentiment asking what exactly was meant by it. Did the Prime Minister mean the considerable extension of protection afforded by the Safeguarding of Industries act, to be followed after this preliminary period by the addition of a general system of protective tariffs, or did he intend at once to ask the country to release him from the Bonar Law pledge, which he meantime regards as binding? The Prime Minister's speech by itself did not indicate his intention. Having made his declaration, he passed to other subjects.

"It is necessary, therefore, to take in conjunction with it the speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, delivered after he had heard what the Prime Minister had to say. Mr. Chamberlain stated definitely that the Government might find it necessary to ask the country before next Winter to free it from the pledge. It was generally assumed in Ministerial circles yesterday that Mr. Chamberlain's speech implied a definite decision on the part of the Cabinet to go to the country on the question of tariff reform, and it is already obvious that there is to be a great struggle between those who want an early election and those who believe that an appeal to the country should be deferred until as late as possible next year.

"As far as one can gather, the view of the organizers of the Unionist Party is against an early election. They feel that the country is not yet ready for another election, and reports from most of the constituencies have been against precipitate appeal. Most members of Parliament seem to feel that an early election would be inadvisable unless it is regarded by the leaders as absolutely essential.

"One point which it is understood the Prime Minister will develop immediately is that of a tax on food. He did not refer specifically to the question at Plymouth, but it is believed he will take a very early opportunity to give assurance that it is not proposed to put any direct tax on food. When the Government's agricultural program is revealed, the home farmer may be helped by a system of State subsidies but no system of direct food tax is contemplated."

BOVES LOSE THEIR SUIT FOR FRENCH MILLIONS

Court of Appeals Declares Forged the Will on Which Chicagoans Based Claims.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—Mathieu Bove, the Chicago gardener, and his sisters will not receive the 7,000,000 francs from the estate of the French junkman, Jules Prieur, for which they have been suing in the French courts for the last eleven years. The Court of Appeals, to which the case was recently carried, today decided that the will on which the suit was based was a forgery.

Charles G. Loeb, the American lawyer who pressed the Boves' suit, said tonight that the case would not be carried to the Court of Cassation; so today's decision saw the end of the Boves' hopes, if not the end of a mystery which perhaps will never be solved.

The will, which is alleged to have been made by Prieur's wife, who was a sister of Bove, was acknowledged by the principal handwriting experts in France to be authentic. Even Dr. Locard, chief of the police technical laboratory in Lyons, who is acknowledged in France to be the world's greatest authority on handwriting, testified to the genuineness of the document. His testimony, however, went for naught before medical testimony showing that Mme. Prieur, who was suffering from cancer, was unable to write at the time the will was dated.

Mr. Loeb said tonight: "If the document is a forgery, it was written by the most capable forger the world has yet produced."

CURES CATTLE DISEASE.

French Vaccination Method Stops Hoof and Mouth Epidemic.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The mortality rate among cattle due to the foot and mouth disease, which has reached as high as 60 per cent., can be reduced to between two or three per thousand by means of the vaccination methods perfected by Professor Vallee of the Alfortville Agricultural Research Laboratory, the Minister of Agriculture, M. Cheron, was told during a visit to the laboratory today.

An epidemic attacked the cattle in the Somme district, killing 600 within a few weeks. Professor Vallee's methods of hemo-prevention and aphthisation, which he discovered in 1921, were applied. The first of these methods consists of injection of the blood of an animal recently cured, and the second an injection of a small quantity of blood from an animal still suffering from the disease.

As the aphthavirus is found to differ according to regions, veterinaries from every department in France will take a course at Alfortville with a view to introducing the methods in their departments later. Professor Vallee is convinced that mortality from this disease is preventable.

VORONOFF OPERATES ON FRENCH RACEHORSE

Old-Time Winner Will Be Entered for Longchamps Next Year if the Experiment Succeeds.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—Dr. Voronoff's latest patient is a race horse. A gland operation was performed this morning, and, according to reports, the horse is doing well. He will not be out, however, for two weeks. In the meantime a group of surgeons will give bulletins on his progress.

The name of the horse has not been revealed; all the public can know at present is that in his youth he won eight races and was placed in fifteen others.

The newspaper Liberté provided the funds for the operation, which was performed at the Alfort Medical School, four doctors assisting at it and a score witnessing it.

The idea of "Voronizing" an animal is not new. Dr. Voronoff's first success was in the treatment of an aged ram, which today, despite its twenty years, is youthful-appearing and vigorous. Only recently the surgeon has undertaken, by the use of his famous scalpel, to increase France's wool production 1,000 per cent.

FRENCH OPENLY AID RHINELAND REBELS

Government over night, they also saw French troops guarding all the public buildings which had been occupied during the night by the Separatists under the cover of the curfew law. French cavalry patrols later galloped through the streets scattering little crowds of towns people whose attitude expressed hostility to the new Government.

The Separatists' provisional police force, although not yet supplied with uniforms, blossomed out in brand new green armbands as a sign of authority, but the real policing was done by the French troops, the green-capped Republicans merely looking on and seeing how it was done.

Only a few minor disorders occurred, including the tearing down of the Rhinelanders' flag from the Post Office by a group of Loyalist youngsters, but the population was in a state of tenseness, the whole situation giving the appearance that trouble might break out soon.

The general attitude of the population toward the new "Government" may be illustrated by the expression, "If only the Americans were here again," which is heard everywhere.

French Report Lack of Support.

The French communiqué issued at noon says, concerning the situation at Wiesbaden:

"The Separatist committees continued to occupy the public buildings, thanks to the influence exercised by the French superior delegate on the Interallied Commission. The population of the Wiesbaden and Briedrich district is extremely exasperated against the methods and activities of certain employes of the Separatists, who have made illegal requisitions and perpetrated some pillaging in the name of the party which they certainly have not represented but whose authority was thus compromised.

"Such incidents illustrate the lack of direction and authority from which the Separatist chiefs in Wiesbaden seem to suffer. On the whole the population, according to the information of the superior delegate and military authorities, shows itself as opposed not to the autonomous movement but the present directors of this movement."

Further along the communiqué says: "The situation in Mayence is analogous to Wiesbaden's so far as lack of authority and place in public esteem of the chiefs of the movement are concerned. The superior delegate is doing everything possible to enlarge the movement, as at Trier (Treves) and Bonn, by cooperation of the elements of order."

The communiqué gives few details of the events in the various parts of the Rhineland, where it is known that the Separatists have not had smooth sailing, and since all the German newspapers here have been suppressed, little news giving the German viewpoint has reached Coblenz.

After retaking the provincial Government Building and Post Office here, the provisional Separatist Government, headed by Joseph Matthes, paid a visit to Colonel Philippe, the French delegate on the High Commission. On leaving the Colonel's office Matthes gave out a statement to the effect that the republicans had handed the Rhineland Commission a declaration requesting recognition of their régime in Coblenz, promising to respect the authority of the occupation forces and to adopt a conciliatory attitude toward such inhabitants as have not yet rallied to their movement. The statement continues:

"Taking Coblenz for a base, we will continue to strengthen our situation, peacefully if possible; but, as by the fault of Berlin we were obliged to shed our blood at Aix-la-Chapelle and Crefeld, we are resolved to use force if necessary.

"Out of deference to the curfew regulation, we suspended action (last evening), but from 6 o'clock this morning we will proceed with further occupations."

The first step, the statement said, would be the organization of a police force, armed as were the blue police. The Separatists are prepared to work harmoniously with officials and judges who recognize the movement and will accept the service of policemen who are ready to swear fidelity to the republic. The statement concludes:

"The majority of the members of the Provisional Government at present are here, but a certain number of our colleagues have already left to help develop the movement at Bonn. Trèves (Trier) and Duisburg. We are full of confidence in the success of our undertaking."

250 Casualties at Duisburg.

DUISBURG, Oct. 26.—The Rhineland Separatists, strongly seconded by the Belgian troops, now completely control Duisburg and Ruhrort at the junction of the Rivers Rhine and Ruhr, after a bloody battle lasting five days.

Up to 10 o'clock this morning, when the Separatists won their last battle over 3,000 poorly armed Communists and Trade Unionists, between forty-five and fifty had been killed and more than 200 wounded.

About 2,000 fresh Separatist troops arrived from Crefeld today and began the last battle, which ended with the Separatists masters of the city.

French and Belgians Supply Guards.

BERLIN, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—The Rhineland Separatists are reported to have gained a footing in the Eifel hills, seising the office of the Burgomaster, seising the office of the Burgomaster of Gerolstein (about 45 miles Southwest of Coblenz).

Authority there is now in the hands of civic guards, composed of vagrants and unemployed, the majority of whom are said to have been released from the service of the Franco-Belgium régime for the purpose.

French Delegates As Intermediary.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—A Düsseldorf dispatch to the Havas agency says that all orders given by the Separatist leaders at Bonn Pass through a French delegate. This delegate is declared to have succeeded in adding to the Separatist committee a number of members of the Bourgeois parties and merchants to handle the district's economic affairs.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

FRANKFORT, Oct. 26.—Separatists seized the Mayence offices of the Rhineland High Commission today, then the Mayence police who quit yesterday returned to duty. A French soldier was accidentally killed at Wiesbaden by Separatists today, being mistaken for a German policeman. A general strike began today.

Disorders in Belgian Zone.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 26.—Turbulence at several points in the Belgian zone of the Rhineland is reported in dispatches from that region today. Pillaging has occurred at Emmerich, near the Dutch frontier of the Rhineland. At Neuss, southwest of Düsseldorf, the Separatists met with opposition and were prevented from establishing themselves. At Montjoie, southeast of Aix-la-Chapelle, where the Republicans had been ejected, they returned and again seized the local government and disarmed the police, who continued to do duty under direction of the Separatists.

München-Gladbach is still in a state of ferment and a company of Belgian troops with machine guns has been sent to maintain order.

Armed Reception Committee at Neuss.

NEUSS, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Extensive preparations for the reception of the Separatists are being made here. The special reception committee consists of the Burgomaster, the Chief of Police and his force and several hundred citizens, many of whom have arms.

If the Separatists arrive they will be met at the edge of the town by guards who are on duty day and night along all the roads. These men have telephone connections with Police Headquarters, where food and beer enough to last many weeks have been stored in the event that the Republicans endeavor to corner the town's defenders.

All the outer streets have been barricaded and trenches have been dug at strategic points. The burgomaster says he will fight to the finish if the secessionists come.

ROOSEVELT HOUSE DEDICATION TODAY

FULL OF HIS MEMENTOES

The birthplace of Theodore Roosevelt at 28 East Twentieth Street, purchased and restored as a permanent memorial to the former President by the Women's Roosevelt Memorial Association, is to be dedicated today—his birthday. Tomorrow it will be thrown open to the public, replete with exhibits touching on his life from birth to death.

The dedicatory ceremonies will be held at 3 o'clock in a small auditorium on the fourth floor of the home. In this room, where Roosevelt probably played in boyhood, men and women in public life, including Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, his son, will pay tribute to his energy, genius and accomplishments. Among those scheduled to participate in the program are Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who was Chief Forester when Roosevelt was President; James R. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior in the Roosevelt Cabinet; Elihu Root, Mrs. John Henry Hammond, Mrs. Charles A. Bryan, Bishop Manning, Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle and the Rev. Dr. M. Eisenberg. Messages from President Coolidge and Major Gen. Leonard Wood will be read.

In anticipation of a throng of Roosevelt admirers which will exceed the capacity of the auditorium, arrangements have been made to rope off Twentieth Street a block around the house. Amplifiers will carry the addresses to those within this square.

Tonight twenty-two speakers will talk over the radio to listeners in thirteen States on the life and work of Colonel Roosevelt. Oscar S. Straus, a Cabinet officer in the Roosevelt Administration, will make an address tomorrow afternoon and the Sixteenth Infantry Band will play when the home is opened to the public.

Aviators from Mitchel Field, recalling the supreme sacrifice made by Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, youngest son of the Colonel, who was killed in an air battle in France, will drop flowers at the grave of the elder Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and fly over the birthplace in formation, executing a "dip" as tribute. Captain Charles Nungesser, French ace, will fly in the formation with Major William Hensley Jr., Commandant of Mitchel Field.

Roosevelt House is divided into two distinct buildings, which have been connected. No. 28 West Twentieth Street in its exterior and the first two floors is an exact restoration of the house as it was when Colonel Roosevelt was born on Oct. 27, 1858. The adjoining house, No. 26, was acquired to house exhibition rooms and offices.

The parlor of the home itself contains the original furniture, and the dining room table is that used by the family of the Colonel. This room and the library are furnished for the most part with reproductions of the original furniture. The front bedroom, where Colonel Roosevelt was born, is furnished with the original bedroom set, family portraits decorating the walls. The nursery at the rear has some originals. The library has many first editions, many of them autographed, of Colonel Roosevelt's books. The roof is given over to a garden where lunches and dinners will be served.

BLASCO IBANEZ ARRIVES.

Spanish Author a Passenger on the Mauretania.

The Cunarder Mauretania arrived yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg with 955 passengers, 10,400 sacks of mail and 89 boxes of gold specie containing $3,115,000.

Thomas W. Whittle, Surveyor of the Port, went to Quarantine on the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Manhattan to meet S. Parker Gilbert Jr., Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and took him to the foot of West Fourteenth Street, North River, whence he drove to the Pennsylvania station and proceeded to Washington.

Another passenger was Alice Muriel Astor, daughter of the late John Jacob Astor, who inherited $5,000,000 of his estate when she came of age last August. She was met at the pier by Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor. Vicente Blasco Ibañez, the Spanish author of "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," arrived on the Mauretania and expects to leave on Nov. 15 for a voyage around the world on the Cunarder Franconia.

Before leaving Paris, he said, he had completed a new novel, "La Reina Calafia," to appear first in Spanish and three months later in English. Mr. Ibanez said he would write a book on his voyage round the world.

"Spain is tranquil now," he said, "but some day there will be a revolution. The military Government will not last and I think that the King weakened his position with the people all over the country by giving in to the military dictators without the slightest struggle on his part.

"All Spaniards belong to one political party or another, and it is a mistake for the King not to have any strong political views. He is not popular with the people and I hope one day to see Spain under a republican form of government."

MAY INVOKE COURTS TO OUST STRATON

29 Members Suspended From Calvary Baptist Church Consider Legal Action.

The possibility of a court fight on the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church at 123 West Fifty-seventh Street, by some or all of the twenty-nine suspended members of the congregation was suggested yesterday by some of them.

"When a man is summarily ousted by the Board of Deacons after a star chamber proceeding his suspension is an attack on his reputation and may affect him socially and in business," said George Leask, a banker, of 52 William Street and leader of the opposition to Dr. Straton. "Therefore a suspended member might well consider that he has been libeled, particularly in view of the contents of a letter sent out by Dr. Straton. Whether there will be any move in the courts cannot be known until the names of the suspended members are made known. Then it will be for them to determine whether they will unite in action. I believe I have been suspended, but I have received no official notification."

Dr. Straton said yesterday that at the weekly meeting next Wednesday evening the names would be read to the congregation.

Mr. Leask made known yesterday the contents of a letter mailed last Monday by Dr. Straton to members of the congregation urging their attendance at the meeting two nights later. It was at this meeting that announcement was made that suspensions had been voted. Eleven other members withdrew from the church at the meeting.

The letter said in part:

"The last conspiracy to embarrass and even destroy the present pastorate, while the pastor was absent on vacation, overshot the mark. The conspirators, like Haman, have hung themselves on the very gallows they so carefully prepared for others. The way in which the conspiracy was secretly worked up by a little handful of defeated, discredited and disgruntled people has demonstrated to the entire membership just how cowardly and unworthy this feeble opposition is."

The letter went on to say that the alleged conspirators had planned to call a meeting for Sept. 12 to oust Dr. Straton, secretly notifying only those opposed to him.

"If this conspiracy had succeeded, it would not only have wrecked my pastorate here but it would have ruined me so far as my entire future ministry is concerned," the letter went on. "What other church would ever have called a preacher who had thus been dismissed and discredited? Fortunately, this cowardly and contemptible conspiracy utterly failed. Despite the fact that these nefarious schemes were concocted so secretly and guarded with such care, these evil plans came to the attention of one of the loyal friends in a way that was manifestly directed by the Lord.

"I have had to oppose some former officeholders whose records were bad. I have had to oppose some who were formerly leaders of the young people's work, but who were more regular in attendance at theatres than at the sanctuary, and who were more noted for their physical graces in the dance than for their spiritual grace in the prayer meeting testimonies and the general work of the church. I have had to oppose a few spoiled ladies, who were given to ordering people out of the pews if dress and social status did not measure up to their un-Christian and pagan ideas, and a few others obsessed with a mania for social climbing and still others whose greatest enthusiasm seemed to be for showy and unspiritual musical services in the sanctuary and for pink teas in the Lord's house even on the Sabbath day. I had to advocate changes in connection with the musical program and personnel when it was discovered that the building of our new organ system had not been directed in a really competent and successful way, when the spiritual lives of some of the young people were being paralyzed by flippancy and worldliness through these influences, when the young people's work was being broken up, and when even the good name of the church was being endangered through the folly and wrong of it all. Because of these and other like conditions and customs I have had to fight the disgusting and menacing sensualism of the modern dance and the commercialized, girl-destroying theatre of today."

LABEL VICIOUS HORSES.

Germans Placard Kickers and Biters in Heidelberg Streets.

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Oct. 26.—Any kicking or biting Missouri mule which, after seeing service with the A. E. F., might some day find himself in this locality would soon be greatly humiliated, if he can think along the lines he is sometimes supposed to think. A law has been put into effect specifying that any dangerous animal going about the public streets must be placarded.

Some of the German horses, apparently with dispositions generally accredited to the aforesaid army mule, mope about the streets, hauling their respective loads, and upon either side of their backs are signs reading: "Look out—this horse kicks," or "Danger—this animal bites!"

BRITAIN ACCEPTS THE 12-MILE LIMIT

is willing to co-operate with our Government to combat it.

"Secondly, it will be a decided deterrent because it will make the rum-running by the small boats in transporting the liquor to shore more dangerous and more costly, with much greater likelihood of being seized.

"Thirdly, it will enable the Government properly to patrol and cover coasts contiguous to New York, and other places of smuggling, with greater effectiveness and fewer boats, at less cost than would otherwise be required."

Mr. Canfield said further that the smuggling of liquor along the waterfront was now on the decline, due to the approach of cold weather and the closing of the Summer resorts, which, he said, provided a good market for the bootleggers. The rum fleet lying twelve miles off the Jersey coast varied in number from day to day, ranging from six to sixteen tankers at a time, he said, most of the vessels being of British registry.

PLAN TO SEIZE LINERS VIOLATING LIQUOR LAW

Washington Hears Many Vessels Secrete Stocks in Port and Use Them Going Home.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Renewed violations in New York of the Supreme Court's ship liquor ruling have been reported to the Department of Justice and are being investigated with a view to possible seizure of the vessels involved.

Officials here decline to disclose the registry of these ships, which are said to have been promptly opening up their bars and selling liquor as soon as they cross the three-mile limit on their eastward voyages. This is done without stopping and without time to obtain liquor from rum runners hovering off New York, and is regarded by officials here as prima facie evidence that liquor was retained aboard illegally while the ships were in American waters.

The present investigation of the Department of Justice, officials said today, is designed to obtain concrete evidence of secret retention by ships of their bar supplies upon entering New York. If the evidence is obtained, responsible officials declared, seizure proceedings will be instituted.

When the new regulations were put into effect last Summer seizures were confined to the liquor brought in by foreign ships, with abeyance of forfeiture proceedings against the vessels themselves. A threat to seize the offending ships was made, and the shipping lines then announced they would obey the law.

The Department of Justice has received recently an official report of the case of the German ship Cleopatra, seized last June for bringing liquor into British territorial waters, secreted in her bunkers. The ship was declared forfeited, although its officials declared the liquor was destined for Antwerp. This decision is cited by officials as a precedent supporting any similar procedure by this Government which may be necessary against British ships.

Agents of both the Department of Justice and the State Department also have been investigating the operations of Lieut. Col. Sir Brodrick Hartwell of London, who has been advertising in newspapers for funds to finance shipments of liquor to the American coast for transfer to rum runners. A report from the American Embassy at London on Sir Brodrick's enterprise has been transmitted by the State Department to the Department of Justice, showing that Sir Brodrick promised financial backers profits of 20 per cent. in sixty days.

In their inquiry the Government agents have uncovered in addition some evidences of what officials say appears to be an "extensive campaign" by British distillers to sell liquor for American consumption. Identity of the distillers reported concerned and of their American agents is being sought by the Justice Department.

The Servants of Relief for Incurable Cancer are trying to hold up a corner of charity which has been allowed to sag, the care of cancerous poor who can pay nothing, who are now somewhat regarded but chiefly as the companions of experimented quadrupeds. The destitute afflicted with cancer are men and women, young people and children, who have not lost any of their sensitiveness or perceptions by the disease, and very often are endowed with a great deal of both by nature and past advantages. A few glimpses back into history can show that cruelty is not confined to 1923, but that inhumanity has been the dirk of power since Cain and Nero used it. Yet the Standard of Christ has always been in the thick of difficulties to assert pity. This is to say, that the Sisternurses who are nursing the poor who are to die of cancer, and who are obliged to be beggars for them, wish to prevent suffering and sorrow for them that need not be endured. They ask for gifts to build an adequately comfortable and safe Home at Hawthorne, Westchester County, N. Y., because that would be a vigorous step toward offsetting the present situation of cancerous poor, which is too sad for description here. The new Rosary Hill Home has been begun with fireproof materials, and will soon house 25 men and women in a first portion. But the main Home will need a large fund to draw upon, if it is to be completed.

SENATE TO ARRAIGN WALTON ON NOV. 1

Oklahoma Impeachment Court Will Set Trial Date on Hearing Governor's Plea.

ALL 22 CHARGES APPROVED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Governor J. C. Walton late today was ordered to trial before a Senate court of impeachment on Nov. 1 on official misconduct charges presented by the lower house of the State Legislature.

The Senate set the trial date to conform to the law allowing the Governor six days in which to file his answer to the allegations and enter a plea. It was said, however, that should the Executive reply to the charges beforehand, the trial immediately would be started.

Date for the arraignment was set immediately after a board of House managers had presented to the court a bill embodying twenty-two charges, the entire number drafted by the House Committee on Investigation and Impeachment.

The eight articles approved today charge the Governor with issuing State police commissions to large numbers of "irresponsible persons," censoring the press, issuing illegal deficiency certificates on two occasions, falsifying his primary campaign expenses, abuse of the pardon and parole powers, receiving funds from various sources for his personal use, and general incompetency.

Charges Passed by Heavy Vote.

The entire twenty-two charges were approved with heavy majorities except Article 14, charging that the Governor refused to permit capital punishment laws to be carried out. This charge was approved by a vote of 51 to 42. The article charging him with abridging the freedom of the press was sustained, 82 to 7, the largest number of votes cast for any article.

The testimony read today related to the charges involving censorship of the press, the issuance of a deficiency certificate for a State home for negro orphans and campaign expenses.

Consideration of the charge that Governor Walton had collected large sums for his primary campaign expenses in addition to the amount he reported drew from Representative Gibbons, Democrat, a bitter denunciation of those who buy public office.

"I hope the vote on this article will establish a precedent that will strike terror to every man who rides to office on a pocketbook," Gibbons shouted. "I don't care if that man is the Governor or a constable."

Gibbons, former Speaker of the House and stanch supporter of Governor Walton, left observers in a quandary as to the significance of his remarks. Some thought their indicated he had deserted the Governor's cause, while others regarded them as indicating that an attempt might be made by the Governor's forces to start an investigation of other State officers along this line.

Walton Bitterly Denounced.

Some of the bitterest words of the session were heard just before the vote on the final article of the bill, alleging general incompetence.

Representative Miller, Democrat, Tulsa, urging approval of the article, declared that "after ten months of Governor Walton's administration, begun under the most auspicious circumstances in the State's history, we find a great State disgraced, a treasury looted, a government corrupted."

"We have passed through an inferno," Miller said. "But the morning is here and this Legislature will be reviewed in history as a Legislature that had the courage to beard the lion in his den and stop this man in his career."

His remarks were concluded amid loud applause.

Representatives Vernon, Saltsman and Harper, Democrats, were named by Speaker McBee as the House members of the joint committee to investigate activities of the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahome. Speaker McBee said that one of the members is a Catholic and that he had been assured the other two are not Klansmen.

BIG-NAVY BILL FAILS IN DUTCH CHAMBER

Lower House of Parliament Rejects the Government Measure by 50 to 49.

CABINET LIKELY TO RESIGN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 26.—The Second Chamber this afternoon rejected the Government's bill for a larger navy, the vote being 50 to 49.

The resignation of the Cabinet is considered imminent, since the Premier has declared its intention to stand or fall with the navy bill.

There was cheering by the members of the Left from the crowded galleries when the result of the vote was announced, for up to the last minute the result seemed very uncertain. Only one of the 100 members was massing, and if he had been present it might have been a draw. Crowds stood outside all the afternoon, and the members of the Left parties were received with hat-waving and cheers as they emerged from the Chamber.

The throwing out of the bill came as a great surprise in many quarters, where up to a few days ago it was expected that Catholic votes would assure it a majority. Five of the Ministers fought for the bill to the end. The Foreign Minister laid particular stress on Holland's international obligations in the Far East, but was continually interrupted. He urged that the new navy program would by no means overstep the limitations set by the Washington Naval Treaty, or be in opposition to the purposes of the coming conference at Geneva, to which the Netherlands had been invited.

Speaking of the League of Nations, he referred the opposition parties to Article VIII. of the League covenant, dealing with armament and national security. He also quoted his declaration made at the Washington conference: "We have interests in the Far East, but are not parties in the Pacific," and he argued that while Europe was in a state of latent war and aggressive commercial policy, even the World Court could not be relied upon to protect Holland's foreign possessions, and it was hardly the time for her to sit with folded hands.

TO TELL OF LOUISIANA KLAN.

Gov. Parker Rents Largest Hall in New Orleans for Campaign Speech.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 26.—Governor Parker of Louisiana, whose fight on the Ku Klux Klan has attracted wide attention, has rented the Atheneum, the largest auditorium in New Orleans, for Monday night, the New Orleans Daily States says, and will deliver an address to the people of New Orleans which the Daily States says will include what he knows about the Klan in Louisiana and its relation to the present State campaign.

The campaign preliminary to the Democratic primary in January, at which time candidates for all State, parish and district offices will be nominated, now is on. Alleged sympathy of various candidates with the Klan, so far has been the principal ammunition of many candidates and the Governor's proposed discussion of the subject is expected to bring it to the front.

Fitzgerald Loses $750 Damage Suit.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 26.—Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, defendant in a suit brought in Superior Court by Orrin D. Webber, of Oakham, for damages alleged to have been caused on Sept. 29, 1922, when Webber was struck by Fitzgerald's automobile, was ordered to pay $750 to Webber in a finding handed down today by Judge Alonzo eWd.

Dry Inquiry Probable in Jersey.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—An investigation of prohibition enforcement in New Jersey, it was indicated today at Prohibition headquarters, probably would follow the charges made by former Senator Frelinghuysen against Prohibition Director Chamberlain of New Jersey. Papers in the case are being referred to the intelligence unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue which conducts investigations of prohibition personnel.

St. Louis Daily Issues 64-Page Paper

TEXANS TO PUT KLAN BEFORE THE SENATE

from certain Senators whose terms expire in 1925. It is not expected that all of these Senators will espouse the cause of the Texan, but they are expected to use their influence to keep the matter in committee and off the floor of the Senate, at least during the first session, which is expected to adjourn a few weeks in advance of the meeting of the national conventions.

Peddy's Counsel Confident.

On the other hand Luther B. Nichols, of Bailey, Nichols & Bailey, who will personally represent George E. B. Peddy of Houston, who was Mayfield's opponent in the election of 1922, told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that his case is complete and the evidence is ready for submission to the committee on Priwileges and Elections.

"I cannot discuss that evidence in advance of its production before the committee," said Mr. Nichols, "but I can assure you that every charge we make will be substantiated. There will be no hearsay evidence or guess work in this case. Once this mass of evidence, which will be backed up by Texans of the highest standing, is before the committee we will be content, for then we are absolutely certain that even those who now oppose us will have to admit the truth and justice of our case."

It will be charged in behalf of Mr. Peddy that in certain counties the Klan not only took over the management of elections but that it actually had printed and delivered to voting precincts 75,000 ballots on which appeared the name of Mayfield and the name of Pelly was missing.

State Committee Threat Alleged.

Documentary evidence will be submitted which it is declared will conclusively prove that the Democratic State Committee threatened with party excommunication any Democrat who dared to vote for Mr. Peddy, the Independent Democratic-Republican candidate.

It will also be charged that in certain counties election officers who were of the Klan printed Mayfield's name on the ballot, that in other counties they pasted Mayfield "stickers" on the ballot, while in other counties they wrote with pen or pencil the name of the Klan candidate. In these counties Mayfield's name had been left off the ballot because of a court injunction.

Mr. Mayfield is said to realize the seriousness of the predicament he is in. He conferred a few days ago with Senator Morris Shephard and when the conference was over Mr. Shephard was asked if he had anything to say about the Mayfield contest.

"I can't say anything now," he replied. "But I am doing a lot of thinking."

Other Senators from States in which the Klan has shown commanding strength, and who come up for election next year, are Robinson in Arkansas, Owen in Oklahoma, McNary in Oregon, Capper in Kansas and Harrison in Mississippi.

KLAN THREATENS NOMINEE.

Enters Politics in This State for the First Time to Fight John C. Peck.

The first instance of the Ku Klux Klan's participation in New York State politics was disclosed yesterday when George K. Morris, Republican State Chairman, received word that the Klan was making an active fight against Assemblyman John G. Peck, candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket in in the First District of Suffolk County, because he voted for the bill to require the filing of the names of members of secret societies, commonly known as the Anti-Klan bill, at the last session of the Legislature.

Mr. Morris's informant was Harry Lee, chairman of the Suffolk County Republican Committee, who said he had been visited before the primaries by men believed to be affiliated with the Klan who asked him to keep Mr. Peck's name off the ticket. Mr. Lee refused, and the threat was then made that the Klan would defeat Mr. Peck.

On Oct. 9, the last day for filing independent petitions, a petition with 2,100 signatures placed in nomination for the Assembly Arthur H. Myers, a hotel keeper, as the candidate of the Independent Party. Signers of this petition included several members of the Suffolk County Republican County Committee. The Independent Party's emblem is a circle enclosing an "A," said to stand for "American."

Mr. Peck, who won by 4,000 last year, said last night at his home in Southampton that he expected to win again this year. He asserted that the Klan had attempted to misrepresent his votes on certain bills and had charged in pamphlets distributed throughout the district that he had voted for the repeal of the Mullan-Gage State Prohibition act and for the repeal of the Lusk laws. Mr. Peck said he had voted against both repeal bills. The campaign literature circulated against him, he said, was not in the name of the Klan. "We know the source," he added, "and the fight is being directed by the Klan, even though it does not come out in the open."

The Klan is believed to be strongly organized in Suffolk County. Although no definite information has reached the Republican leaders, it is believed that members of the Klan are working secretly against other Assemblymen who voted for the anti-Klan bill.

PRESIDENT FAVORS WHEAT FOR GERMANY

CONGRESS ACTION NEEDED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Steps to finance large shipments of wheat to Germany as a charitable proposition may be taken by the Administration if conditions abroad supply evidence of extreme suffering because of the lack of sufficient food supplies in Central Europe, it was made known today at the White House. A proposal of the kind has been made to President Coolidge, and he is reported to be sympathetic toward the suggestion, believing that the American people would be anxious to do what they could to alleviate conditions among the German people if Germany was faced by famine conditions.

It was pointed out at the White House that when famine conditions were at their worst in Russia Congress voted an appropriation of $20,000,000 with which to buy and export grain as a charity offering to the Russian people. The relief work at that time was accomplished through the Grain Corporation and the American Relief Committee, of which Secretary Hoover was Chairman.

The question of relief for Germany in the event that nation is not able to finance shipments and the people are faced by famine, was brought up when President Coolidge was visited yesterday by a group of men interested in the grain trade, among them George E. Marcy, President of the Armour Grain Company of Chicago. These men expressed the hope that some arrangement could be made for the financing of from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 bushels of wheat to Germany by the War Finance Corporation, without further powers being granted by Congress.

The charity plan, however, does not fit in with such a suggestion, as it would call for action by Congress and the voting of a special appropriation. The White House seemed to feel that Congress would fall in with the charity program if the conditions in Germany seemed to make the extension of aid of this kind imperative.

The White House spokesman made it plain that he did not want in any way to commit the Administration to a proposition which might prove to be unsound, but that the necessity for charitable relief might be found to exist.

As to the authority of the War Finance Corporation to purchase grain for export without obtaining further power from Congress, the White House is said to take the position that this cannot be done. The corporation is in a position to help finance export shipments on a sound business basis, but beyond that it cannot go, unless authorized to take further steps by Congress.

It was stated at the White House that the President was anxious the Government should do everything in its power to help in financing grain shipments for export where this properly could be done, and that it would be proper for the Government to supervise charitable offerings of grain if Congress gave its consent.

TOMB OF A PHARAOH DISCOVERED IN MINEIH

Egyptian Authorities Learned of It Through Stolen Treasures Offered by Natives.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A tomb, presumably of a Pharaoh, is reported by The Daily Mail's Cairo correspondent to have been found in Mineih Province, about half way between Cairo and Luxor, where the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen was unearthed last year.

The discovery is attributed to natives, who kept their find a secret and robbed the tomb of its silver and gold treasures. The suspicions of the authorities were aroused by the large number of ancient Egyptian treasures which appeared on the market lately, and inquiries led to the arrest of several of the supposed robbers.

LADY ASTOR OUTVOTED.

Unionist Conference Rejects Proposal to Raise School-Leaving Age.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 26.—Lady Astor submitted today to the Unionist Conference a resolution suggesting that in view of the disastrous effects of unemployment in juveniles, and overcrowding of the labor market, and in order to insure an efficient future generation the Government should consider a gradual raising of the school leaving age to sixteen, where no immediate productive employment existed.

She said that about 150,000 juveniles were without jobs, and if her suggestion was adopted they would be raising people capable of thinking for themselves, who would not be a prey to the Bolshevikl. At the Unionist conferences they talked big about the empire, but what was the use unless they were going to look after the character of the boys and girls upon whom the empire depended?

The non-progressives, she said, would ruin them as surely as the Bolsheviki would ruin them.

McCRAY'S ASSETS SHRINK.

Indiana Governor's Creditors' Committee Finds Itself Blocked.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 26.—Practically all of the property of Governor Warren T. McCray, which was placed in control of a committee of his creditors several weeks ago, is encumbered by mortgages or involved in litigation, according to a letter sent by the committee to all of the creditors. The letter also sets forth that the committee has been unable to borrow money for the operation of the McCray holdings, or to pay taxes, insurance and other necessary expenses.

The committee is of the belief that the bankruptcy proceedings instituted against Governor McCray by three Fort Wayne institutions will, if sustained, result in the setting aside of the trust agreement under which the committee is operating.

"On advice of counsel," says the letter, "your committee feels that its activities should be confined chiefly to investigating the condition and value of the estate turned over to it, until determination of the bankruptcy matter."

The bankruptcy petition which was filed at Fort Wayne has been referred to Judge A. B. Anderson of the United States District Court, but no date for a hearing has been set.

Judgments totaling $41,343.96 were entered against the Governor yesterday at Kentland, Ind., in the Newton Circuit Court in ten suits. This action was preliminary to the hearing next Wednesday of three test suits in which, it is expected, the question will be raised as to the authority of the Governor to sign the names of business associates to certain notes which were discounted at banks.

GOES IN COSTLY CAR TO TRIAL FOR THEFT

4 OTHER WOMEN CONVICTED

Two Young Girls and Two Mothers of Families Confess Robbing Store.

When two girls and three women were summoned to Special Sessions yesterday on shoplifting charges, one of the women rode up to the court in an expensive automobile, which later proved to be the property of her husband, a well-to-do business man. This woman had given the name Nettie Korotsky when she was arrested in Macy's on Oct. 2 last with perfume and a lace collar which she had stolen from counters.

She had been released on bail pending an investigation by the detectives, and yesterday when she tripped into the court from her car Miss May Mangan, a probation officer, told Justices Herrman, O'Neill and Voorhees that the defendant was Mrs. Nathan E. Rosner, 35 years old, the mother of four children, and lived in her husband's $18,000 home at 1,018 East Ninth Street, Brooklyn. Mrs. Rosner admitted her identity, whereupon Miss Mangan added that investigation had revealed that the defendant had been in ill-health recently from worries. The Court thereupon let Mrs. Rosner off with a fine of $50.

Rose and Ray Cohen, 18 and 17 years old, respectively, who said they were sisters, living at 60 Hester Street, pleaded guilty to the theft of earrings and mesh bags worth $40 from Macy's on Oct. 6. They were sent to the Inwood Home for Girls.

Sentences of twenty days each in the Workhouse were imposed on Mrs. Lottie Urbanska, 35 years old, of 179 Bay Street, and Mrs. Pauline Kocha, 34 years old, of 221 Fourth Street, both of Jersey City, when they pleaded guilty to stealing articles worth more than $70 from Macy's on Oct. 16 last. Miss Mangan said that both women were mothers of families.

ONE DETECTIVE BAGS 6 MEN.

Leaps From Moving Trolley and Halts a Stolen Auto.

Acting Detective Sergeant John Broderick, attached to the Gangster Squad at Police Headquarters, arrested six young men riding in an automobile yesterday and locked them up charging them with having a stolen car in their possession. Two of the men were charged also with carrying loaded revolvers.

Broderick, who was on his way down to headquarters, was riding on the front of a Third Avenue trolley car. When the car reached Twenty-first Street a large automobile, driven at a high rate of speed and containing six men, passed the car, narrowly missing persons who were crossing the avenue. Broderick noticed that the machine bore a Massachusetts license plate. Showing the motorman his shield, he ordered him to put on full speed and overtake the speeding machine.

The trolley came abreast of the automobile between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets. The detective, with gun in hand, jumped off the moving car, at the same time ordering the chauffeur of the car to stop. Instead of stopping the chauffeur swung his car in the direction of Broderick, nearly crushing him against an elevated pillar. The detective, pointing his gun at the chauffeur's head, again ordered him to stop and this time the order was obeyed.

Broderick jumped on the running board of the machine and ordered the chauffeur to drive down to Fourteenth Street, where he picked up Detective John Barry. The two detectives then told the chauffeur to drive down to Police Headquarters. When the detectives searched the machine they found two loaded revolvers under the rear seat.

The men admitted that they had stolen the car from in front of the Harvard Club in Cambridge, Mass., Thursday night. After being fingerprinted the six were locked up. They gave their names as George Petersen, chauffeur of the machine, 18; Walter Mullen, 19; Thomas Scott, 22, and Joseph Meninen, 19, all of Cambridge, and John Dolkins, 21, of 162 Leonaard Street, Brooklyn, and Joseph L. Lehman, 20, of 25 Scholes Street, Brooklyn. Mullen and Meninen were also charged with violation of the Sullivan law when they claimed ownership of the revolvers.

Broderick, who a short time ago rescued two children and a woman in a fire on East Twenty-sixth Street, was congratulated by Captain Thomas Fay of the Detective Bureau on his alertness in bagging the six youths.

Young British Writer to Make Lecture Tour in This Country.

Rebecca West, one of the most prominent women writers of Great Britain, arrived on the Mauretania yesterday morning for a lecture tour in this country. Though not yet 30 years old, Miss West is the author of two novels that have been widely read in America as well as in England, "The Return of the Soldier" and "The Judge."

An ardent advocate of feminism, Miss West is modern to the point of ultra-modernism. "The removal of the sex disqualifications in England has brought about a great change," said Miss West at the Waldorf-Astoria, where she is staying before beginning her tour. "It has given women a new standing and prevented them from being treated with even less consideration in the readjustment which followed the war."

In answer to a question about D. H. Lawrence, she said she considered him a great writer and a genius. "But every genius," she added, "is apt to be pretty much of an ass at times." She expressed approval of Sinclair Lewis and others in the younger school of American writers.

SEIZE 3 TONS OF MARKS.

German Police Stop Export of Notes to Be Used in Advertising.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—Nearly three tons of paper marks have been confiscated at the Dutch frontier by German officials. The currency belonged to dealers who have been doing a big trade in exporting notes to Holland for advertising purposes. The Dutch tradesmen buy them in bulk to use as wallpaper and also for insertion in cigarette packages, thus enabling the dealers to attract sales by advertising: "This packet contains a 1,000,000 mark note."

This practice has been in use for a long time and the police are now trying to stop it.

Attack on Teacher Brings Fine.

Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in the Tombs Court fined Mrs. Catherine Pagono, 46, of 72 Mulberry Street, $15 yesterday for attacking Miss Kate O'Connell, a teacher in Public School 130, Mulberry and Baxter Streets, because the teacher had reprimanded Mrs. Pagono's 12-year-old son for breaking a school rule.

SARAZEN CROWNED JUVENILE CHAMPION

HOME FIRST BY 2 LENGTHS

VICTOR 3 TO 10 FAVORITE

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26.—Blood does not always tell even on the race track. Sarazen, product of an unsound sire and a dam which pulled a plow, raced to an easy victory over the well-bred Happy Thoughts here this afternoon, winning $15,000 and what amounts to the American two-year-old championship. Sarazen, racing in the black and salmon colors of the Fair Stable, which belongs to Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt 2d, broke in front and stayed there all the way, winning by two lengths with Earl Sande looking back, over his shoulder at the frantic efforts of his rival, Andy Schuttinger. Sarazen ran the six furlongs in 1:14 over a cuppy track and was eased up at the finish.

The result was no surprise to a crowd of some 15,000 persons, who gathered from New York, Washington and Baltimore to see these two unbeaten two-year-olds face the acid test. They made Sarazen a 3 to 10 favorite and his performance justified their confidence. The odds against Happy Thoughts were 5 to 2.

Sande, the ace of American jockeys, sent the chestnut gelding away running when Starter Jim Milton said, "Come on!" and after the first quarter it was simply a question of what the margin would be at the finish. The chestnut son of High Time and Rush Box was galloping with his ears twitching as if he enjoyed it, while the filly, under severe punishment from the third furlong on, was unable to gain an inch.

At the eighth pole Sarazen was leading by six lengths and right there Sande began to ease him off, for Happy Thoughts was a well beaten filly, and no one knew it better than Sande.

In a match race at this track shortly after the war, Sande and Schuttinger met and the latter, up on Eternal, beat the Idaho youth, then a novice at the game, on Billy Kelly. Today Sande got his revenge and he was laughing over his shoulder at Schuttinger at the finish.

Sande Settles Old Score.

Before the race Sande said that it looked like a hard race, but that he hoped to win it as he had an old score to settle. He did settle it, and decisively, but Sarazen did not need a Sande in the saddle to win today. He was so much better than Happy Thoughts that the riders did not matter materially. Had he been extended it is hard to tell what he might have done the six furlongs in. As it was, he ran the quarter in 0:23 3-5, the half in 0:48, and the full distance in 1:14 galloping.

There will be close followers of racing who will hold that Sarazen is not the undisputed champion because he has never defeated G. D. Widener's St. James, but it is doubtful if St. James could have coped with the Fair Stable's gelding this afternoon. Mrs. Vanderbilt owns but one horse, but that one is a champion.

His owner was here to see Sarazen win this afternoon as were also Mr. and Mrs. Sydney J. Colford, Mrs. Raymond T. Baker, Lawrence Waterbury, Commander J. K. L. Ross, John Sanford, Charles Theriot, George Bull, B. B. and Montford Jones, and many others prominent on the turf and in society in New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore.

As the two horses paraded for the match race which was listed on the program as the Laurel Special Invitation sweepstakes for a purse of $15,000 and a plate valued at $500, the band played "Maryland, My Maryland," while the crowd cheered first the tune and then Sande, who was making his first appearance on this track since he rode Zev to victory over Papyrus. The start was a good one, but Sarazen immediately rushed out in front and quickly built up a lead long enough to take all the spirit of competition out of the contest.

Program Well Balanced.

There was no big stake event offered as a setting for the match race, but the program was well balanced and the other six races provided big fields and some excellent sport. The Inverness Claiming Handicap, which held the place of honor following the Sarazen-Happy Thoughts race brought a victory for A. Swenke's Hidden Jewell with Fredericktown second and Colando third.

Trainer J. G. Wagnon saddled an entry of Idle Thoughts and Roman Girl in the third race, a six furlongs dash for two-year-olds, and they ran one, two as named. The entry paid $10.80 to win and $11 to place for a two-dollar ticket in the mutuels.

The second race provided an upset when George C. Winfrey's Insulate galloped to an easy victory over the mile route and paid $19.80 for $2. The first event also was won in hollow fashion, S. L. Burch's Best Beloved taking command of her field with the springing of the barrier, staying in front all the way and winning as her rider pleased.

My Own Declines the Issue In Laurel's $25,000 Feature

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26.—Admiral Cary T. Grayson's My Own will not start in the $25,000 Washington Handicap, feature of the getaway day program here tomorrow. According to Trainer W. P. Burch, the colt is in good condition, but it was decided to withdraw him from tomorrow's race in view of the Latonia championship on Nov. 3, in which he is expected to meet Zev to decide the question of three-year-old supremacy. My Own will be accompanied to Latonia by his stable companion, the gray pony Jolly, and the airedale dog which guards his stall day and night. My Own galloped a mile this morning, and if he is suffering from a cold did not show it during the workout or afterward in his stall.

FOREST LORE WINS THE CEDAR PURSE

R. T. Wilson's Three-Year-Old Colt Beats Knights Bridge at Empire City Track.

Off to a flying start and never headed, R. T. Wilson's good three-year-old colt, Forest Lore, won the Cedar Purse, the feature race, yesterday at the Empire City course, beating the English-bred Knights Bridge by a length and a half, while C. Buxton's Tangerine closed strongly on the outside to take third.

Students of form who have been receiving one hard jolt after another at the Yonkers course since the beginning of the meet there, took a new lease on life when four favorites, in addition to C. H. Thieriot's Payman, which was an even choice with James Butler's Watch Charm, flashed in front.

Jockey Thurber had a gala day in the saddle, piloting four winners, in addition to getting a second place out of a total of six mounts. He scored with Ombrage in the first race and followed this up with victories on Zealot, Forest Lore and Payman.

Shortly before the running of the first race it was announced that the stewards had suspended Jockey Edward Jelly. Reasons for his suspension and the specific charges made against him were not announced. Jelley was denied the privilege of the grounds and his case referred to the Jockey Club.

A field of five starters faced the barrier in the Cedar Purse, fourth race on the card, a test of one mile and a sixteenth for three-year-olds and upward. C. Buxton's Tangerine opened the favorite, but he receded in the betting and Forest Lore closed the public choice. Knight's Bridge was also heavily backed, being played down from 6 to 1 to 3½ to 1.

Forest Lore broke rapidly and took the rail while Knight's Iridge, with the light impost of 91 pounds, closely followed the Wilson colt, being always within striking distance until the turn into the stretch when Cooper attempted to challenge Forest Lore's leadership. The son of Campfire, however, drew away to win easily. Tangerine, forced to take the overland route, closed strongly to take third, a length and a quarter behind Knights Bridge.

In the Evergreen Purse, the second race on the card, Jyntee, the eight-year-old mare owned by P. Kraft, proved that she still has a few good races left in her when she showed the way home to a field of mares much younger than herself. Lady Rose, however, appeared to be much the best, as she closed an immense gap to take third after being practically left at the post. Stella Maris, which received a well judged ride by Thurber, finished second, a scant head behind Jyntee and a neck in front of Lady Rose.

CHANCE TO MANAGE CHICAGO WHITE SOX

CONTRACT IS FOR ONE YEAR

Accepts Terms Over Long-Distance Telephone—Will Sign at League Meeting in December.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Frank Chance, manager of the Boston Red Sox last season, and a former pilot of the Chicago Cubs, tonight was selected to succeed "Kid" Gleason as manager of the Chicago White Sox.

Gleason resigned as manager of the White Sox after winning the city series this year, because, he said, he was discouraged with his attempts to rebuild the team wrecked as a result of the world series scandal of 1919. Gleason was manager of the White Sox six years and was identified with the club as assistant manager and coach under the leadership of Clarence Rowland.

Chance, famous as the "peerless leader" of the Chicago Cubs some years ago, came to terms with Harry Grabiner, business manager of the White Sox, during a long distance telphone conference. Chance, at his home in Los Angeles, accepted the contract, which will run one year. The contract will be signed when the club owners of the American League convene here in December for the annual meeting.

"I think Chance will be a whale of a manager," Grabiner said. "He's popular in Chicago and apparently was very anxious to return. It didn't take us five minutes to come to terms over the telephone."

Chance made his name and fortune in baseball when he won four pennants and two world's championships in five seasons.

In 1906 Chance piloted the Cubs to the National League championship, but lost the world's series to the White Sox. In 1907 and 1908 the Cubs defeated the Tigers for the world's championship, and in 1910 the famous machine, then going to pieces, won its last National League flag and was outclassed by the Athletics in the world's series. The Athletics won four out of five games that Fall, the single Chicago victory being scored by Pitcher King Cole, now deceased.

The new White Sox pilot, a member of that famous combination—Tinker to Evers to Chance—came to the Cubs in 1898 after playing college baseball and at Sullivan, Ill. For five years he played in the outfield and behind the bat, and in 1903 went to first base, where he remained until the end of his playing days.

In 1905 Frank Selee resigned as manager and Chance succeeded him. When Charles W. Murphy acquired the club a few deals were engineered and the Cubs started on their sensational career. Before the season of 1912 closed Chance and Murphy came to a parting of the way. After a bitter fight, Murphy scored the decisive blow when he sent his once "Peerless Leader" to the Cincinnati club for the waiver price of $1 500. Johnny Evers succeeded Chance but remained only during the 1913 season.

The Cincinnati club had no place for Chance, who obtained his release when offered the management of the New York Yankees. The Yankees signed him for three years at a reported salary of $25,000 a year, but before the season of 1914 was over Chance, realising the hopelessness of his position, resigned and retired to his orange grove at Glendora, Cal.

From 1914 until last Spring Chance remained out of baseball except for a year with the Los Angeles club. He accepted the management of the Boston Red Sox last Winter, but was released before the 1923 season was complete. His contract was only for one year.

RICKEY DENOUNCES REPORT

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 26.—Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Nationals today described the report that Rogers Hornsby would be traded to the Chicago Cubs for four players as a "grand insult." He related a recent conversation with Bill Killefer, manager of the Cubs, in which an offer was made for Hornsby and promptly rejected.

Sam Breadon, President of the Cardinals, said Hornsby would not be sold for cash under any consideration, and that the only possible way he would be traded, would be if the trade assured St. Louis a pennant.

"The value I place on Hornsby's services is so great," Mr. Breadon said, "that I consider my price, in players, for Hornsby prohibitive."

CUBS TO PLAY ON COAST.

Will Meet Los Angeles and Vernon in Spring Series.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 26.—The Chicago Cubs will play eight games here next Spring, meeting the Los Angeles team March 14, 15, 16 and 23, and the Vernon Tigers March 9, 9, 21 and 22.

They will play in Oakland during the latter part of March, while the Pittsburgh Pirates meet the San Francisco Seals in San Francisco. The Cubs and Pirates will meet here March 31.

TROTTERS PERISH BY FIRE.

Josephine Sharpe and Lurline Dingen Destroyed at Belfast, Me.

BELFAST, Me., Oct. 26.—Two trotting horses, Josephine Sharpe, 2.16, and Lurline Dingen, 2.11¼, were burned to death when the farm buildings of Ernest E. Piper of this city were destroyed by fire today. The buildings were valued at $10,000, while the horses were said to be worth a much larger amount.

Mountaineers' Rooters Stop Traffic While They Parade

West Virginia University students are hoping that their football team will be able to turn back the Penn State eleven at the Yankee Stadium this afternoon with the same success which the Mountaineers' rooters turned back the traffic at Thirty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue yesterday morning. Traffic ceased moving for fifteen minutes when the 2,000 fans arrived in the city, headed by the university band of seventy-three pieces and the Elks' band of Morgantown, and marched from Pennsylvania station to the Waldorf-Astoria, where the West Virginians are making their headquarters. Two of the university's most distinguished alumni accompanied the students to witness the game. They are former Ambassador John W. Davis and I. E. Rogers, all-American fullback in 1919.

GOVERNORS ISLAND WINS AT POLO, 4-3

Beats Fort Hamilton in Extra Period and Reaches South Shore Cup Final.

Major Rudd and Captain Yuill again contrived to defeat the Fort Hamilton polo team at Fort Hamilton yesterday, thereby putting Governors Island in the final round of the tournament for the Shore Road Perpetual Challenge Cup. A thrilling finish to a fast match came in an extra period of play. With the score tied at 3—3 and both teams striving desperately to score the neded goal, Captain Yuill secured the ball near the sideboards and with a brilliant backhand pass centred it to Major Rudd, who, was, as always, in proper position about fifty yards from the Hamilton posts. Rudd received his teammate's pass and with a dash carried the ball through the goal for the winning point, 4 to 3.

The game was played under the handicaps of the American Polo Association, and Fort Hamilton conceded the Governors Island combination a single point instead of the six which the army handicaps call for at the opening of play. Captain Yuill added to this point in the first period, while Major Rudd's work at back warded off the attacks of the Fort Hamilton stars through the first two chukkers. However, in the third chukker Sergeant Tupper, the Fort Hamilton No. 1, scored. D. C. Fonda regained the two-goal lead for Governors Island in the fourth, but Tupper again closed the gap to one point with a goal in the fifth.

As the teams entered the final chukker, the Governors Island players were leading, 3 to 2, and they brought forth their best polo to ward off the attack of the Fort Hamilton four and maintain their margin. Attack after attack was checked by Captain Yuill at No. 3, and those which did get past him were met and turned back by Major Rudd. Finally, however, Major Sands succeeded in getting past the defensive wall, tying the score thirty seconds before the gong. For five minutes after the end of the period the two teams battled back and forth, but neither succeeded in scoring again. The mounts were tired, and it was decided that time should be called in order to change ponies and an extra period be played. Three minutes after the resumption of play Major Rudd sent through the winning goal as detailed above.

The line-ups:

GOVERNORS IS. (4).	FT. HAMILTON (3).
1—D. C. Fonda.	1—Sergeant Tupper.
2—Sergeant Hanna.	2—Major Sands.
3—Captain Yuill.	3—Captain Neu.

Goals—Governors Island: Fonda, Rudd, Yuill. Fort Hamilton: Tupper (2), Sands. Referee—Major Bratton. Time—Six periods of 7½ minutes each.

PENN STATE MEETS FAST W. VA. ELEVEN

NEITHER HAS BEEN BEATEN

Mountaineers Have Won Every Game Since 1921—Nittany Lions Have Clean Record This Year.

New York football fans will have the opportunity of witnessing one of the leading attractions of today's schedule when the Penn State and West Virginia University elevens clash at the Yankee Stadium. These two teams have gone through the earlier encounters without a defeat or a tie to mar their records and will be in full stride when they clash this afternoon at 2 o'clock. On the result of today's game may hang the football supremacy of the East, for of the teams which have kept their records clear so far this year, few have survived any great test and the path ahead seems strewn with obstacles which will be hard to surmount.

In the East, Boston College, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Middlebury, Rutgers, Washington and Jefferson, Yale and the two contestants at the Stadium today alone remain undefeated among the leading elevens. However, with the exception of W. and J. which defeated Brown and Carnegie Tech; Cornell, which defeated Colgate, and Syracuse, which defeated Pitt, West Virginia and Penn State have scored the only impressive victories over strong rivals. West Virginia has defeated West Virginia Wesleyan, Allegheny, Pittsburgh and Marshall in the course of the earlier weeks of the season, while Penn State has turned back Lebanon Valley, North Carolina State, Gettysburg and Navy. The Mountaineers have been scored on twice; Penn State has been scored on only once and that was by a field goal.

The two teams arrived yesterday morning, Coach Spears taking the Mountaineers to Travers Island, while the Nittany Lions went to Garden City, L. I., with Coach Bezdek. Both institutions sent large bands of students to cheer on the players today, and with some 3,000 West Virginia graduates and undergraduates cheering from the west side of the stadium and about 5,000 Penn State students and alumni yelling from the other, the game today will take on all the attractions which mark the college sport. Both sides have brought along bands and the Nittany Lion, which always cavorts wherever the Penn State eleven plays, will be in evidence.

Wilson a Fast Back.

The contest today will bring two of the greatest back field stars of the season against each other, and pickers of all-American teams will have an opportunity of sizing up their relative merits. In Harry Wilson Penn State has a flashy back who has thrilled the spectators for three seasons with his long runs through open fields. Last week it was Wilson who accounted for the victory over the Navy more than any other individual. He broke loose on three occasions and ran distances of thirty, seventy and ninety yards for touchdowns. He has been doing the same sort of spectacular work for three years and is well recognized as a leader among the backs.

West Virginia's ace is Nick Nardacci, who also has done some brilliant work in open fields. However, he is closely pressed for honors by Ekberg, the Mountaineers' fullback, who, although perhaps not so spectacular, has contributed a great deal of yardage to the Mountaineers' gains.

Frank and Artelt, the ends, and Joe Bedenk, captain and right guard, are two other prominent Penn State performers, while Virginia will be aided greatly by the presence of Quarles at centre, Tallman at end and Captain Simons at right halfback.

Penn State Line Heavier.

The Nittany Lions average 183 pounds in the line and 164¼ in the backfield, Michalske, left guard, being the heaviest man on the team, with a weight of 195, and Patton, who will play quarterback in place of the injured Mike Palm, being the lightest, 155. West Virginia's line will average 178 pounds, Quinlan, 202, and Mahan, 194, being the only forwards over the 175-pound mark. The Mountaineers' backs average 168¼, Nardacci being the lightest man on the team, with a weight of only 157 pounds.

West West Virginia fighting to maintain its record of never having been defeated since 1921 and Penn State striving to keep its goal line uncrossed for the season, and both struggling for Eastern championship honors, the game promises to be hard fought to the last down.

The line-ups will be as follows:

PENN STATE.		WEST VIRGINIA.
Frank	L. E.	Graham
McCann	L. T.	Davis
Michalske	L. G.	Quinlan
Gray	C.	Quarles
Bedenk	R. G.	Mahan
Prevost	R. T.	Howard
Artelt	R. E.	Tallman
Patton	Q. B.	Mahrt
Wilson	L. H. B.	Nardacci
Helbig	R. H. B.	Simons
Light	F. B.	Ekberg

Referee—C. A. Eberle, Swarthmore. Umpire—J. J. Cosgrove, Cornell. Field judge—M. J. Thompson, Georgetown. Linesman—E. J. Ryan, Michigan. Time of periods—15 minutes.

N. Y. U. ELEVEN IS READY.

Will Meet Rhode Island State on Ohio Field Today.

The Violet varsity football team received its final workout yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field in preparation for the Rhode Island State game to be played this afternoon. This is the last home game for the New York University team this season. The team is in excellent condition for today's game.

EASTERN LEAGUE MEETS.

Forbids Sale, Transfer or Loan of Players After Aug. 15.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 26.—Refusal of Eastern League Directors, at their annual Fall meeting here today, to enact legislation forbidding sale, transfer or loaning of players from clubs of equal or higher classification after Aug. 15 each year featured the session.

It was announced that Hartford, pennant winners, led the league in attendance figures, playing to about 136,000.

MARTIN STOPS MELANDY.

Scores Knockout in 128-Pound Final at Crescent A. C.

Gene Martin of the Trinity Club stopped Abe Melandy of Rutgers Gymnasium in the first round of the 128-pound final in the amateur boxing show at the Crescent A. C., Brooklyn, last night. Martin also showed the power of his punches in the semi-finals of this class, in which he knocked out Louis Lombardi, unattached. All the other finals were decided on judges' decisions.

Nat Ostroro of Beecher's Gymnasium defeated L. Bolton of the same organization in the 112-pound final. William McMahon, unattached, got the decision over George Anderson of the Monroe A. C. in a fast bout in the 118-pound division. Honors in the 138-pound class went to H. Thompson, unattached. He received the verdict over John Loratan of the Knights of Columbus. In the 115-pound final Patsy White of the Bowery Y. M. C. A. defeated Murray Hychman, Pastime A. C.

HARVARD TO PLAY DARTMOUTH TODAY

53,000 FANS ARE EXPECTED

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 26.—Both the Harvard and Dartmouth elevens had good workouts this afternoon on the stadium field, the Hanover players having the gridiron to themselves early in the afternoon. There are many cross-wind currents in the stadium, and it was mainly to have the backs handle kicks under local conditions that Coach Jess Hawley had his team practice. The Dartmouth team shaped up well in size with the Harvard Varsity, Hatch and Aschenbach being real huskies and as sturdy as any of the giants on the Harvard line.

Harvard's drill came after Dartmouth's workout. An hour was devoted to signal work. Coach Fisher of Harvard changed his plans of campaign again today. Although Charley Eastman has done little playing this week and has been in no scrimmage, he will be started at right tackle where he has played all the year. Evans was expected to play opposite Dunker on the line, but Eastman's speed is wanted at the start of the game and it probably will not be more than a period before Evans will get in the contest.

Although some of the coaches are eager to start Phil Coburn in the backfield so as to have added weight in the attack, Fisher will not use the big fullback unless it is absolutely necessary to do so. Coburn is being pointed for the Princeton and Yale games, and the Harvard coach intends to take no chances with him until the Crimson goes

IMPORTANT GAMES ON GRIDIRON TODAY

YALE TO HAVE HARD TEST

Brown Is Expected to Press Elis to the Limit—Five Contests Will Be Decided Here.

With the football season almost at the half-way mark, followers of the gridiron game in the Eastern section of the country will have an opportunity to witness several important contests today. With the exception of Coach Gil Dobie's Cornell team, practically all of the leading elevens will swing into action again this afternoon and most of them will face formidable opponents. From present indications immense throngs will witness many of these battles, and despite the big crowds that have attended the earlier games of the present year several new attendance records for the season are likely to be established today.

All of the Big Three elevens will face strong opposition and it is likely that all of them will be hard pressed to win. Widespread interest is being displayed in the clash between the elevens of Princeton and the Naval Academy at Baltimore. Each of these teams has suffered one defeat this season and both of these setbacks occurred last Saturday, when the Middies were beaten by Penn State by a score of 21 to 3 and the Tigers were trounced by the great Notre Dame team, 25 to 2. The odds seem to be slightly in favor of a victory for Princeton today, but at any rate this contest promises to be among the best of the season thus far.

The Harvard eleven, whose record during its early season games has been none too impressive, will face the strong Dartmouth eleven at Cambridge. The Crimson players were held to a tie by Middlebury and were able to defeat Holy Cross only by a score of 6 to 0. Dartmouth has been victorious in all of its four games played thus far and it would not be surprising if it avenged its defeat at the hands of Harvard last year.

Brown Will Test Yale.

Yale will receive its first real test of the season at New Haven when it faces the Brown University eleven. The Elis have won three decisive victories this year and are favored to add another triumph to their list this afternoon. Brown has won three of its four games, its only defeat coming at the hands of the strong Washington and Jefferson eleven by the score of 12 to 7.

Local football enthusiasts will have a chance to see two of the best teams in the East in action when Penn State and West Virginia clash at the Yankee Stadium. The Mountaineers have not been beaten since 1921, and the Nittany Lions have had only three points scored against them this season. Judging on the records of these two teams to date, the contest promises to be one of the most evenly contested of the day.

In addition to the game at the home of the Yankees, there will be four other games played in this city today. Columbia will stage its annual game with Williams at Baker Field; Fordham will meet St. John's at Fordham Field; New York University will play Rhode Island at Ohio Field, and City College will oppose Hobart at Lewisohn Stadium.

The University of Pennsylvania eleven, which defeated Columbia last week, will face Charlie Moran's Centre College team at Franklin Field, and it is probable that a capacity crowd will turn out for this contest. Penn has won three of its four games thus far this year. Its one defeat was inflicted by Maryland. Centre has taken part in three contests and has won them all.

Easy Victories Expected.

Some of the leading Eastern teams will face opponents in games which are likely to result in easy victories. The Army, which will face Yale at New Haven next Saturday, will meet Lebanon Valley at West Point today. Colgate will clash with Ohio Wesleyan in an intersectional match at Utica. The Syracuse eleven, which triumphed over Pitt at the Yankee Stadium last week, will meet Springfield at Syracuse.

In some of the other important Eastern games today Lafayette will meet Rutgers at Easton, Holy Cross will play Boston University at Worcester, Lehigh will clash with Muhlenberg at Bethlehem, Amherst will oprose Oberlin at Amherst and Boston College will encounter Marquette at Boston.

Two important intersectional contests are scheduled for the Middle West today. In one of them Knute Rockne's Notre Dame eleven will meet Georgia Tech at South Bend and in the other Washington and Jefferson will play the University of Detroit at Detroit.

In addition to these two contests there will be several noteworthy games between Western Conference teams. The featured battle will bring together Minnesota and Wisconsin at Madison before a crowd that is expected to number 36,000 persons. The University of Illinois will oppose Northwestern at Evanston. Chicago is likely to score an easy victory over Purdue, and Ohio State, both of which have been defeated, will meet at Columbus. The University of Michigan is scheduled to play the Michigan Aggies at Ann Arbor.

RUTGERS TO SHIFT TEAM.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 26.—Rutgers finished preparations for its encounter with Lafayette tomorrow at Easton with a long signal drill this afternoon. Coach Foster Sanford will start a Scarlet team radically different from the one in earlier games. Homer Hasel, who will play at end instead of fullback, practiced punting today for nearly an hour, and reported that his injured leg was in fine condition. Hasel, Waite and Benkert also had a long drill in forward passes.

Rutgers will start with Terrill, Benkert, Gibson and Neller in the back field, Hasel and Waite on the ends, Lincoln and Smith at tackles, Captain Kingman and Fuchs at guards, and Brennan at centre.

With Rutgers presenting a team undefeated so far this Fall, more enthusiasm for this meeting with an old rival has been stirred up than for any other game in recent years.

PRINCETON TIES CORNELL.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 26.—After trailing Cornell for nearly the entire game, Princeton's soccer team rallied in the final minute of play and caged two goals to tie the score at 2—2 in the first game of the Eastern Intercollegiate Soccer League here this afternoon. Two extra five-minute periods were played but neither team could score, the game ending in a draw.

45,000 WILL SEE PENN PLAY CENTRE

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—After breakfasting in their uniforms at the Hotel Bartram and taking workouts at Franklin Field and Swarthmore today, Coach Charlie Moran's Centre team is all set for Penn in the big game here tomorrow, which is expected to draw a crowd of 45,000.

More than an hour of signal drill this morning, in which the lock-step, modified shifts and all styles of open football were used, only served to warm up the Centre players, and after luncheon Coach Moran hustled them into cabs and went out to Swarthmore College, where another secret session was held. Moran said that his players will dress about 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and loll around the hotel until about half an hour before game time.

The Penn players did not practice today, but heard a lecture in the training house. Announcement was made that Dern, McGraw, Thomas and Captain Hamer will make up the backfield, with McGinley at guard in Papworth's place.

FORDHAM IN LAST DRILL.

The Fordham football team had its final practice yesterday before the St. John's contest today. Coach Gargan gave the squad a long blackboard talk, after which the team went through a snappy signal drill. He stressed the importance of getting down under punts and gave the ends and kickers a stiff workout. Meyers and Graham did the punting, and showed a marked improvement upon their past work. Joe Manning was given the day off on account of the injury to his knee, received in Thursday's scrimmage. However, he is expected to start against St. John's, and is slated to call signals from his position at fullback. This change will shift Graham to halfback. The probable line-ups for today's game follow:

ARMY TO USE RESERVES.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 26.—The Army's contest with Lebanon Valley tomorrow will give the coaches another chance to use some of the reserve string players who have been attracting attention in the workouts during the last few days. The varsity men will all get into the game, however, at some stage with the probable exception of Bill Wood, whose elbow injury may keep him idle until Army faces Yale a week hence.

It is expected that Ives will take Wood's place at fullback, with Smythe at quarter and Hewitt and Gillmore as halfbacks. In the doubtful wing positions Baxter and Doyle are likely to start.

Will Compete in Connecticut Junior Championships Today.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—The Yale university and freshman cross-country teams will compete in the Connecticut junior championships here tomorrow morning over Yale's three-mile course. The meet will be started at 11 o'clock. More than fifty entries had been received up to tonight.

PRINCETON ELEVEN PREPARED FOR NAVY

TEAMS RESUME RELATIONS

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—The Princeton Tigers went through a short practice session in the Venable Stadium here this afternoon in final preparation for the game with the Navy tomorrow, and at the conclusion Coach Roper announced that his men were ready to give the midshipmen a hard fight. Although the Tigers arrived today, their opponents are not due until tomorrow morning and will have no chance to work out in the arena before the encounter.

It is two years since the Princeton and Navy elevens have met, and the game this year is the first of a home-and-home series which will be staged this year and in 1924. The last time such an arrangement was made each team scored one victory, and the contest here tomorrow will decide which one is to draw first blood in the new series. Baltimore is considered the home ground of the Annapolis eleven and the second game will be played next year in Tigertown. In fourteen meetings, Princeton has won nine, Navy two, and three have been ties.

Weakened by the loss of two regular linemen, Coach Roper's men have been shifted around to meet the emergency, Bergen will be at centre in place of Charlie Caldwell, and either Emery or Booth will replace Frank Rutan at tackle. "Red" Howard, regular guard last season, has been moved to tackle, with Buckner taking his place next to centre. A shift in the back field put Willie Wingate at halfback, where he may be used tomorrow, since the return of Dan Caulkins to the field general post has filled that position satisfactorily.

The Tigers are expected to have the edge in kicking, with both Van Gerbig and Legendre averaging almost 50 yards in their daily workouts.

Several faces on both teams will be familiar to those who saw the game at Annapolis two years ago, for Captain Carney, guard on the Navy eleven, played then, as did also Barchet and Cullen of the middle back field. For the Tigers, Van Gerbig and Newby were used then in the back field, and both are likely to get a chance tomorrow.

Drews	L. E.	Taylor
Howard	L. T.	Clyde
Buckner	L. G.	Carney
Bergen	C.	Matthews
Hills	R. G.	Levensky
Booth	R. T.	Walker
Stout	R. E.	Brown
Caulkins	Q. B.	McKee
Beattie	L. H. B.	Cullen
Snively	R. H. B.	Devens
Van Gerbig	F. B.	Barchet

NAVY HOLDS SECRET DRILL.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 26.—Extreme interest is felt here in the outcome of the football game tomorrow in Baltimore between the Naval Academy and Princeton. The midshipmen will attend in a body, an unusual privilege for these youths. While the navy team is not in the best physical condition and is smarting from the defeat by Pennsylvania State last week, the feeling here is that it has about an even chance of victory.

The practice this afternoon, which was extremely secret, indicated that the Navy's attack will be much more varied and daring than in any game this season.

Coach Folwell stated after practice this afternoon that he would start McKee, who has not been in the best physical condition, at quarterback. It had been thought that Shapley would start, but he appears to be in worse shape than McKee.

TEAMS WILL SAIL JAN. 2.

U. S. Winter Sports Stars Will Leave Then for Olympics.

In accordance with its policy favoring representation by America in all sports on the program for the Olympic Games to be held in Paris next year, the Executive Committee of the American Olympic Committee yesterday announced that the participants in Olympic figure skating, speed skating, hockey and other Winter sports will sail from this country on Jan. 2 if the funds necessary to finance the trip are contributed by that time. Definite plans will be made for the country's participation in the Winter sports when the International Skating Union and the United States Amateur Hockey Association hold their annual meetings today and tomorrow in Cleveland.

The Nominating Committee of the American Olympic Committee already has recommended that the hockey team of the Boston A. A. be America's representative in the Olympic hockey matches. Additional players from other teams will be selected to strengthen the team, according to present plans. The officials at the Cleveland meetings will be asked to select the men and women figure skaters and the speed skaters. It is planned to assemble a field of twelve speed skaters for a series of meets to be held at Lake Placid, Johnson City and Newburgh, N. Y., this Winter, to determine the six skaters best qualified to carry America's hopes in France.

HOCKEY BODY WILL MEET.

Skating Officials Also Will Confer in Cleveland Today.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 26.—Cleveland will be the centre of the continent's skating interest tomorrow and Sunday, with the United States Hockey Association and the International Skating Union holding meetings here. The Hockey Association meeting will be held under the chairmanship of President William S. Haddock of Pittsburgh and the Skating Union meeting will be presided over by President Julian T. Fitzgerald of Chicago.

The Skating Union's annual meeting will elect officers and select the team that will represent the United States in skating at the next Olympic games. The Hockey Association also will elect officers and will draft a schedule.

WILL REPORT ON OLYMPICS.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—Charles H. Sherrill, one of the American members of the International Olympic Committee, who will sail for home on the Berengaria tomorrow, will take with him complete information from the French Olympic Committee of the arrangements for the Olympic Games to be held in Paris next year. Mr. Sherrill will lay the program of arrangements before the American Committee.

Seeks to Legalize Sunday Baseball in Massachusetts

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—A move to legalize professional Sunday baseball in Massachusetts was made today when C. Sinclair Weeks, son of Secretary of War Weeks and treasurer of the Boston Nationals, filed a petition in the Attorney General's office for submission to the voters of an act which would make it lawful to charge admission to baseball games played on Sunday between the hours of 2 and 6 P. M. The petition was signed by ten registered voters. The proposed act would become applicable in any city or town upon acceptance by the city government or Board of Selectmen.

COLUMBIA TO FACE HARD TEST TODAY

Haughton's Eleven Will Meet Williams at Baker Field—Large Crowd Expected.

Columbia's hardest gridiron tussle of the season, aside from the Cornell and Dartmouth games at the Polo Grounds, is likely to be the annual meeting with the strong Williams eleven at Baker Field at 2 o'clock today. Coached by Percy Wendell, the former Harvard star, Williams has shown unmistakable signs of strength this season, one of its feats being that of holding Cornell to a 7-6 score for three periods.

Percy Haughton's new football machine is eager to win this game, if for no other reason than to even accounts for the 13-10 beating that Williams inflicted on the Blue and White last season. Despite a spell of rainy weather this week, Haughton has made more than the usual preparation for this game, and from appearances yesterday it seemed certain that he will be able to throw his full strength against the New Englanders. Walter Koppisch, the oft-time injured captain, will be in shape to play, and the same team that met Penn last Saturday will face Williams.

Williams also will be there to the last man. Acting Captain Healy, Gregory and Clement, who were reported to be out of the line-up with injuries will start the game, according to information leaking out from the Williams headquarters at the Hotel Astor last night.

The crowd promises to be the biggest of the season at Baker Field. A special train is bringing more than 400 Williams undergraduates, and others are coming on regular trains. Nearly three-quarters of the student body will be in the Purple cheering section, it is said, and a big delegation of alumni from the metropolitan section also will be present. Columbia's sale of tickets has been the largest of the season.

The probable line-ups:

COLUMBIA.		WILLIAMS.
Wagner	L. E.	Healy
Smullen	L. T.	Surabian

Schimititsch	R. G.	Frost

Fifteen Major Road Races on French List for 1924.

Although the road races for bike riders for the present season in France are not yet over, the schedule of the major events for 1924 has been announced. There are fifteen major contests listed, starting with April 13 and ending on Sept. 28. There is only one conflict in dates, and that, Paris publications state, will be rectified before the time for the events. Road cycling in France has long been a popular sport, and one that attracts almost as much attention there as baseball does in the United States.

The two tests set for the same day are the Paris-Soissons and Paris-Nancy contests. The date is Sept. 7. For several years the former, organized and supervised by the Echo of Sports a newspaper, has been held on this date, and through precedent the Echo will doubtless be able to retain Sept. 7 as the day for the event. The other contest is supervised by the Little Journal and the Republican.

The test of the Mountains, organized by the Echo of Sports, leads the list and will be held on April 13. On April 20, the Paris-Roubaix race will be run under the auspices of the Auto, a newspaper. The Echo of Sports will run a special test on April 27 and on May 4 the Paris-Tours event of the Auto will be run. The Auto will hold its Bordeaux to Paris test on May 17 and 18 and on June 8 L'Intransigeant will stage its annual Circuit of Paris. June 15 has been set for the Echo of Sports test called Race for the Leaders, and the famous Tour of France will start on June 22. This event, supervised by the Auto, will terminate on July 20.

July 27 has been named for the Paris-Chauny event, directed by the Chauny Cycle Club and the Echo of Sports. The test of the Eagles will be run from Aug. 15 to 17 inclusive, under the supervision of the Echo of Sports, and on Sept. 14 the Brussels-Paris event, under Echo of Sports supervision, will be held. Sept. 20 has been set for the running of the test of Stars, also by the Echo of Sports, and on the 28th the test for the A. Wolber Prize will be run. The publication called Sporting has not yet set the date for its annual event, Paris-Lyon, but as the contest has always been held in August some day in that month will doubtless be selected for this popular event.

YALE LEADER HURT, MAY NOT PLAY TODAY

Captain Mallory Has Muscle Bruise and Probably Will Not Face Brown.

NEW BACKFIELD IS NAMED

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—Yale may present against Brown tomorrow a backfield entirely changed since last week's Bucknell game. Richeson, Stevens and Pond were installed at quarterback, left halfback and right halfback, respectively, early in the week, and today Eddie Bench replaced Captain Mallory at fullback. Trainer Connors said that Mallory was suffering from a slight muscle bruise, although he thought Mallory might be able to start tomorrow's game. Head Coach Jones stated that it was planned to use Bench most of the game.

Today's preparation for the game included routine signal rehearsal and punting practice, the squad being transferred from Pratt Field to the Bowl, which was nearly dried from the three-day rain and will be in perfect condition by tomorrow, it is felt.

Former Captain Charles Gould assisted the coaching squad. The Brown team will not arrive until tomorrow noon, with the Providence delegation of 3,000 persons. About 30,000 persons will witness the game.

Coach and Captain Declare Team Will Beat Yale Today.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 26.—"We are going into the Yale Bowl tomorrow in the best possible condition and we expect to win," declared Coach Ed Robinson of the Brown University football team after the conclusion of a drill for his men in the university gymnasium tonight. Captain John Spelman, star left tackle on the team, made practically the same statemen.

The team finished its training on the field this afternoon with a long signal drill and kicking practice. The session tonight was to polish off a few plays that will be tried against Yale.

BOXING OFFICIALS MAY CHANGE RULE

BOXERS TO RETAIN TITLES

Commission Decides It No Longer Wants to Make Champions by Proclamation.

Ring champions who decline to defend their titles in a decision bout within the six months' period specified by the revised Walker law governing boxing in this State, will be suspended by the State Athletic Commission and the License Committee until such time as they agree to defend their titles, if an amendment to the rule, which was drafted yesterday, is adopted by the boxing governing officials at their next meeting.

Under the proposed amendment the status of the titleholder involved will be unchanged. He still will be regarded as the champion, despite his refusal to risk his title according to the law, unless it is established to the satisfaction of the State Athletic Commission that he is unable to make the weight for his particular class, or is barred from boxing because of the age limit or for physical deficiency.

The proposed amendment was drafted by William J. McCormack, Chairman of the License Committee, and, after slight revision, was approved yesterday morning at a conference among local boxing writers and the officials charged with administering the law. The conference was arranged when the State Athletic Commission and License Committee became convinced of the impracticability of the attempts arbitrarily to install ring champions in cases where difficulty was encountered in forcing observance of the law stipulating that champions must defend their titles at least once every six months.

The amendment was indorsed as the only solution for a problem, which, it was pointed out, might cause a deterioration of boxing through lack of incentive for aspiring boxers. It was recommended for adoption by the assembled writers in preference to several plans advanced for curbing this evil.

Among the rejected recommendations was one to fine delinquent boxers after the manner employed in the cases of unruly ball players, and another to establish a nominal maximum amount that a champion could earn for each bout while under suspension for not recognizing a legitimate challenge.

Stringent Rule Necessary.

It was pointed out by Chairman Muldoon of the State Athletic Commission that, while it was desirable to adopt some stringent rule for compelling champions to defend their titles, it was not the intention to make champions by proclamation. The commission realized, Muldoon said, that championships are won and lost in the ring and there only. At the same time, Muldoon said, abuses of championship distinction had become so flagrant of late that some drastic step to curb the threatened evil was imperative.

Muldoon, in addressing the writers, reviewed the cases of Joe Lynch, world's bantamweight champion; Johnny Kilbane, former featherweight titleholder, and Johnny Wilson, former holder of the middleweight title, and cited these as cases where boxers had abused a privilege invested in them through the particular honor conferred upon them by boxing patrons, who recognized them as the leaders in their respective classes. Depriving a logical challenger of a chance at a title discouraged competition because a contender knew he could advance no further than the stage of challenger, since the champion refused to risk his title, Muldoon declared.

Chairman McCormack of the License Committee pointed out that the proposed amendment provided for suspension of any boxer who engaged in a bout against a suspended champion, and the suspension of any boxer engaging in a bout against the suspended challenger, so that an endless chain of suspensions would result which soon would exhaust the available supply of opponents for a titleholder under suspension.

The Proposed Amendment.

Chairman McCormack's proposed amendment follows:

A boxer holding a championship title must defend the same within a period of six months after winning or defending the title in a bona fide bout to a decision.

Should such boxer fail to so defend his title, the commission will receive and forward to the champion on behalf of another boxer or boxers, at the elapse of said six months, the challenge or challenges. The champion must accept such challenge within fifteen days after receipt thereof and enter into proper articles of agreement with the challenger, and upon his failure so to do, his license shall stand suspended at the pleasure of the commission.

In order to guarantee the sincerity of the challenge, each challenge must be accompanied by a deposit of $2,500, payable preferably by certified or cashier's check, drawn to the order of the champion.

The commission in receiving and accepting such challenge or challenges reserves the right to consider only those challenges received from boxers who, in the opinion of the commission, are the most available contenders, or if no suitable contender appears, to return all challenges.

The commission will revoke the license of any boxer engaging in any contest within the State of New York or elsewhere with a champion under suspension for refusing to accept a challenge as aforesaid, and if such boxer has not received a license from the State of New York, such engagement will be ground for refusing a license if subsequently applied for.

In addition to disciplining the holder of the championship title as aforesaid, the commission may, should the champion be unable to make the required weight as specified in these rules, declare the title forfeited, and hold a tournament open to all contenders and award the title to the successful boxer taking part in such tournament.

HOPPE WILL OPEN BALKLINE TOURNEY

Champion to Meet Hagenlacher in First Match Monday Night—Meeting Monday Morning.

The final meeting of the players who will compete in the third international 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament, which opens at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Monday night, will not be held until Monday morning. The meeting of the players was scheduled to be held yesterday morning at the offices of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company but it was postponed when it was learned that Jake Schaefer, the former champion, would not arrive here until tomorrow morning from Chicago. Albert Cutler of New York, who again has been named to referee the tournament, yesterday conferred with the officials in charge of the tournament, discussed the rules and said he was prepared to go over all the rules thoroughly at the final meeting with the players on Monday morning.

The seeded draw, which was in effect last year and which has been so arranged that the three American players first will oppose the three European entrants, will be effective this year. Under this draw, which was made yesterday, Willie Hoppe, the champion, will open the tournament on Monday night opposed to Erich Hagenlacher of Germany, Welker Cochran now of California, will oppose Roger Conti of France on Tuesday afternoon and Schaefer will engage Edouard Horemans of Belgium on Tuesday night. The remainder of the schedule will be arranged according to the results of the succeeding games.

Last year Schaefer, then champion, opened the tournament opposed to Hagenlacher. Hoppe's first match was on Tuesday night against Horemans. Hagenlacher, who finished last in the 1922 tourney, gave Hoppe his hardest match. Hoppe had a narrow escape and was fortuante to win. The final score was Hoppe 500, Hagenlacher 402, with the latter making a run of 162 near the finish and at a time when it seemed certain that he would run out the game, a masse shot proving his undoing. Hoppe also was badly off form in that game, turning in an average of only 22.72, the poorest average he has made in any tournament in recent years.

Last year Conti defeated Cochran by 500 to 376. It was against Horemans that Schaefer met his first defeat, losing to the Belgian by 500 to 321. Horemans has been playing the most brilliant brand of billiards of any of the contestants in practice, his records in recent exhibition matches even surpassing the fine work displayed by Champion Hoppe. Last Wednesday night Horemans ran out his string of 500 in the first inning.

The list of prizes as announced yesterday by T. J. Dwyer, Secretary-Treasurer of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, who is directly in charge of the tournament, follows: First prize, $3,000; second prize, $1,500; third prize, $1,000; fourth prize, $750, and fifth prize, $250. In addition the players will share in the gross receipts and will receive a percentage after all expenses have been paid. The winner will receive 46 per cent. of the profits, the second man 23 per cent., the third man 15 per cent., the fourth 12 per cent. and the fifth 4 per cent. The player who finishes sixth and last will receive no reward. The winner also will be presented with a diamond medal valued at $1,000.

The prices for the tournament also were announced yesterday. For evening games and for the Saturday afternoon matches the prices will be $3.30 and $2.20. For the remaining afternoon games the prices will be $2.20 and $1.65.

The evening games are scheduled to start at 8:15 o'clock and the afternoon games, with the exception of those games on Thursday and Saturday, will start at 2:30 o'clock. On Thursday and Saturday afternoons two games will be played, with the first game scheduled to start at 12:30 o'clock.

The grand ballroom at the Hotel Pennsylvania again will be the scene of the championship matches. Arrangements similar to those last year will be in effect. The plans this year call for an increased seating capacity and it is believed that under the revised seating arrangements more than 2,000 persons will be able to see the matches.

DAVE SHADE BEATS WELLS AT GARDEN

ENGLISHMAN IS OUTCLASSED

Another championship dream went up in thin smoke in the ring of Madison Square Garden last night and another cherished hope of Great Britain for a ring champion disappeared before the flailing, punishing fists of a sturdy little American, when Dave Shade, California's candidate for the world's welterweight title, battered his way to victory over Bermondsey Billy Wells, England's welterweight. The pair clashed in the main bout of fifteen rounds before a paid attendance of exactly 6,609 persons, who contributed the sum of $18,259 in receipts. When the final bell sounded, Judges George Partrich and James Gueren, and Referee Johnny Gallagher, gave their decision to shade, a function which was a mere formality.

Everybody in the gathering knew that Shade had won and won easily. There was no room for question. Shade took every round but one, and accumulated such a commanding lead on points that only a knockout by Wells could have changed the result.

Wells was not up to the task of knocking out Shade. The Englishman tried his hardest for this result in the fourteenth round, and did succeed in cracking over a left to the jaw and soon after a right to the jaw which stung Shade. But the latter was unhurt and showed it by coming back savagely and stilling Wells's frantic efforts with a short left hook to the jaw which sent Wells down. Wells disdained a count on this, the only knockdown of the bout.

It was an uninteresting battle and one which taxed the patience of the crowd, a fact which was brought out by the frequent outbursts of disapproval. Not that boxers did not try their best, but the superiority of Shade was so pronounced that the element of competition was almost entirely missing.

Wells was a startling disappointment. He showed no ability whatever which would entitle him to consideration as a dangerous contended for the class championship. Only his gameness and a peculiar weaving style of fighting saved him from a knockout. In the closing two rounds, his face a crimson smear from blood which gushed from his nose and mouth, it seemed then that Wells would succumb to the tireless battering of his rival, but the Englishman showed unexcelled pluck and fought on to the last bell.

Wells won the first round because his weaving, sliding style of action presented a difficult problem for Shade. But the Californian solved the problem in the second round and thereafter advanced to a hollow victory. With his ceaseless punching Shade made Wells look like an awkward novice.

The English boxer several times almost went through the ropes as he missed swings for the face or head. Shade, on the other hand, kept up a steady battering which completely befuddled Wells and offset Wellsis efforts at an assault of his own.

Wells tried to make a fight of it where he could work at close quarters. But Shade, with every advantage over his rival in open ring, kept the milling at long range and pounded his rival with both hands to the body, head and jaw until the crowd, tired of the spectacle, started leaving after the seventh round.

Wells's face was badly battered on the left side and he was bleeding freely from the nose and mouth when the bell ended hostilities. Shade had not a mark on him. Shade weighed 147 pounds and Wells 145.

In the semi-final bout of twelve rounds Sammy Mandell, Chicago lightweight, won the decision over Harry (Kid) Brown of Philadelphia. Speed and cleverness won the honors for the Chicagoan, who led in each round. In the first bout, scheduled for four rounds, Johnny Hamm, Pittsburgh boxer, knocked out Berney Bordoux, French flyweight, in two rounds. Referee Jack Dorman stopped the battle after Bordoux had been dropped for a count of five in the second session.

Luis Vincentini, lightweight, of Chile, knocked out Barney Keeley of the west side in the third round of the scheduled six-round preliminary. Referee Johnny Gallagher stopped this bout after Keeley had been floored for a count of seven and was helpless.

Billiard Results.

Willie Hoppe, world's 18.2 balkline champion, defeated Julian Rice in an exhibition match at the Hoppe-Peterson Club last night, 300 points to 40. Welker Cochran played two practice games yesterday at the Recreation Academy, Manhattan, in preparation for the world's 18:2 balkline championship. In the first game he defeated L. W. Fisher, 150 to 28 in 3 innings, making a high run of 84. Jean Bruno was defeated in the evening game, 400 to 197. Cochran went out in 10 innings and made a high run of 126.

He will play Brown again tonight.

Paddock in easy fashion, 100 to 35, in twenty-four innings. The high runs of winner and loser were 23 and 4 respectively. Paddock was defeated a second time during the evening. He lost to J. Ward in thirty-four innings, 100 to 44. The high runs were 18 and 9. In a third game E. McGill won from J. H. Clemens, 100 to 55, in twenty-one innings, making a high run of 25 to Clemens's 14.

In the afternoon Rudolph won, 100 to 90, in twenty-two innings, making a high run of 49. His opponent's high run was 14. McCoy won the evening game, 100 to 52, in eleven innings. The high runs of winner and loser were 26 and 23 respectively. The same two players will meet again today.

Eddie Fagan defeated W. O'Neil in the interstate pocket billiard championship last night at the Broadway Billiard Academy. The score was 100 to 82. The game went to 49 innings. Fagan's high run was 16, O'Neil's 15.

Four games were played in the Knickerbocker Class C championship at the Hoppe-Peterson Club last night. Louis A. Servatius, the veteran, defeated C. J. Davis 150 to 82 in thirty-two innings. The winner's high run was 28, Davis's 14. Davis played a second game and won from A. Curtis, 150 to 83. The match was decided in forty-five innings. The high runs of winner and loser respectively were 14 and 10. In the third game C. F. Teyval defeated F. Lamouroux 150 to 138 in forty innings. Teyval's high run was 19, his opponent's 19. The fourth game was won by William Becks, who defeated F. P. Levy 150 to 77 in forty-two innings.

DRIGGS AND MABON REACH GOLF FINAL

REID AND WARD BEATEN

Lose to Garden City Star by 2 Up and 4 and 2 Respectively in State Title Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Oct. 26.—Eddie Driggs of Cherry Valley and S. C. Mabon of the local club will meet tomorrow over the links of the Garden City Golf Club in the 36-hole final of the New York State championship. The two stood as the survivors of the first tournament of the newly formed State association tonight after a day filled with surprises. Chief among these was the collapse of Gardiner White of Nassau, metropolitan champion in 1921, who had been looked upon as the favorite, following the elimination of Captain H. C. C. Tippett on Thursday.

White followed his British rival out of the play in one of the most decisive defeats he has experienced in his career. Driggs eliminated him in summary fashion, 7 and 6, at the twelfth hole, where the Cherry Valley star became 7 up after an exhibition of golf that has been unequaled here in the memory of the oldest members of the club. In spite of the fact that the day was a very poor one for golf or any other outdoor sport except kite flying, Driggs, in the face of a strong, cold wind that was almost a gale, played a brand of golf that was even more marvelous than his performance in the qualifying round, in which both he and White turned in 77s.

He did the nine holes going out in 2 under par, and in doing so got 3s on four holes in succession—the second, third, fourth and fifth, getting birdies on the third and fifth and an eagle on the fourth. So far as is known the four 3s are without parallel in the history of the course.

Wins With Birdie 3.

After disposing of White, Driggs's real troubles began. Thomas Sherman of the Yahnundasis Club, Utica, who reached the semi-finals after an extra-hole struggle with Richard Jones of Westchester Hills, gave the Cherry Valley representative plenty to worry about all the way, leading him 3 up at the sixth and two up at the turn and carrying him to 19 holes before yielding. The match was a repetition of the meeting between the two in the Long Island championship at Engineers last June. Today, as on that occasion, Driggs won on the extra hole with a wonderful approach dead to the pin, sinking his put of four feet for a birdie 3.

Mabon's achievement of reaching the final caused almost as much comment as the decisive defeat of White. Almost unheard of except in local tournament play, he was not figured even among the possible semi-finalists. On Thursday he defeated A. C. Gregson, the conqueror of Tippett, and today he confounded opinion by disposing of Kenneth Reid of Ardsley, 2 up, and John M. Ward of Garden City, 4 and 2 after the local veteran had surprised by eliminating C. E. Van Vleck Jr., of Lido.

It must be said that the lower half in which Mabon was drawn was not nearly so strong as the upper half. In spite of his good work he is not conceded much chance of beating Driggs tomorrow. It was generally believed that the match between Sherman and Driggs today decided the first winner of the State title. Driggs is a player who thrives on adverse conditions, and thus far the three days of play have been made to order for him. Any one who can score a 77 on so stormy a day as was Wednesday and break par going out by two strokes in a gale on so difficult a course as the Garden City links, will be a hard man to beat. Mabon has the advantage of playing on his home course, but that is not expected to avail him anything against his younger opponent.

White Starts Poorly.

White got into difficulty at the outset of his match with Driggs when he hooked his drive to a trap. He followed with a poor recovery and took a 6 for the first hole, par for which is 4. Perfect golf could not have beaten Driggs on the next four holes, on which he got his 3s, and White fell short of perfection, taking an extra stroke on the second and two more than the orthodox number on the third. On the latter hole Driggs got home with a driver and a mashie and sank a 15-foot putt for a birdie 3.

On the 453-yard fourth the Cherry Valley star made a 180-yard shot with the driving iron to within four feet of the pin that was as fine as any he has ever made. He then holed out in three for his eagle. On the fifth Driggs drove close to the green and pitched up dead to the cup, sinking his short putt for his second birdie. White played poorly off the tee, his judgment in using a spoon in the face of a high wind was subject to criticism when a shot of lower trajectory would have met with less resistance.

The end of the match came at the twelfth. Driggs, after winning the first five holes, lost the seventh, halved the sixth and eighth and became dormie five again at the turn by winning the ninth, where White took two above the prescribed number of strokes. Driggs increased his lead to 6 up on the tenth, when his opponent took an extra stroke, and the eleventh was halved in 5s. On the 173-yard twelfth Driggs was on the green in one. White's ball landed behind the artificial ridge just to the left of the green. He failed to pitch over it and got a 5, losing the hole and the match.

Driggs's wildness cost him dear on the outgoing stretch against the steady-going Sherman. The first hole was haived with 4s. On the short second the Cherry Valley player's mashie niblick found the trap to the right of the green. He took two strokes to get out and onto the green and went down in four, losing the hole. Driggs lost the next two holes also, driving to a pit on the third and failing short with his niblick. The up-State representative was on the green in 2 on the fourth and found the pin in two more for a birdie 4. He was now 3 up.

Driggs Wins Fifth.

Driggs won his first hole on the fifth when the other took one more than the orthodox number of strokes. He became 3 down again at the sixth, where Sherman sank a 20-foot putt. The next two holes were halved and Driggs won the ninth with a mashie niblick pitch on a dead line with the pin. He was 2 down at the turn. The tenth was halved. Another fine chip shot dead to the pin won the eleventh for the Cherry Valley player and they became all even at the twelfth when Sherman's iron shot faded to the left behind the same ridge that had proved insurmountable for White. From this point on it was an even struggle until White brought the match to an end on the nineteenth with his fine second shot that put him within a few feet of the pin, as narrated above. He got a birdie 3 and Sherman a 4.

HAGEN AND SARAZEN WIN.

Defeat Byrne and Donahue, 8-7, in Exhibition at Maplewood.

MAPLEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 26.—Walter Hagen, former holder of the British open title, and Gene Sarazen, 1922 national open golf champion, today defeated Joseph Byrne and William E. Donahue, 8 and 7, in an exhibition golf match on the links of the Forest Hill Golf Club.

Hagen and Sarazen played the par 70 course for a best ball of 65 each round. Hagen had individual scores of 67 and 72, against Sarazen's 71 and 69. Donahue made rounds of 74 and 83, and Byrne of 79 and 83.

Hagen and Sarazen were 4 up at the end of the first nine holes, which Hagen negotiated in 32, four under par. The rival teams played the second nine on even terms, the pros being 4 up at lunch. This advantage was easily increased in the afternoon, due principally to the poor putting of Byrne and Donahue.

Bok, with prizes of $100,000, were discussed from several points of view yesterday at a joint meeting of the Women's University Club, the American Association of University Women, the New York League of Women Voters and the Woman's Pro-League Council. The meeting was held at the Women's University Club, 106 East Fifty-second Street.

Mrs. Maud Swartz, President of the International Tradeswomen's League; Norman Thomas, editor of The New York Leader; Professor J. Russell Smith of the Columbia School of Business and Stephen P. Duggan of the International Institute of Education were the speakers. Mrs. Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, President of the American Association of University Women, presided. Among those who attended were Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of the American Peace Award Committee, Mrs. William Colt, President of the Women's University Club; Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, President of the New York branch of the American Association of University Women, and Mrs. Frank A. Tuttle, President of the Women's Pro-League Council.

As long as one nation feels free to engage in trade wars against another, Professor Smita said, there will be wars all over the world. "Think what it would mean to New York if Pennsylvania said it would not send coal to us," he said. "The European countries are constantly wrangling and hitting each other in the ribs with economic discriminations. Each day some new invention makes every part of the world more dependent upon another part.

"Why is it that the peoples of the world are so fearful of third parties which merely look at the facts? The whole concept of the World Court and of the League of Nations rests upon the theory that third parties can sit down and, looking at the facts impartially, arrive at a decision."

Mrs. Swartz declared that the laboring people felt that so long "as the economic causes of war continue" wars will continue. Therefore we feel that the world should be aroused to the fact that war should be treated as a crime, and that anybody going to war should be treated as a criminal," she continued. "There is too much glorification of war taught in our schools today. If we teach the glorification of war we shall never get away from war as an ideal."

Mr. Thomas took the view that more hope of world peace lay in "a growing sense of internationalism among workers" than in any other condition. "I believe in outlawry of war, but the logic of that movement is to get rid of the means of war," he said.

Mr. Duggan spoke on the work of the League of Nations. "If the United States had got in at the right time and assumed its share of responsibility, the present chaos in Europe might have been avoided," he said.

AFRICAN POST FOR ATHLONE

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Announcement was made today of the appointment of the Earle of Athlone as the Governor-General of South Africa, succeeding Prince Arthur of Connaught.

The new Governor-General is a brother of Queen Mary. He was born Viscount Trematon in 1874, the third son of the late Duke of Teck and the late Princess Mary Adelaide. He was created the first Earl of Athlone in 1917.

He is a soldier, and among his many decorations is the Distinguished Service Order, awarded for his part in the South African War after which the Boer republics became part of the British Empire. He also served in the World War and rose to the rank of brigadier general.

The Countess of Athlone was Princess Alice of Albany.

HUBERMAN GIVES NOVELTY.

Violinist Plays Prize-Winning Sonata by Alexander Tansman.

Bronislaw Huberman played a young Polish composer's work by way of a prime novelty at his reappearance in recital at Carnegie Hall last night. With Siegfried Schultze at the piano, he gave the violin sonata in D major by Alexander Tansman. It was told that this was one of three manuscripts in a post-war competition of the new Polish Government, all three anonymously submitted by a youth hardly out of his teens, and all winning prizes for his music and for himself quick fame.

Tansman's sonata is transparently youthful in spirit, young in heart, and none the less likeable for that. It seemed a free improvisation in four short movements, ingratiating in the playful tossing of pretty tunes between piano wires and fiddle strings, the exploring of kaleidoscopic harmonies. A Slavic melody and a gay "intermezzo scherzando" were applauded.

The sonata is dedicated now to Huberman, who has presented it in Paris, Amsterdam and London. Last night's program comprised also Bach's concerto in E, with small chamber orchestra; Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" and Debussy's "Minuet," "En Bateau" and "Cortege," piano pieces arranged for violin by Huberman.

Francis Moore, Pianist, Plays.

Francis Moore gave his third October piano recital in as many years at Aeolian Hall last evening for an audience of good proportions. He gave accurate readings of his numbers, at time cold and without feeling when he focused his attention too closely on correct placing of his fingers. The effectiveness of the final climax of the arrangement by Liszt of Bach's fantasie and fugue in G minor suffered through prolonged holdings of the pedal. Also on the program were transcriptions by Friedman and Dohnanyi and compositions by Brahms, Chopin, Scott, Paderewski and Seebeck.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

a badly swollen face. The immigration authorities at Ellis Island refused to let him enter the country and sent him to the detention pen. Finally, however, he was allowed to enter as the result of the appeals of his American traveling companion.

Got First Job at $2 a Day.

Steinmetz had letters to electricians in New York but was unable to find employment until he met Rudolph Eickemeyer, an inventor, manufacturer and pioneer in the field of electrical research in America. Eickemeyer gave him a job at $2 a day in the drafting room of the Osterheld and Eickemeyer factory at Yonkers. In a remarkably short time Steinmetz had made a name for himself. Besides working on inventions for electric motors and generators and electric street cars, Steinmetz attracted attention by articles he contributed to scientific papers here and in Germany, especially on the theory of alternating currents. He was put in charge of a research laboratory and began to specialize on magnetic testing.

Mr. Steinmetz eventually became the chief consulting engineer and head of the Consulting Engineering Department, which he organized, for the General Electric Company. He was probably the outstanding example in America of the close relationship between modern science and modern industry. His work did not consist merely of applying the results of scientific inventions to business. On the contrary, he was the exponent both of pure science and applied science, devoting himself to research and inventions which, with his far-seeing eye, he counted on to result in ultimate benefit to industry and through it to society as a whole, as well as dealing with problems of immediate importance to the company which employed him.

He was head of a magnificently equipped laboratory at Schenectady and the results of his work there were of such a nature that they even astounded his only rival as an electrical wizard in America—Thomas A. Edison, who recently paid a visit to the General Electric Company plant.

An example of his devotion to pure science was his invention of a lightning generator, which gained wide publicity last year. He was compared to a modern Jove sitting on his throne in the laboratory at Schenectady, when it was learned that he had succeeded in producing and controlling an "indoor thunderstorm," hurling a bolt of artificial lightning with the energy of 1,000,000 horsepower, and getting the shattering effect of real lightning. He did this in the hope of contributing to the development of lightning arresters.

Mr. Steinmetz was also interested in efforts to produce "cold light," which would be much more efficient and less costly than the present electric light.

Another method for the conservation of coal in which Mr. Steinmetz was particularly interested was in the extension of water power. He once said that there was enough undeveloped water power in New York State to cut down the consumption of coal by two-thirds.

Believed Steam Locomotive Doomed.

The electrical wizard frequently said that the steam locomotive was doomed anyway because of the advances in electricity. He predicted that the railroads would do away with "archaic steam locomotives" and adopt electrification as soon as they could finance it, and that this change would mean the saving of two-thirds of the present consumption of coal for railway transportation.

"Electricity is doing for the distribution of energy what the railroads have done for the distribution of materials," he said.

Steinmetz was also interested in the electric motor as a means for transportation. Within a year of his death he perfected a design for an electric automobile, and organized a company called the Steinmetz Corporation to put it on the market. It was to run 200 miles without having its batteries recharged, to attain a speed of fifteen to forty miles an hour, to weigh only 2,000 pounds, and to sell for $1,000 or less.

The interests of Steinmetz transcended the purely scientific. The facility with which he wrote scientific articles that made complex subjects plain to the lay reader was an example of his broad viewpoint. This led him to regard science as only one phase of human activity, and made him something of a philosopher as well as a scientist.

For example, he often spoke on the relation of science and religion, denying that they are necessarily incompatible. He declared that science had not disproved the beliefs on which religion is founded, and that the question was "still open." His interpretation of Einstein's theory of relativity was regarded as one of the most lucid articles written about that much-discussed scientist.

Steinmetz also took an active interest in questions of politics and economics. As he became older he became more moderate in his Socialistic views. Less than a year ago he declared that while capitalism was gradually being abandoned, few people in this country believed in Socialism, and that the ideal economic system was the monistic plan, unifying capital and labor completely by letting both participate in the profits through dividends, and in the management through representation on the boards of directors.

Offered Lenin His Technical Skill.

After the war he believed that this country should do something to help in the reconstruction of Soviet Russia, and he wrote to Lenin, early in 1922, offering his help in the technical phase of the industrial reconstruction of the country. Lenin declined his offer on the ground that it would be hard to make use of his services unless relations were re-established between the United States and Russia. Later in the year the scientist accepted a position on the advisory committee of the Kuzbas colony in Siberia.

Steinmetz was a naturalized American citizen and was interested in politics in Schenectady. George R. Lunn, as the Socialist Mayor of that city, appointed him President of the Board of Education in 1912, and he held that position through succeeding administrations until his death. He was President of the Common Council from 1916 to his death. Last year he ran for State Engineer on the Socialist and Farmer-Labor tickets. Though defeated he received 200,000 votes, running 25,000 votes ahead of his ticket.

Steinmetz was the author of the following books—"Theory and Calculation of Alternating-Current Phenomena," "Theoretical Elements of Electrical Engineering," "Theory and Calculation of Transient Electrical Phenomena and Oscillations," "General Lectures on Electrical Engineering," "Radiation, Light and Illumination," "Engineering Mathematics," "Electric Discharges, Waves and Impulses," "America and the New Epoch," "Theory and Calculation of Electric Circuits," "Theory and Calculation of Electrical Apparatus." He also contributed many articles in magazines, not only on his experiments in electrical engineering, but on pure mathematics. He was regarded as one of the leading mathematicians in the country.

He was a member and past President of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, an honorary member of the National Electric Light Association and a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He was also a member of the American Mathematical Society, the Quaternion Society, the Society of Mechanical Engineers, the Electrochemical Society, the Illuminating Engineering Society, the Physical Society, and other scientific bodies.

PAY TRIBUTE TO STEINMETZ.

Scientists and Industrialists Call His Death a Great Loss.

News of the death of C. P. Steinmetz was received in New York City with sorrow, and many tributes to his genius were paid by scientists. His loss was a shock to his friends here, as they had believed he was recovering from his illness, and would soon return to his desk.

A special meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was held yesterday afternoon, at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. Professor W. I. Slichter of Columbia University presided, and was authorized to appoint a committee to draft resolutions expressing the sorrow of the Institute.

The following tributes were expressed to the press on the death of Mr. Steinmetz:

DR. CHARLES P. STEINMETZ

Thomas A. Edison: "I regret very much to learn of the death of Mr. Steinmetz. The world has lost one of its greatest practical mathematicians, and the electrical industry will miss one of its shining lights."

Dr. Michael I. Pupin, professor of electro-mechanics, Columbia University: "The death of Mr. Steinmetz has caused a great loss to the electrical engineering profession and to the electrical science. He was a splendid scientist and a splendid man. I have known him for thirty-four years personally, and I mourn his loss more than can say."

Calvert Townley, Vice President of the Westinghouse Electric Company: "Mr. Steinmetz was one of the most eminent and best known electrical engineers of his time. He was recognized as one of our foremost authorities on electrical development during the past twenty-five years, and his loss will be deeply felt by the entire industry, including manufacturing, engineering and utility companies."

Frank B. Jewett, Vice President of the Western Electric Company: "In the death of Dr. Steinmetz the electrical industry, not alone of the United States but of the world at large, loses one of its conspicuous and distinguished members. Surmounting physical frailties which would have justified amply a quiet life, he brought to the support of a fertile brain and a vivid imagination an almost incredible energy.

Professor George B. Pegram, Dean of the School of Mines, Engineering and Chemistry, Columbia University: "Mr. Steinmetz was a remarkable organizer of electrical engineering design. He did a great deal to reduce the design of electrical machinery to a systematical and mathematical process.

Walter I. Slichter, Professor of Electrical Engineering at Columbia University—"The death of Dr. Steinmetz is a great loss to the electrical engineering profession and to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. His analytical mind and mathematical ability have enabled him to meet and solve many of the scientific and technical problems encountered in the rapid development of the art.

General John J. Carty, Vice President, American Telephone and Telegraph Company—"The loss of Mr. Steinmetz is a severe blow to the entire electrical profession. He was one of our foremost electrical engineers. Despite certain physical handicaps, he had a brilliant mind and possessed a remarkable fundamental knowledge of the science of electricity which he brought to bear at first in the design of motors and generators.

Charles F. Berkey, Professor of Geology at Columbia University—"Dr. Steinmetz was one of the most famous scientists in America. His loss will be keenly felt by the scientific field in general. He was known all over the world, and probably was as highly regarded as any man in his line in the whole of America."

Professor John H. Morecroft of Columbia University—"The electrical engineering profession owes to Steinmetz the modern mathematical treatment of all alternating current problems. His great mathematical ability, combined with his keen perception of the phenomena which go on in electric circuits, made his contributions to this field of engineering problems more notable than those of any other engineer.

His Reputation was World Wide.

E. W. Rice Jr., Honorary Chairman, General Electric Company—"The sudden death of Dr. Steinmetz comes as a great shock to his friends in the General Electric organization, including the directors, officers and every employe. He joined our ranks some thirty years ago and during all this time has rendered services of the most conspicuous character and extraordinary value.

E. M. Herr, President of the Westinghouse Electric Company—"All electrical engineers and others interested in electrical development were greatly shocked to hear this morning of the death of C. P. Steinmetz. This eminent electrical engineer interested himself so frequently in the latest development of this wonderful art that his writings and addresses had an especial public appeal. He will be sadly missed in the engineering profession, which has by his death lost a very eminent member."

RESTORING ALLIED UNITY.

Happily it is needless to take up the points left unsettled by the exchange of notes between Lord CURZON and Secretary HUGHES. The affair has passed from the region of dispute to that of action. No one need stop to inquire on which side the diplomatic laurels rest. The success was in reality joint, since it is evident that the British and American notes were not published until it had been made certain that France, Italy and Belgium would agree to their main proposal. This was to set up an international committee of inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay reparation, the experts chosen for that work being directly under the Reparation Commission. Mr. HUGHES made this specific in his offer, doubtless in order to meet the French view. The same idea may have been implied in his general proposal of last December, but it was not so definitely expressed as in his reply to Lord CURZON of Oct. 15. What may have been obscure before he has now thoroughly clarified.

The sticking point with the French has all along been the need of preserving the functions and maintaining the dignity of the Reparation Commission. This was the continuing tribunal set up by the Versailles Treaty for the purpose of examining from time to time Germany's ability to pay, also for considering any representations made by the German Government, and in general for supervising and directing the execution of those parts of the Peace Treaty which had to do with the making good by Germany of the lawless damage which she wrought in the war. It has been complained that in all this matter the French have been too narrowly legal minded. M. POINCARE is a lawyer, and it has been objected that he brought to the interpretation of the Treaty too meticulous a reading of its various clauses. But what else could have been expected? In the Treaty the French saw their only guarantee. To insist upon its literal terms was their only hope of securing what they had won after four years of cruel warfare. The very uncertainty regarding how much Germany could pay and when she could pay it was the reason for the creation of the Reparation Commission; and the French might well be excused for resisting any diminution of its authority. That has now been fortunately avoided by the terms of the agreement. France has gladly accepted the somewhat modified suggestions made by Mr. HUGHES, so that the prospect is now bright for a unity of purpose and method among the Allies and the United States, to an extent which a little while ago appeared impossible.

It is not a time for nicely measuring the diplomatic gains or losses of the various Governments concerned. The French can certainly point to a vindication of the wisdom of the course which they have steadily pursued since last January. In his New Haven speech in December Secretary HUGHES plainly held the view that the French would only prejudice their interest by occupying the Ruhr. The British Government repeatedly took the same position. But now both the Curzon note and that of Secretary HUGHES seize upon the final surrender of the Germans in the Ruhr as a starting point for fresh negotiations which look to dealing with the entire question of economic disturbance in the whole of Europe.

To that result of bright augury we have now come. The barren and wearisome debates of the past eight months may be put aside. A beginning of great promise has been made, and it is inconceivable that the gain thus registered will not be extended. From consultations about German capacity, it would seem to be inevitable that the free and friendly conferring of all the nations involved should lead to comprehensive proposals and agreements affecting not only the immediate problems, but those of the long future. What we are witnessing is, first of all, a healing of the rupture among the Allies which began to be marked last January. If they are ready again to work together with good-will, it cannot be doubted that a vast improvement in the entire European outlook will soon be visible.

A new spirit has been reached, or, rather, the old cordial spirit of common effort for the common good has been restored. This is the main thing in the whole business. All who had a share in it are to be congratulated. Secretary HUGHES has never better displayed his quiet mastery than in his answer to Lord CURZON, and in the confidential negotiations which undoubtedly preceded it. As for the French Government, its prompt and favorable answer to the appeal of the United States at once served to demonstrate the good sense and moderation of France, and to dissipate and destroy the calumnies which have been so freely heaped upon her during the past few weeks.

AMBASSADOR KELLOGG.

The desire of President COOLIDGE to send a Western man to London in succession to Ambassador HARVEY seems to be the main reason for his having selected ex-Senator KELLOGG of Minnesota. The appointment was no doubt intended partly as a great compliment to the West. But the President must have known that to many people in the West it would be offensive, politically. The Farmer-Labor uprising in Minnesota, which displaced Mr. KELLOGG from the Senate, when an unknown man defeated him for reelection by an astonishing majority, classified Mr. KELLOGG as a reactionary of the darkest hue. This was unjust, but political tags of that kind have a way of sticking, and it would not be surprising if in several of the agitator-ridden Western States the choice of Senator KELLOGG should be accepted as an indication that the President means to cast his lot with the ultra-conservative wing of the Republican Party. This, too, would be an injustice, besides being premature; but so long as Americans continue to interpret public acts in the terms of politics, this kind of inference, even if unfounded and perverse, is the sort of thing to which the President exposes himself in making nominations for high office.

In respect to personal qualifications, Mr. KELLOGG is understood to have private means large enough to maintain the conventional dignity of the position of Ambassador to England. He had a high reputation as a lawyer, and was a ready debater in the Senate, though he never displayed there any marked oratorical gifts. In public life he has shown himself to be a man of poise and good sense. The probability is that he will mark out for himself in England a modest course, doing no more public speaking than is absolutely required of our Ambassador, by virtue of his office. He will enjoy the great advantage of having a predecessor who has made it plain what to avoid.

CONSPIRING AGAINST MR. PINCHOT.

Why do the wicked imagine vain things? Governor PINCHOT, whose feats in enforcing prohibition in Pennsylvania by speech and proclamation, and whose reproof and admonition to President COOLIDGE in regard to Federal enforcement, have won him so high a place among prohibitionists of the straitest sect, is again the object of the machinations of designing men. Secretary MELLON, Senator REED, Senator PEPPER and the Chairman of the Republican State Committee have been closeted again, trying to strew pins in the way of Virtue's tires. The Chairman's guilt appears glaring. He "represents what is left of the Penrose machine." But it will be remembered that some representatives of it supported Mr. PINCHOT in 1922, thereby attaining not only forgiveness but positive merit.

The object of these renewed sinister consultations is to give notice to Pinchotian outlanders that their hero is not to have the solid delegation from his own State to the National Convention. It is the good old Keystone custom to send an uninstructed delegation. Those seventy-eight delegates make a beautiful nucleus for the operations of the Pennsylvania professionals. It can't be that the noble traditions of the game are buried with BOIES PENROSE. Mr. PINCHOT might have been sure of a "complimentary" vote, but he persists in suspecting his guileless complimenters. So Virtue will strive to get what strength it can in the preferential primary next Spring. Mr. PINCHOT is an ardent and a generous campaigner, and he will have plenty of time. There are reformed machinists in his company. The contest between the new and the old school will be worth watching. It is painful to notice that Federal Prohibition Commissioner HAYNES denies the Pinchotian yarn about disagreements between him and the Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The Treasury Department "is using all agencies at "its command with unity of purpose "and policy." Mr. PINCHOT's friends know better than that.

In spite of the adroit translation of Mr. ALEXANDER P. MOORE of Pittsburgh to Madrid, the Pennsylvania believers in HIRAM JOHNSON are said to be determined to pick up what delegates they can for him. If Mr. PENROSE were alive, we should be sure that this is the same sort of manoeuvre, the same artistic playing on the innocence of that persecuted statesman, which he used in 1920 to weaken favorites and promote the schemes of the bosses. At any rate, there is something affecting, something that breeds a kinder opinion of human nature, in the thought of two such thunderbolts of righteousness rousing the same State.

NAVY DAY AND ROOSEVELT DAY.

Today is Navy Day. It is also Roosevelt Day. Here in New York, where THEODORE ROOSEVELT was born, there will be a dual celebration. In the house in which first he saw the light there will be exercises. On his grave at Oyster Bay his memory will be kept green by the tribute of wreaths. In the Hudson the fleet, dressed with flags, will keep open house, and the debt of the country to the energetic Assistant Secretary who prepared the navy for the Spanish War will be the theme on many tongues. During THEODORE ROOSEVELT'S Presidency the fleet was more than doubled in size and it circumnavigated the globe. There comes to mind, as showing his judgment of men in the emergency of war, his reply to a delegation that called upon him when he was Assistant Secretary to oppose the selection of GEORGE DEWEY as Admiral of the Pacific Fleet: "We have looked up his rec-"ord. We have looked him straight "in the eyes. He is a fighter. We "will not change now."

To the end of his days no American had a sounder judgment than THEODORE ROOSEVELT of an adequate navy, the best of ships and a personnel equal in skill to any in the world. His interest in the service began with the writing of his spirited book, "The Naval War of 1812," and it never flagged; indeed, when he became associated with the Navy Department, and afterward as President, he was always fertile in ideas for the improvement of the fleet and indefatigable in carrying them out. So it seems fitting that his birthday should have been chosen as Navy Day. It is to the Navy League that we owe the suggestion that the annual celebration summoning the people of the United States to pay their respects to the service shall occur on the birthday of THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The exercises of Navy Day will avail little in impressing Americans with the value of the fleet as our first line of defense if thought be not given to its status as defined by the Washington conference, that it shall be equal in armament, auxiliaries, guns, and personnel to the fleet of Great Britain. Nothing must be left undone to maintain this parity. There must be appropriations to keep all the units of the fleet available for any emergency. There must be a sufficient personnel of concatenated officers and trained men. At the present time the complement of 96,000 men makes it impossible to comply with the requirements of the Washington Treaty. Congress must not fail to supply the deficiency. That is a duty not to be disregarded. Let it be proclaimed on Navy Day.

GOVERNMENT AND BUSINESS.

Judge GARY speaks as a good citizen when he counsels business men to cooperate with President COOLIDGE by conducting their affairs in accordance with the sound ideas of the Administration. The benefits would be greater if in turn the Government would cooperate with business men of large views. In that case there truly would be "no reason to fear there will be a "serious financial or commercial dis-"turbance or depression during the "next few months," despite the confused outlook in foreign affairs. As the Judge recognizes, "the great seas "are not wide enough to separate us "from the influences of disaster to "Europe." Nevertheless, "we may be "independent of all other countries so "far as business progress and pros-"perity are concerned." The basis of that paradox is that our difficulties are with our surpluses, whereas Europe's are with deficits. It is better business for us to export our surpluses.

Says Judge GARY:

> Let us have faith in the future and do our part, proceeding always with good judgment, prudence and within the limits of our own resources, but steadily forward toward the goal of the prosperity which we know is ahead and will be greater than ever before.

It is easier to have faith in our domestic future than in the world future, though the foreign outlook was improving even as the Judge was speaking. If the world would unite in a war upon want, only the boldest would set limits to the production and exchange of universal necessities. There are unsatisfied demands enough to keep all workers busy. Our domestic exchanges of goods require a million carloads to be moved weekly. To quote Judge GARY further:

> Purchases for railroad and general building purposes, for oil development and production, for canning purposes, for the automobile trade and many other lines are now very large as a total, and from appearances may be expected to materially increase in volume during the next six months, unless something unforeseen and unwarranted shall be precipitated.

It is true that some domestic conditions are more pleasing than others, but the comprehensive outlook seems promising in proportion that it is possible to believe that the world is willing to be ruled by reason rather than by hate.

DR. STEINMETZ.

In the career of CHARLES PROTEUS STEINMETZ was strikingly illustrated what might be called the wide opportunity offered in the United States, but more accurately, perhaps, merely the fact that the man of high intellectual ability can succeed here as elsewhere. There was, of course, nothing miraculous in his attainment of eminence; it was not even mysterious. Though on his arrival in this country he was a penniless political refugee, speaking next to no English, he brought with him a thorough education as an engineer, and it was his good fortune, not long after he landed, to find employers willing to give him the chance to do the sort of studying and experimenting from which additions to the general stock of scientific knowledge were more to be expected than an immediate increase of corporation profits.

Not many employers are of that kind, though their number is increasing. There was therefore something of good fortune—of plain luck, some might say—in the prompt establishment of Dr. STEINMETZ in the laboratories of the General Electric Company, where he was honored for his abilities as a mathematician as well as an electrical engineer. There, safe from the material anxieties of life, he was not so much permitted as encouraged to pursue studies the results of which were in, or very near, the domain of "pure science"—the science which to the strictly materialistic seems to be much more interesting than useful.

There were other men in the same service to whom the company turned with more confidence than to Dr. STEINMETZ for the solution of the practical problems arising every day in the conduct of a great manufacturing business, but he was not on that account considered of less importance. Indeed, his fame, both in this country and abroad, is greater than that of those other men. Dr. STEINMETZ wrote many books, all of recognized authority in their field, but few of them are readable outside of that field. As a publicist and economist he is held in an esteem that depends on whether the judges of it believe or disbelieve in the doctrines of KARL MARX. His interest in public affairs, and especially in public education, was intense and continuous, and the people of Schenectady elected him again and again to positions of trust. When the Socialists nominated him for State Engineer, an office for which he had no fitness whatever and in which his magnificent abilities would have been worse than wasted, he fortunately had no chance of election.

TOO WILD FOR DEBS.

Mr. EUGENE DEBS, who knows the business of running for President almost as thoroughly as Mr. BRYAN, doesn't think much of HENRY FORD either as a candidate or as a possible President. Against him Mr. DEBS adduces the novel argument that he doesn't know anything outside of the automobile business. If Presidential candidates had had to pass an intelligence test, American history would read differently. Yet Mr. DEBS's conservatism is shocked at the thought of what Mr. FORD might do in the White House. Above all, asks Mr. DEBS with the solemnity of a convinced and convicted pacifist, what kind of Commander-in-Chief would he make?

It might be argued that if President FORD displayed the early tendency of Manufacturer FORD to let expert subordinates alone so long as they showed satisfactory results, he might make a very good Commander-in-Chief. If he displayed the dynastic tendencies lately so powerful in his business organization, and appointed the Crown Prince commander of an overseas expeditionary force, he would be, as the phrase goes, not so good. Fortunately, there is no occasion for mere speculation, since Mr. FORD'S Detroit interview sets forth plainly what he regards as the proper duty of the Commander-in-Chief in the present crisis.

The business of the army and navy, according to Mr. FORD, is the enforcement of the Volstead act. "Out of the trenches by Christmas" was a good enough motto for the armies of Europe, fighting over so trivial a question as whether Germany should dominate the world; but "Into the trenches till America is dry" is to be the nobler watchword of the United States Army. What is to be done with our present army of prohibition agents, the coming men, the new aristocracy of wealth, he doesn't say. Perhaps they could be abolished. It must be supposed, of course, that no member of the military or naval forces would be open to corruption.

However, suspicion creeps over one on perceiving that Mr. FORD is not saving up this statesmanlike plan for his own Administration. He offers it gratis to President COOLIDGE. He goes so far as to say that if President COOLIDGE will enforce the Volstead act he will have the support of Mr. FORD. There is only one issue worth fighting for—prohibition. Let Mr. COOLIDGE give up the overseas garrisons, the fortifications on the coast and cantonments on the border, and send the army after the bootleggers. He need not even do so much as this—he need only threaten to do it, says the artful FORD, and bootlegging will stop at once. Of course, if it didn't, Mr. COOLIDGE would have to use the army and navy; and if it didn't stop then, Mr. COOLIDGE would have to answer to an irritated public not only for his failure to enforce the Volstead act, but for his military occupation of the United States. We suspect that this net is spread in vain in the sight of the bird.

After all, FORD'S promise to support COOLIDGE if he enforces the Volstead act is not much different from Mr. PINCHOT'S implication that he, too, will not take over the Presidency unless driven to it by the incompetence of all other aspirants or incumbents. The assurances of these gentlemen that they will be glad to sink their own ambitions, if President COOLIDGE will only enforce the Volstead act, throws a good deal of light on their confidence in the enforceability of that statute. One must fear that a number of white ribbon knights will be in the lists next year, sacrificing with a heavy heart their ambition for private life in order to rid the country of one who has failed in the prime duty of a President—or what will be the prime duty of a President till after election.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Recognition Followed by Reward.

Almost unprecedented in medical history has been the rapidity with which the value of insulin has won practically world-wide recognition, and not less rare in that history is the reward in money as well as fame which has come to its discoverers, and come to them, too, without the faintest taint of that "commercialism" which now and then has been the disgrace of medical and other sciences.

Again and again the doctor who came forward with the announcement of a cure or means of certain relief for a malady commonly held incurable has been the object of persecution by other members of the profession. He was fortunate if he escaped with ridicule, and bitter denunciation often was his portion. If this method of treating such innovators as HARVEY and JENNER—and our own OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES when he said and proved that the most distinguished doctors of Boston were "leaving behind them a swath of dead women" to whom they were carrying a fatal infection—had resulted in the suppression of quackery, it would be more easily pardoned. That it has not done so, everybody knows, and, for the details, read "Cures," by Dr. J. J. WALSH.

Insulin, for reasons not quite clear encountered no antagonism whatever, wherein its luck was much better than was, for instance, that of diphtheritic antitoxin, even more beneficent, but still a subject of occasional denunciation. And hardly had the merits of insulin become publicly known when the Legislature of Canada, honoring itself not less than Dr. BANTING, awarded him a pension for life of $7,500. Now, he and his associate, Dr. MACLEOD, get the Nobel prize as having made the year's most notable contribution to medical science.

After all, it is not such an inappreciative world—not always.

A Long Life of Service.

Miss LOUISA LEE SCHUYLER, who today celebrates her eighty-sixth birthday, enjoys a record of disinterested public service such as few of her contemporaries have equaled. In the Civil War she was one of the principal organizers of the Sanitary Commission, which preceded the Red Cross, and which gave to American women of the '60s an outlet for their devotion and desire to help, as did the various relief organizations in the World War. Fifty years ago she led the movement for the improvement of the condition of the insane. She was one of the founders of the State Charities Aid Association, which during the last half century has done much to improve the condition of the poor and to care for homeless children. In other charitable and educational enterprises she has taken a leading part.

Throughout this long life of service she has never lost her interest in the affairs of the world. Herself a great-granddaughter of ALEXANDER HAMILTON, she has followed closely political activities here and abroad, and has kept in touch with prominent persons in both continents. Last Summer the medal of the Roosevelt Memorial Association was presented to her by President HARDING in recognition of her innumerable activities. Although never a leader in the suffragist movement, she has shown by her life how much a woman of determination and unselfishness can accomplish for her fellow-beings. Hers is a record of which New York may well be proud.

Why Not Try Towers on Broadway.

Whoever is obliged, for his sins, perhaps, to ride in the Broadway surface cars has had impressed on his mind of late the fact that, unless some better, or rather some real, regulation of this part of the city's transportation facilities promptly is devised, all attempts to use it must be abandoned. Already the delays all along the stretch below Central Park are next to intolerable, and as they are getting steadily worse from day to day the final choice is close at hand.

The problem is difficult, but it is not necessarily insoluble. The Broadway troubles are much like those on Fifth Avenue before the towers were set up there and communication established between the traffic policemen at their several posts. At present those on Broadway seem to start and stop the streams of vehicles on a sort of fixed time schedule, and this works, at least sometimes, without regard to the needs of the moment. When the up-and-down movement is stopped to let pass a cross-wise movement that isn't there, then the delay is particularly trying to those who observe it.

Broadway is narrow and it isn't a street that even can be called straight, so perhaps towers would not serve on it, but there are other means of conveying information from one policeman to another, and so making possible a co-ordination of their well-intentioned and important activities.

Sunlight Is Not Easy to Imitate.

There is nothing incredible in the report that plant growth can be hastened by the use of electric lights in what otherwise would be the hours of darkness. The only doubt that arises is whether electric light has the same effects on plants that sunlight has. If that is the case, there seems to be no reason why florists should not utilize what obviously would be a means of getting their blooms when the blooms are most wanted, instead of when "nature" pleases to bring them out.

In Alaska the Summers are short, but the days are so long that the crops put in double time, as it were, and come to maturity in half the number of days it takes to do it where growth ends at sunset and does not begin again till sunrise.

Vegetables as well as flowers thus could be accelerated, but it would cost money to do it—more, probably, than many buyers would be willing to pay, present prices being at about the limit of tolerability except for the very rich.

BULGARIA'S REVOLUTION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an article under the caption "Nine Dictators Hold Sway Over Great Part of Europe," contributed to the Sunday TIMES of Oct. 21, P. W. Wilson speaks, mistakenly I think, of the recent Communist revolt in Bulgaria as a rebellion against the dictatorship of King Boris. Ever since 1918, when King Boris, on the abdication of his father, came to the throne, he has behaved in an exemplary manner as a constitutional ruler. Not even the most rabid anti-monarchists in Bulgaria have found any reason to criticize his actions. His democratic nature, his frank and open character, free from hypocrisy or duplicity, have made him most popular with all classes. If during the agrarian régime there was any dictatorship in Bulgaria, it was exercised by Stambolisky, who walked rough-shod over King and Constitution. It was against this dictatorship and Stambolisky's fatal policy of sowing hatred and stirring up strife between the rural and town populations of a thoroughly democratic country, free from any aristocracy, landlordism or bureaucracy, that the intelligent people in Bulgaria declared themselves.

One must be ill-informed indeed to attribute the recent change of Administration in Bulgaria, as Mr. Wilson does, to "the small military and royalist clique in Sofia that, under King Ferdinand, misled Bulgaria into the war on the wrong side." Half of the present Cabinet of Bulgaria are men who have belonged to no political party and had never taken part in politics. The other half consists of men who, though members of parties, are moderate in their views and guided by a sense of patriotism rather than of party politics. None of these men had any connection with the misguided entrance of Bulgaria into the World War.

Mr. Wilson overestimates the political character of Stambolisky when he asserts that he "was a broad-minded statesman." Unfortunately for Bulgaria, it was exactly the qualities of a statesman or of a broad-minded man that he lacked. Had he possessed the far-sightedness, moderation and common sense of a Witos of Poland or a Svehla of Czechoslovakia, agrarian leaders like him, he would have won the support of all the people in Bulgaria. His internal policy, which was the real cause of his downfall, was characterized by shortsightedness, rashness, violence, an uncompromising spirit and incitement of class passions and civil strife. Several close associates and colleagues of his seceded from him on account of his internal policy, the evil consequences of which they were not slow to perceive. He showed himself a saner man in his foreign policy, and all parties in Bulgaria approved of it. Considering the present political conditions in the Balkan Peninsula, any Bulgarian Government that would deviate from a policy of peacefulness, loyalty to treaty obligations and friendly relations with the neighboring States would rightly deserve to be taxed with imbecility.

Bulgarian Minister.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

These good American souls who lash themselves into a righteous fury over deep-scheming and perfidious France have, most queerly, forgotten a little American incident a decade or so ago, enacted on the Isthmus of Panama. October 27 is the birthday of that great American President, Theodore Roosevelt. Inseparable from his memory is the building of the Panama Canal. Still more inseparable is the sure but less emphasized memory that our forthright President had just a bit, just a big bit, to do with staging the little affair that made the Panama Canal possible. Nothing official, of course, but none the less effective. It was un fait accompli before most of us knew what had happened. Had it failed he would have been pilloried. But with Rooseveltian thoroughness he did not fail. And the Panama Canal was dug and built and opened in ample time to play its not unimportant part in settling Germany's hash in 1918.

So, with America a notorious (and glorious) fomenter of revolution in Panama, what license have we to crucify France for encouraging "separation" in the Ruhr? And has France actually done so? The latest news indicates a failure of the Separatist movement. I think we may rest assured that, had France really been behind this movement, no failure would have been possible. And can we well lambaste France without beating our ownselves with the same stick?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As every one seems to admit that Saturday's race between Zev and Papyrus did not settle horse supremacy, would it not be advisable, as well as equitable, to ship Zev to England, and repeat the race between the same two contenders over there?

NIGHT NOISES.

Across the edge of Night there steals
The motor's whir and crunch of wheels;
The words of people as they pass;
The hum of crickets in the grass;
The roller skates and rowdy noise
Of small but sleep-reluctant boys.

A song that's broken here and there
By Folly's laughter on the air;
A pistol shot and powder spark;
A curse—a moaning in the dark;
The sound of swiftly running feet
Along a dark, deserted street.

And some one tunes a violin.
While down the Block of Tired Eyes
A woman rocks and softly cries.
Two lovers hand in hand go by,
And mix Love's sweetness with a sigh.

But with the coming of the Dawn
The noises change—the Night has gone.
Somewhere is heard a rooster's crow
That seems to stretch a mile or so;
The milkman clatters on the porch
Through snow and rain and days that scorch.

Night noises—and the tales they tell—
A thousand tales we know so well—
The joys, the woes, the hopes, the fears,
On through the passing of the years,
All these like shadows slip away
And leave the busy sounds of Day.

ADIRONDACK POWER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article in THE TIMES of Sunday, "Forest Purchases Urged by Engineers," coming as from the Federated American Engineering Societies, is dangerously misleading where it states that voters of this State should favor an amendment of the Constitution on Nov. 6 "by removing the constitutional restrictions on timber reserves."

As to the general trend of the Chicago engineer's statement, I agree (as one who has camped, tramped and explored the Adirondack Reserves for a score of seasons) that the State may now to some advantage cull out mature and old timber, but I would say only under its own skilled foresters. But the point is that the only amendment we vote on touching the Adirondack Reserve is No. 3 on the Water Power act, which is iniquitous for many reasons. First, the form of the amendment as it will be worded on the ballot is seemingly harmless to an average voter in its suggestion of using only 3 per cent. of the reserve for development of water power for public use.

The fact is that of all the potential water power in the central portion of the State in and about the reserve in question, no less an authority than the State Conservation Commission reported in 1919 that only about one-eighth is inside of the forest preserve.

Is not seven-eighths enough to satisfy progressive engineers and the hydro-electric power and pulp companies? Aside from lack of interest or appreciation they have for our Adirondack treasures in virgin forest, lakes and stream, it is a fact that only by its preservation in dense and unbroken growth can the maximum rainfall and slow and regulated run-off be assured to feed their impounding basins outside the preserve.

The present laws allow storage and regulation of flow in natural channels using 3 per cent. of the 2,000,000 acres for public purposes, all under strict State control, and that is as far as we should go.

Amendment No. 3 would open up to private interests 60,000 acres of the preserve for dams, power houses, conduits, structures and appurtenances, while the necessary relocation of highways and wide power transmission lanes would necessitate cutting off a great amount of forest timber and generally commercializing the reserve.

CONSULTING ENGINEER.

New York, Oct. 24, 1923.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Ferris amendment to the State Constitution will be voted on by the electors of this State on Nov. 6 and if adopted would turn over to commercial development and exploitation a considerable portion of the Adirondack Forest Preserve created by the State of New York for its residents in perpetuity.

The water power and electric light interests have worked hard to jam this through the Legislature, and the issue is being placed before the voters in an "off year" in the hope of escaping general attention and being voted on as a public benefit, when in reality the people would be selling their birthright for a mess of pottage. The State receives a paltry consideration and loses the right to develop its own water power. The people would lose their forest preserves through the flooding of land, felling of timber, building of dams, conduits, structures and high-power transmission lines throughout the forest.

Many happy days have I spent traveling the territory which it is now proposed to "develop," absorbing streams, destroying the shore line of lakes by impounding the waters, killing timber and creating an air of desolation where once all nature ruled supreme.

The ruggedness of the country, its wild grandeur, solitude and wild life, the peace, recreation and joy I with thousands of others have experienced who have climbed its mountains, fished in its trout streams and lakes and hunted in its forests, will remain but a memory instead of a priceless heritage to delight and benefit posterity.

The amendment to be voted on Nov. 6 must be defeated. The water rights of the State belong to the people and should not be leased for a paltry or any consideration, and above all the Adirondack Preserve should be kept inviolate from commercial development and remain as created by the conservation laws of the State of New York a place for its nerve-wearied people to seek rest, solace, recreation and health.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

> "We should return to the days when, without governmental interference, any citizen was free to go into any business which interested him and enjoy the fruits of his labor without having the hand of Government laid upon him at every turn. The one crying need of public life in America today is 'guts,' with representatives in Congress voting as they think and not as they think some one else thinks."

Obviously, the greatest single instance of governmental interference with business is the tariff. I should like to have Senator Moses tell us if he would support a movement to have this form of governmental interference ended, or, to use his own expression, if he has the 'guts' to take the initiative in such action.

More Precious Than Stuff They Sell.

I was in the city of Providence, R. I., two days last week, while the annual convention of the American Bottlers' Association was in session. At the same time the association held a beverage exposition in the State armory.

The delegates were all talking about and boosting the virtues of their red, white and blue colored soft drinks. But I noticed these same bottlers were very liberal consumers of hard drinks. There seemed to be a liberal supply somewhere of drinks with a kick.

It may be that prohibition has increased the demand for and sale of the various kinds of soft drinks of the colors of the rainbow, but you would not think so after seeing the gathering at a convention of bottlers of soft drinks.

Letter From Tokio.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you, through your valuable paper, thank the American public for the generous and sympathetic expression by way of contributing moneys, clothing, provisions, &c.

The amazing promptness in sending us provisions, &c., at the time of this great need not only has saved thousands of lives, but has cheered many hearts who have lost everything they possess and suffer from hunger.

No words can express the hearty appreciations on the part of your Ambassador at Tokio, who took great part for prompt action in spite of the personal losses and sufferings in this awful calamity.

The praise and deep appreciation is on the lips of every Japanese for American ways of doing things. Friend of Japan, generous, prompt.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY HAS GOLDEN JUBILEE

Celebrates Its Fiftieth Anniversary With Conferences and Bestows Honorary Degrees.

PLEA FOR SCHOOL CHANGES

Dr. West of Princeton Urges Lengthening Secondary Course and Curtailing Elementary.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—Eleven honorary degrees were conferred by Boston University at the opening exercises today of the celebration of its fiftieth anniversary. Only once before has the university conferred an honorary degree, the recipient being Marshal Foch during his last visit to Boston. The recipients of the degrees were Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard; Justice Riddell of the Supreme Court of Canada; William Fairfield Warren, first President of Boston University; William Edwards Huntington, its second President; Bishop William Lawrence of the Massachusetts Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church; Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a trustee of Boston University; Dr. George A. Gordon, pastor of the Old South Church of Boston; Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, and President Ada Louise Comstock of Radcliffe College, who received the degree of Doctor of Laws.

A plea for rigorous and complete reconstruction of the secondary school to bring about ultimately "less illiteracy among the supposedly educated, and a surer grasp on the realities of thought and life," was made by Dean Andrew F. West of the Graduates' School of Princeton University, in an address at one of the anniversary's educational conferences.

Dr. West said in part:

> "What the student brings with him from his secondary school to the college determines the stage, often a raggedly unsteady level rather than a definite stage, at which his college education may begin.
> "If our secondary schools are in a condition of vague confusion, as they are, we may be certain that few colleges will be able to maintain steady standards of admission or to construct college courses of study which steadily maintain academic standards or standards of any steadily dependable nature. The first place, therefore, for attacking the problem of reconstructing college education is in the secondary schools. Until our secondary schools are put in definite order the confusion in college education will continue. The wastefulness of the present situation is evident enough and the need of a thorough restudy and rearrangement is equally evident.
> "It may be that because of our national diversity and our just desire for local educational control, we shall be unable to proceed with a comprehensive national study of our education and secure national assent to the conclusions reached. If so, we shall be unable to proceed as comprehensively, thoroughly, rapidly and economically as we ought.
>
> "Yet all agree that the attempt must be made, because the present situation is intolerable and because we Americans believe that education is a mainstay of our welfare as a nation. At least one thing is in our power, and that is to start reorganization here and there in the belief that the growing public opinion which demands reconstruction will also welcome definite attempts at reconstruction in which strong common sense is evident.
>
> "Where, then, shall we begin with the problem of our secondary schools? First of all, with the element of the time needed. At present we usually have four years for this purpose. We are the only important nation in the Western civilized world which gives so short a period to secondary education. Six, seven, or even nine years, is the measure in other countries.
>
> "Moreover, it is generally agreed that in our eight years of elementary schooling, about two years are wasted, largely in needless repetitions and extensions. Here is our best chance to save time. Six years is long enogh for our elementary schools. Take away the two wasted years. Begin our present four-year secondary schooling two years earlier, and thus create a continuous six-year secondary school course all over the land. Then, and only then, will there be time enough for developing a fine secondary education.
>
> "The second thing to do is to make sure that each one of the few leading types of secondary education is clearly and simply organized according to the laws of its own life. Thus the academic type should be really academic, the technical should be really technical and the commercial should be really commercial. In this way alone will parents, teachers and scholars be able to see just what is meant and just what they are getting. This will enable each type to have the best chance to realize its own aims, and will enable everybody to understand this, thereby clearing away the doubt, distrust and discouragement which always exist when pupils and teachers are trying to do something which does not give them the satisfaction of definite well related endeavor to a clearly understood end. This is the way to clear the public mind of uncertainty as to what we really mean. It is also a fine way to make unnecessary a lot of futile debating on the meaning of education."

The two former Presidents of Boston University participated with President Lemuel H. Murlin and distinguished guests in the celebration. In its half century of existence the institution has had only three executives.

In his prepared address President Murlin recalled the desire of its founders that Boston University should include men and women upon equal terms within the scope of the opportunity the university was to offer the youth of Boston, and added:

> "Following this principle of equal opportunity it accepted the first woman candidate upon whom the degree of Doctor of Philosophy was ever conferred in course. It was the first to acc

CHILDREN'S SOCIETY WARDS DEFENDED

AN ANSWER TO HECKSCHER

Increase in Child Labor Since Nullification of Federal Law Against It, Is Reported.

Recent charges made by August Heckscher, donor of the Children's Society Building, were indirectly answered yesterday by Colonel Ernest K. Coulter, general manager of the New York S. P. C. C., before the world humane conference at the Children's Society, Fifth Avenue and 105th Street. "Nothing could be more cruel and unintelligent than to call the children kept by the society 'little criminals,'" Colonel Coulter said. "During the last year 7,000 children cared for have destroyed less than $700 worth of property. I challenge any boarding school to show a smaller amount of destruction on the part of playful children.

"With proper training these children," he continued, "are no worse than the children from our own homes and the children from the tenements respond as readily as those who come from the best homes. The law does not recognize that a child under sixteen can commit a crime. Furthermore, 35 per cent. of the children here are not even charged with delinquency, but are here because their fathers abandoned them or their mothers are in the hospital. Many men high in this city have passed through this shelter.

"All of the welfare work done to date is due to conditions which our Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has brought to light, and God help the children of this and other countries if it were not for children societies. Children during their temporary stay at the society are afforded the most comfortable and wholesome conditions. We are most careful that the child gets religious instruction in the faith of his parents, avoiding proselyting, and the fact that we have the support of every church in the city indicates the extent to which we safeguard the religious faith of the child brought to us."

Colonel Coulter defended the policy of the society of keeping children who are held as material witnesses in assault cases, declaring that if left at home they would be subjected to ignominy. In some cases, he said, they have been actually kidnapped and beaten by persons endeavoring to prevent them from giving unfavorable testimony.

"Were it not for the shelter provided by our societies," said Colonel Coulter, "children of tender age would, pending the adjustment of tragedies in their little lives, be locked up in station houses and jails. This notwithstanding the fact that the great majority of these children are not in custody because of any offenses that they have committed, but because they have been the victims of cruel circumstances."

Charles H. Warner, superintendent and attorney for the Brooklyn S. P. C. C., advocated the separation of child protective societies from societies for the protection of cruelty to animals and warned against the assumption of child welfare work by the State.

Owen R. Lovejoy, general secretary of the National Child Labor Commission, told the conference that child labor has considerably increased since the nullification in May, 1922, of the Federal Child Labor Law. He added, however, that the increase was due in part to a revival in industry.

He said that there were more than 1,000,000 child laborers in the United States and urged that efforts be made to bring about the adoption of a constitutional amendment giving Congress concurrent power with the States to limit and prohibit the labor of children under 18 years of age.

Child delinquency in New York City has greatly decreased during the last decade, Franklin C. Hoyt, Presiding Justice of the Children's Court, told the conference. The number of children arraigned in his court in 1922 was 50 per cent. less than in 1911, and 47 per cent. fewer children were committed to institutions. He attributed the improvement to many new agencies and influences, among them the Boy Scouts, Parents' League, Community Centres and similar movements.

"Seventy-five per cent. of child delinquency is due to environment, and only 25 per cent. to personal defect," Justice Hoyt said.

The French Vice Consul, Paul Bilby, received for M. Henry Rollet, Judge of the Children's Court of Paris, a medal awarded to him by the New York City Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children for the most distinguished service during the last year in the protection of children.

EVANGELINE BOOTH AGAIN OPERATED ON

The Third for an Abscess in Ear —Her Condition Not Considered Alarming.

Following two operations to remove abscesses in the nasal passages, Evangeline Booth, Commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, has been subjected to a third operation, at the Booth Memorial Hospital on East Fifteenth Street, for an abscess in the left ear. The physicians in attendance were Dr. Harlow Brooks of 47 West Ninth Street and Drs. Duncan MacPherson and Herbert L. Wheeler. It was said last night that although the patient will not be entirely out of danger for several days her present condition is not considered alarming.

Miss Booth had intended to address a meeting at Waterbury, Conn., tomorrow night and another at Holyoke, Mass., on Tuesday, but the developments making necessary the third operation compelled her to cancel both engagements.

HYLAN LEAVES SICKROOM.

Mayor John F. Hylan, who has been convalescing at his home, 959 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, left his sickroom yesterday for the first time since his return from Saratoga Springs. Aided by Dr. John A. Ferguson, his physician, and Miss Edna Steiger, his nurse, the Mayor hobbled down the stairs and with the help of the crutches obtained for him the preceding day, went into the parlor and sat down in a chair near a window. The Mayor remained downstairs for nearly an hour, looking out at passers-by, half hidden by the curtain.

"It does seem good to be down here again," the Mayor said to those about him as he ate luncheon. He was then put to bed and slept most of the afternoon. Dr. Ferguson said last night that the Mayor's condition was improving steadily.

GIVE VALOR MEDALS AT ROOSEVELT BALL

CEREMONIAL AT MIDNIGHT

Among the interesting features of the Roosevelt-Navy Day Ball, held last night at the Commodore, was the decoration of six American heroes with the Montenegrin Medal, conferred by that Government upon American soldiers and sailors who won the Congressional Medal during the war. The presentation was made by Luigi Criscuolo, the diplomatic representative of Montenegro in this country. The men who received the honor were Daniel F. Edwards, Donald E. Gall, Major G. McMurtry, Lieutenant Richard W. O'Neill, Michael Donaldson and Daniel A. J. Sullivan.

At midnight there was also a short impressive ceremonial in memory and honor of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, thus ushering in his birthday, which is to be known hereafter as Navy Day.

The entertainment program was furnished by well known Broadway stars, who came direct from the productions in which they are appearing. The proceeds of the ball will be used for the benefit of the American Legion's Veterans' Mountain Camp in the Adirondacks for tuberculous ex-service men.

DUPUY DEFENDS FRANCE.

Paris Publisher Says She Does Not Desire Germany's Partition.

Senator Paul Dupuy, French publisher, denied that France was actuated by any desire for territorial aggrandizement in occupying the Ruhr, in an address last night at a dinner of the American Manufacturers Export Association in the Waldorf-Astoria and declared that his people were hoping earnestly for the day when troops could be withdrawn.

"It is contrary to facts to say that France would applaud the disintegration of Germany," he said, "because such disintegration would work against our own interests and sentiments."

It was the business of all, he said, now that Germany was defaulting, to organize for peace, taking into consideration the circumstances and remembering that France had been used as the battlefield of the world.

At the closing session of the convention yesterday in the same hotel, the association adopted resolutions endorsing the proposal for an international economic conference.

SISTINE CALLED CISTERN.

Court Upholds Judgment in Suit Over Motion Picture.

Among the decisions handed down by the Appellate Division yesterday was one involving a motion picture film, "Mural Decoration of the Sistine Chapel," but in the title and elsewhere in the papers the name of the chapel had been changed to "Cistern." The action was one wherein Mario Pisani brought suit against Stanley J. Rollo for $2,500 with interest, and entered judgment for $2,541.92.

Rollo was Vice President of the Clarke-Cornelius Corporation, organized to distribute motion pictures, and was alleged to have purchased the "Cistern Chapel" and another from Nunziato Pgoiucci and given his note in return. The distributing concern went into the hands of a receiver and a suit followed. Judgment being obtained, Mr. Rollo asked the Appellate Division to set the judgment aside. This motion was denied.

A VICTORY FOR PINOCHLE.

Houston Street Game Goes On, Though Wives Are Lonely.

The appeal of a lonely wife to Commissioner Enright to have her husband restrained from playing pinochle in a Houston Street café, failed to excite the sympathy of Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman in Essex Market Court yesterday as it did that of detectives who raided the resort Wednesday night and arrested fifty-five men.

The detectives were unable to show in court that the men had played for stakes and the disorderly conduct charges against them were dismissed.

Span Will Link Store and Sixth Avenue Elevated Station.

Plans have been filed with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings for the construction of a two-story bridge across Thirty-third Street, one foot west of Sixth Avenue, and an extension to the elevated station to connect with it, at an estimated cost of $75,000.

Special permission has been granted by the Board of Estimate for the construction of the bridge, and Gimbel Brothers, Inc., will pay the city $16,000 a year for the privilege. The city reserves the right to remove the bridge on sixty days' notice.

The structure will be of Italian style of architecture and will be ornamented with a clock in the centre of the span.

Games at Jamaica Race Track Netted That Amount, Enright Reports.

Patrolman Merle Sweigert of the Westchester Station sold the largest number of tickets, 5,121, and was awarded a prize of $100 donated by Honorary Police Commissioner William H. Todd. It was said that the Police Fund, which now has a capital of $1,050,000 in Liberty bonds, probably will be self-supporting in a few more years.

Harding, was urged by Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert in a letter yesterday to President Coolidge. The late Chief Executive, Mr. Hulbert said, was wont to make weekly trips to this park to play golf and watch the children.

Mr. Hulbert pointed out that he had introduced a bill in Congress in 1916 to appropriate $1,545,897 for the improvement of the park.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 26.—Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, on the schooner Bowdoin, frozen in the ice within eleven and a half degrees of the North Pole in Refugee Harbor, North Greenland, is to listen to a special church service sent by radio from Omaha next Sunday morning and another in the evening.

A radiogram was received today from MacMillan making a special request that this service be sent. It came to Omaha from Prince Rupert, B. C., where it was picked up by an amateur wireless operator and relayed through Winnipeg to Omaha. The dispatch was sent to The Woodman of the World Station in Omaha and said:

"Deeply appreciative of chapel service of Bethany Presbyterian Church, Council Bluffs. Heard every word. Music excellent. Would appreciate special service for myself and men. We are frozen in the ice in schooner Rupert in North Greenland, 11½ degrees from the North Pole."

The morning sermon will be by the Rev. R. R. Brown and the evening service by the Rev. A. F. Ernst. Each will be the regular service of the church in which it is given.

YALE MAN PROTESTS ANTI-HARVARD BANNER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—The Yale News prints today a communication from a Yale junior protesting against the sale on the campus by Yale undergraduates, principally to freshmen, of banners reading: "To Hell With Harvard." The correspondent declares that "to allow this movement to gain headway will be a blot on the self-respect of Yale men."

Editorially, The News says:

"Were Barnum alive today he would find great comfort in these brimming souls who have canvassed the college of late vending the blazing banners. The insult to our sister university is clear, but the chagrin grows to dismay at the thought if what may be offered by those undergraduates who dislike Princeton. And when the enemies of Vassar take to interior decorating we must look to our shame.

"When the system is really established every sort of reform may be aided by it. If an undergraduate is put on probation he will need only to buy a pennon saying 'Nasty Old Dean!' or some other particularly aggravating and biting phrase. Then there will be an end to paternalism."

HOEY PREDICTS VICTORY.

Judiciary Chairman Says Republicans Will Support Democratic Ticket

Commenting yesterday on a newspaper story quoting William J. Millard, Republican candidate for Supreme Court Justice, or saying that Republican party leaders were not supporting the Republican ticket, James J. Hoey, Chairman of the Democratic Judiciary Campaign Committee, said he saw sure signs of defeat for the Republican ticket in the admission.

"I made the declaration at the opening rally of the campaign," he said, "that thousands of decent Republicans, nauseated by the Hearst-Koenig deal, were openly pledging their support to the able lawyers and jurists nominated by the Democratic Party. Mr. Millard and his associates are finding out at this late date that I spoke the truth. They are learning, according to their cry of distress, that not only the leaders but decent and respectable Republicans generally are everywhere expressing their disgust at the Hearst-Koenig plot.

"Every day, by mail and telephone and personal contact, come assurances of support from Republicans to the Democratic candidates. These pledges are coming in in such overwhelming numbers that I am free to predict that the Heart-Koenig ticket will suffer the worst defeat ever administered to any group of candidates running for judicial honors in this city."

Mr. Millard denied yesterday that he had made the statement discussed by Chairman Hoey.

MARCUS IMPUGNS QUEENS ATTORNEY

Lonardo Says Charges of Anti-Vice Society Are Due to Political Animus.

When District Attorney Dana Wallace of Queens was criticized by Samuel Marcus, attorney for the New York Society for the Prevention of Crime, in an argument before Justice Dike in the Queens Supreme Court yesterday, Assistant District Attorney Joseph Lonardo declared the attack was inspired by Mr. Wallace's political opponents because Mr. Wallace is a candidate for re-election. There was pending before Justice Dike an application made by Attorney Marcus for the society for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel Magistrate James J. Conway, now sitting in the Jamaica Police Court, to permit Mr. Marcus, representing the society, to assist in the prosecution of complaints now pending against thirty men who were arrested two weeks ago at the Jamaica race track for alleged violation of the gambling law by making books.

Justice Dike said he did not see why any other attorney should appear when the District Attorney was prosecuting the case. He believed such other appearance would tend to complicate matters.

"The society is anxious to intervene in the examination of these defendants," said Mr. Marcus, "because the complaints have been made by an officer of this society and because two men were dismissed by the Queens Special Sessions in the last week. The result of that decision amounts to legislation authorizing the commission of crime. These men were acquitted as the result of the inefficiency and incompetency of the District Attorney of Queens and his assistants. The society would not desire to intervene if the best interests of the community were being conserved. The law has been ridden over roughshod by the gamblers."

"The statements of Mr. Marcus are not true," declared Mr. Lonardo. "This attack is engineered by the political enemies of Mr. Wallace because he is a candidate for re-election."

Justice Dike directed that counsel should hand up briefs and reserved decision. He refused to permit Attorney William Tuttle, who represents the alleged bookmakers, to file a brief in opposition to the motion.

ASKS FOR POLICE GUARD.

Prosecutor Says He Received Death Threats Over Abduction Case.

Assistant District Attorney Joseph Lonardo of Queens yesterday applied to the police of Flushing to place a guard of policemen about his home at 11 Grove Street, because he had received threats over the telephone that he was to be "popped off," because of his activities in connection with the prosecution of Giuseppe Lamborgese, who is in the Queens jail under $20,000 on a charge of abducting Rose Ferrata, a 16-year-old girl of 16 Grove Street and taking her to Chicago where he married her and also on a charge of felonious assault. The assault charge was made by Genarro Carella of 41 Broadway, Flushing, who claims that when he asked Lamorgese if he knew anything about the disappearance of his wife, Mariano Carella, Lamorgese drew a revolver and threatened to shoot him if he reported the disappearance to the police.

Joseph Clarke is representing Lamorgese. He and Lonardo were before Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court on Thursday when Lonardo made a statement that the parents of the Ferrata girl were being advised to resist the efforts of the District Attorney to question them. Clarke admitted that he had given this advice to the witnesses. Judge Humphrey refused Lonardo's application at that time that the parents be committed to jail. Later the trial of the charges against Lamorgese was adjourned indefinitely by Judge Humphrey.

SEEK THIRD WILL CONTEST.

Cousins Ask Reopening of Fight for Mrs. Barney's Estate.

If the contention of Florence I. Ennis and Annie E. Ennis is sustained, the twice-tried contest of the will of Mrs. J. E. Barney, widow of Hiram Barney, will again be reopened. A motion to reopen was heard yesterday by Surrogate O'Brien.

The Misses Ennis are cousins of the decedent, and they base their request on the ground that Mrs. Barney was a resident of New Jersey and not of New York when she died Nov. 9, 1915. If this can be established, they would be entitled to a substantial share in the personal property under the laws of New Jersey.

The will of Mrs. Barney disposed of an estate of more than $1,000,000. It was contested by relatives, who alleged mental incapacity. Each time the case was tried the jury found for the contestants, and it was finally held that the will was void and that Mrs. Barney died intestate. The executors were directed to distribute the assets of the estate, and this was done on Sept. 6.

The Ennis sisters now allege that they were not cited by the administrators as next of kin when the final accounting was made. The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday.

VERDICT FOR DIER TRUSTEE.

Jury Finds Former Cashier Andrews Responsible for $73,975.

A jury before Justice Mitchell, in the Supreme Court, brought in yesterday a verdict for $73,975 against Frederick Andrews, former cashier of E. D. Dier & Co., brokerage firm which failed about two years ago for about $5,000,000, holding that the sum recovered was part of the assets of the brokerage house. The suit was brought by Manfred W. Ehrich, trustee in bankruptcy.

It was charged that Andrews took up a $1,000,000 loan which Dier & Co. had obtained from the Seaboard National Bank shortly before the company failed, and that he disposed of the collateral, and the sum sued for represented the profits from the sale of the collateral. Andrews contended that his personal securities figured in the loan. The jury sustained the trustee's contention.

CHARGES ARMY STAFF NEGLECTS ITS DUTY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—An attack against the General Staff of the Army, charging that other components of the army are being neglected in favor of the National Guard, in defiance of the National Defense act, will be launched in tomorrow's issue of The Army and Navy Journal. The article, signed by E. B. Jones, Washington correspondent of the publication, will assert that while the needs of the National Guard are well taken care of in plans approved by the Secretary of War, nothing is being done to put before Congress the needs of the Regular Army, Organized Reserves, Officers' Reserve Corps and citizens' military training camps.

Reports of the Inspector General of the Army, the article will state, show that thta body is far below the requirements of the National Defense act, and "no officer in the Reserve Corps now knows what will be expected of him next year," or whether he will be given an opportunity to enter a traning camp.

Pointing out that the only component of the army which has a well thought out program for a term of years, and as a result now is at its highest state of efficiency since its creation, the article will say:

"Moreover, the training of the regular army has been sadly neglected thrughout the year. The Inspector General's report will show that the regular army is far below the standard that is required for a professional force. It is not now in a condition to take the field immediately in the event of hostilities, as required by the National Defense act. This specification is one of the most vital features of the National Defense act. No time will be allowed in the event of a declaration of war for the training of regular army units. But it would be needed under the present conditions of the regular army, as would be indicated if the reports now on file in the Inspector General's office were published. * * *

"Of course, if any real progress is to be made the general staff should submit to Congress a well-thought out plan covering a term of years. There should be a new building program for the regular army. The regular army should receive the same treatment that has been accorded the National Guard. Even if the increase in appropriations for the regular establishment are small this year, a program should be laid before Congress that will show the deficiencies in the budget estimates.

"Even more can be said along this line for the third component of the Army of the United States. It will be impossible to maintain the interest of the splendid body of men now in the Reserve Officers' Corps without a definite and well-thought out program.

TELLS OF SCHOOL COACHING

Examiner Admits at Inquiry That It Should Be Stopped.

William A. Hanig was the only witness examined yesterday in the investigation of the Board of Examiners which is being conducted by George J. Ryan, President of the Board of Education. Mr. Hanig, who is a member of the Board of Examiners, was questioned regarding schools for the coaching of applicants for the position of principal. Hanig admitted that the coaching evil should be removed, as it did not allow the best results in the matter of testing the abilities of candidates that come before the Board of Examiners.

Mr. Hanig admited that Max Schonberg, applicant for a principalship, had been a member of the coaching class conducted by Hanig, but said that when Schonberg, after having passed the written examination, came before the Board of Examiners for the oral test he had not voted on the question of issuing a license to him.

Loyalty to Clients

WE have discovered during 33 years that Loyalty to Clients, in the form of hard work, clear thinking, and a jealous regard for the client's welfare, not only wins clients but holds clients—and on a basis of continuously increasing appropriations.

¶ Understanding service of this kind finds reflection in the case of a client who spent $14,000 with us in 1918 and in 1923 will spend over $200,000; of another client of many years' standing who spent $3,000 a few years ago and is on a definite schedule of $150,000 this year; while a well-known national manufacturer, with a steadily progressing local business, has increased his appropriation from $15,000 to $100,000 a year within a comparatively few years.

CHARGE GROSS FRAUD IN BIG LOAN SCHEME

$700,000 DEAL DESCRIBED

ACTION UNDER MARTIN LAW

Charged by the Attorney General's office with fraud and misrepresentation in the sale of stocks and bonds, the American Mortgage and Finance Corporation of 520 Fifth Avenue was restrained by Supreme Court Justice Wagner yesterday from continuing its business and was ordered to show cause in the Supreme Court next Tuesday morning why the injunction should not be made permanent.

Deputy Attorney General Abraham Rosenthal filed with the court a petition disclosing that he had taken testimony from Clinton Pelham Darlington, son of Dr. Thomas Darlington, former Health Commissioner of New York; Timothy C. Crimmins, Vice President and General Manager of the Mortgage Assurance Company, Cleveland, Ohio; James Freehill, proprietor of a hotel at Middletown, N. Y., and Ernest Pfeiffer, a New York City building contractor, from which it appeared that the company was violating the Martin law in offering its own capital stock and bonds of the Freehill Hotel Company for sale to the public.

Crimmins made an affidavit in which he told how the American Mortgage and Finance Corporation almost landed $700,000 worth of business through representations he found to be false. He said that he came to New York last June to get construction loan issues on properties in Cleveland and submitted them first to G. L. Miller & Co. of 30 East Forty-second Street, "a house of national reputation." Miller & Co. refused to make loans in Cleveland, but Frederick L. Hendrickson, superintendent of construction for Miller & Co., told Crimmins that the American Mortgage and Finance Corporation had asked him to forward out-of-town applications for loans to him.

Said Capital Was $2,500,000.

In company with Hendrickson, Crimmins said, he went to 505 Fifth Avenue, where the office of the mortgage and finance corporation was then located, and met D. E. Jacobson, the manager. According to Crimmins, Jacobson told him that the American Mortgage and Finance Corporation was capitalized at $2,500,000, fully paid in; that Dr. Darlington was President and managing director, and that George C. Van Tuyl, former State Superintendent of Banks, was a director.

At another conference in New York, Crimmins said, Jacobson told him that other directors in the corporation were Scott Perry of the Prudential Life Insurance Company; Charles Gwynne, President of the New York Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Penny of the National Bank of Commerce, and Charles Pausner of Livingston, Vanderpoel & Pausner, 47 Beaver Street; that Eugene Eckard, resident Vice President of the Maryland Casualty Company, was a Vice President.

At another conference in Crimmins's office in Cleveland, in the presence of many witnesses, the affidavit continued, Jacobson said that the President of the corporation was C. Pelham Darlington, who was merely a representative of his father, Dr. Darlington, that the corporation was not selling any stock, that it had a surplus of $400,000, that it had just declared a dividend of 19 per cent. of the common stock, and that it had accounts with the Harriman National Bank, United National Bank, Terminal Exchange National Bank, and Terminal Trust Company.

"Based solely upon the representations made by Jacobson as to the financial strength and directorate of his corporation," said Crimmins, "arrangements were amde to erect buildings and start construction of about $,00,000 worth of buildings in Cleveland."

Results of Investigation.

Crimmins then told of his investigation of Jacobson's statements. He said that Mr. Hord of the Maryland Casualty Company wrote that he had no connection whatever with the corporation, that he learned that the Harriman National Bank had never carried any account for the corporation, and that the United National Bank carried a small checking account.

C. Pelham Darlington, an insurance broker, made an affidavit that he had agreed to become a director of the American Mortgage & Finance Corporation, subject to a bank report investigation of Jacobson, but that he had declined Jacobson's offer to appoint him President. He received 2,500 shares of stock, but returned it a month later, he said. Darlington said he was never notified that he had been elected a director, and was never notified of stockholders' or directors' meetings. He added that neither his father, Pausner, Gwynne nor Hord were ever connected with the corporation.

Freehill in his affidavit said that he was the owner of the Holding House, valued at $100,000, in Middletown, N. Y., when Charles Bariban and David Tiecher, representing the American Mortgage & Finance Corporation, called on him last July and said their corporation could finance him in any amount for the new hotel he planned, providing he first subscribed to $15,000 worth of stock in the corporation.

According to Freehill, the agents told him Dr. Darlington was President of the corporation, and used the names of Van Tuyl, Dread, the "Philadelphia banker," Gwynne and Cowperthwaite.

Freehill said that Jacobson called on him the next day and gave him the same names as officers and directors as Bariban and Tiecher had given. He also said that Jacobson told him $275,000 was needed for the building he wanted.

According to Freehill, Jacobson told him that in order to get a loan he must be able to show that he had been a subscribing member to the corporation before the date of the loan, and persuaded him to sign a subscription agreement for $10,000 worth of stock, antedated by several weeks.

Freehill said that he gave Jacobson a check for $2,500 drawn to the order of the American Mortgage and Finance Corporation and six notes for $1,250 each, the first two of which have been paid, so that he has given the corporation $5,000 in cash. According to Freehill, he has never received any certificates of stock in the corporation, or any dividends.

According to Freehill, Jacobson after getting the $2,500 cash and notes organized the Freehill Hotel Corporation and persuaded Freehill and his wife to execute a deed of trust conveying his property to the Freehill Hotel Corporation. An agreement was also made whereby the Freehill Hotel Corporation was to deliver a first bond and mortgage to the National Guarantee Trust as trustee as security for the issuance of $275,000 bonds of the hotel corporation to be sold by the American Mortgage and Finance Corporation, the proceeds of the sale to be deposited with the National Guarantee Trust.

The result of all these arrangements, Freehill went on, was that the property now stands in the name of the Freehill Hotel Corporation, that he had practically demolished his old hotel "and that I have been deprived by reason of the recorded mortgage and deed of trust of the legal title to this property and am unable to obtain at the present time any money wherewith to proceed with the erection of the proposed hotel."

Her 60 Dogs Barked at Night, So Woman Is Sent to Jail

Mrs. Helen Dorf of Englewood, N. J., today begins serving the second of her five days' sentence in the Hackensack County Jail. She refused to pay a fine of $25 for harboring in her Green Barns Kennels on Tenafly Road a pack of 60 pedigreed dogs which residents complained were all super-barkers.

The case was first heard Aug. 3, after the passing of a local ordinance forbidding the keeping of dogs which barked at night to the annoyance of the neighborhood. Decision was reserved by Mayor Clarence D. Kerr. When time did not solve the dispute he imposed the fine. Mrs. Dorf said she could not pay. She said as a "matter of principle" she would not pay. She was brought before Recorder Le Roy Huckins day before yesterday, and when she remained determined she was told Mayor Kerr had changed the punishment from fine to jail, and she was forthwith committed.

SEARCH FOR FATHER ENDS IN AN ILLUSION

Bertha Positive Until Court Attendants Find Lubinsky Has No Appendicitis Scar.

Bertha Lubinsky's eight years' search for her father ended unsuccessfully yesterday when Barnet Lubinsky, a wealthy retired clothing manufacturer, of 1,884 Belmont Avenue, the Bronx, proved in the Bronx Supreme Court that he was the victim of an unusual case of mistaken identity. His story, corroborated by many witnesses, and the fact that he did not have a scar from an operation for appendicitis, offset the identification of the girl who said she was his daughter, and the elderly woman who came from Richmond, Ind., and picked him out from forty men yesterday morning as her long-lost husband.

Barnet Lubinsky was arrested last Monday on a bench warrant issued in Wayne County, Ind., after Bertha had traced him to the Bronx address through a photograph of him clothes which she showed to an office boy at Lubinsky's former business address.

"Does that look like Mr. Lubinsky?" she asked the office boy.

"That's the very man—he lives in the Bronx," was the reply.

She telegraphed to her mother after she went to the Bronx address with Detectives Gilbert and Reilly of the bomb squad and identified Lubinsky. Mrs. Lubinsky was taken to the Bronx County Court yesterday morning, where Judge Louis D. Gibbs was trying a case before forty spectators, and she was asked if her husband was in the room.

Picks Out Lubinsky.

In the silence that followed, the frail, slight woman walked up and down the aisle peering into the faces of the men. When she saw Barnet Lubinsky she stopped, hesitated and then asked that he walk up and down.

"I think that is my husband," she said, "but he looks changed. He is stouter and has less hair, but his actions are just the same." District Attorney Glennon of the Bronx decided when both mother and daughter had identified the same man to argue against the writ of habeas corpus which Lubinsky had brought to prevent his extradition to Indiana.

But in the afternoon, before Justice John M. Tierney, Lubinsky untangled himself. His wife and 7-year-old son were in court with three dozen friends and relatives, wondering why two strangers from the West should say they were wife and daughter of a man who had never been outside of New York and New Jersey since he came to this country.

According to Bertha, her father's name was Samuel, not Barnet, and he often went to New York when the family lived in Richmond, Ind. She was positive that Barnet Lubinsky was her father. Mrs. Lubinsky was not so sure, but insisted that the hands were exactly the same, as were the features and actions.

"Is that the natural color of your hair?" asked Justice Tierney, looking at Bertha's blond hair. She replied that it was, and added that she never used rouge or touched up her eyebrows.

"Let it be noted on the record," said the Court, "that Barnet Lubinsky's hair is very dark and his complexion swarthy, while Mrs. Lubinsky's hair is equally dark."

Samuel's Brother Says "No."

After the testimony of the two women had been heard, David Lubinsky of 979 Hopkinson Street, Brooklyn, a brother of the Samuel Lubinsky who deserted his family, was called to the stand. His hair was auburn and his short cropped mustache almost red. Bertha told of her father taking her to visit Uncle David ten years before. When asked if Barnet Lubinsky, who occupied a chair between the witness stand and Justice Tierney, was his brother, David said, "No, no, that's not my brother."

According to the story of his life as told by Barnet Lubinsky, and the story of Samuel as told by mother and daughter, both men must have left their native Russia at about the same time. Both preceded their families to this country and both went into the clothing business. Assistant District Attorney Cohn in an effort to hasten the proceedings asked that the Mrs. Lubinsky from Indiana be put on the stand before the more than thirty witnesses that Barnet had brought with him were heard.

When asked to swear under oath whether or not Barnet was really Samuel, her husband, she said she wished to ask a few questions, saying that although he looked like the missing man she did not want to make any mistake. She spoke hurriedly in Yiddish, asking where Lubinsky came from and whether he could write Russian. Then she asked if he had a scar on the abdomen as the result of an operation for appendicitis and a mark on his chest. Sheriff Henry E. Long of Wayne County, Ind., and two police officials examined Lubinsky and announced that no such marks were to be found.

Court's Lesson in Psychology.

Mr. Cohn then admitted that it was a case of mistaken identity and asked tained. Before dismissing the case Justice Tierney called Bertha Lubinsky to the witness chair.

"Do you still think this man is your father?"

"I'm positive," she replied.

"If you had studied psychology," the Justice said, "you would know that sometimes the fact that a person wants something to be makes up his mind for him. I want to commend you for your diligent search for a detestable father; but this man is not your father. You have light hair and blue eyes, while he and your mother are both dark complexioned; your uncle has light hair, and both he and your mother say that your father had light hair when he left home. My knowledge of the laws of heredity, the testimony of many witnesses and the lack of certain scars which would identify this man as your father all serve to convince me that Barnet Lubinsky is the victim of mistaken identity. I want you to feel that New York State has made a careful investigation and that you have had exact justice."

Bertha Lubinsky, realizing how her diligent search had led to the arrest of an innocent stranger, began to weep and asked to be pardoned for her mistake. Mr. Lubinsky rose and grasped her hand.

WALLACE DEFENDS MRS. STOKES'S NAME

Corespondent Swears He Did Not See or Write to Her Between 1909 and 1921.

LIGHT FROM PHOTOGRAPHER

Says Pictures Sworn To as Those of Mrs. Stokes in 1914 Were Taken in 1918.

Edgar T. Wallace, whom W. E. D. Stokes named as corespondent in his divorce suit, swore yesterday that all the testimony linking his name with that of Mrs. Stokes was false. He said that he had met Mrs. Stokes but had not seen her since 1909 until she appeared in court at the first divorce trial in 1921.

Samuel Untermyer, representing Mrs. Stokes, interrupted Wallace's examination to question Ira L. Hill, a photographer at 675 Fifth Avenue. Hill testified that portraits of Mrs. Stokes and her children which witnesses for her husband said they saw in Wallace's room at 13 East Thirty-fifth Street, and in Bethel, Conn., between 1914 and 1917, were posed for in the Spring of 1918. Stokes, the photographer declared, ordered a print of one of the pictures last month.

Wallace, who came to New York from his present home in San Francisco to deny the charges upon which Stokes has named him corespondent, said that he was 52 years old, was born in Bunceton, Mo., was engaged in mining and oil enterprises and had married in 1919.

"Mr. Wallace, you are one of the sixteen corespondents in this case, are you not?" was Mr. Untermyer's opening question.

"I object, and ask that it be stricken out," said Max D. Steuer, Stokes's lawyer. Justice Mahoney sustained him.

"Are you one of the corespondents in this case?" he was asked.

Met Helen Elwood in 1906.

Wallace testified that he had first met Mrs. Stokes in 1906, when she was Helen Elwood, at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco. He had seen her there several times thereafter, but always, he said, when she was with some member of her family. Later, he testified, he had been invited by Miss Elwood's mother to visit their home in Denver and had stopped there a few hours between trains.

His next meeting with Mrs. Stokes, he said, was at the Waldorf in 1907 or 1908, when he met her in the lobby with her mother.

"I never did," Wallace said, he met the mother and daughter at the Waldorf again.

"From 1909 until you saw her in the courtroom at the first trial did you ever see the defendant again?"

"Or she to you?"

"No."

"Did you know of her having been married?"

Not With Mrs. Stokes in Bunceton.

Wallace contradicted the statements of Mrs. Alice S. Mills and Miss Katherine Kramer that he had been in Bunceton with Clarence K. McCornick and Mrs. Stokes in 1904. He said that he once had occupied an apartment at 264 Fifth Avenue with Thomas Brander, W. Leon Pepperman and Victor von Schlegel.

"Did you ever see Mrs. Stokes in that apartment, either as Miss Elwood or as Mrs. Stokes?" Mr. Untermyer inquired.

"No," Wallace replied, admitting that other women had visited the apartment.

Although Agatha Byers, a maid in the tea room at 13 East Thirty-fifth Street, testified having served breakfast to Wallace and a woman she said was Mrs. Stokes in that apartment, Wallace denied that he ever had ordered food brought to the apartment and said that Mrs. Stokes never had been in his rooms.

Once, Wallace said, he spent a Sunday at Pepperman's Summer home at Bethel to look at some prize hogs his brothers had sent the Interborough official from Bunceton.

"Did you meet the defendant, Mrs. Stokes, in Bethel?" he was asked.

"No, I did not," he replied.

Joseph Thornton, janitor of the Thirty-fifth Street house, testified that in the Summer of 1914 he saw you and Mrs. Stokes alight from a taxi in front of the door," said Mr. Untermyer. "Is that true?"

"The lady was not Mrs. Stokes," Wallace answered.

At this point Mr. Untermyer put the photographer on the stand. He will continue the questioning of Wallace when the trial resumes Monday morning.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Steuer at the morning session Martha Jones, former cook for Wallace, admitted having seen Tex Rickard, sports promoter, at the Thirty-fifth Street apartment. She could not identify a picture he showed her as Mr. Rickard. Until she was brought into the case as a witness Mrs. Jones said she had never even heard of Mrs. Stokes. The picture on Wallace's dresser, which other negro witnesses testified was that of Mrs. Stokes, "didn't look like her to me," said Mrs. Jones.

FOUR PERSONS DROWN DRIVING TO A DANCE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Four persons were drowned in the Barge Canal last night when a touring car in which they were riding left the East Henriette Road at the north end of the canal bridge and rolled down the steep 75-foot embankment into the canal. As the heavy car sank in thirty feet of water the occupants—three young women and the driver—managed to get out of the car, but were drowned before they could reach the surface.

The Dead.

WILLIAM ARNOLD, 27, Syracuse.
MISS IDA ANDERSON, 25, Antrim, Pa.
MISS PHOEBE REINHARDT, 25, Rochester.
MRS. ANNA T. LADD, 30, Rochester.

Arnold represented Albrecht & Sons, shoe pattern makers of this city. Miss Reinhardt and Miss Anderson were employed at Kodak Park. Arnold had an engagement with Miss Reinhardt to attend a dance at Avon, twenty miles south of the city. Miss Anderson and Mrs. Ladd, who were sisters, were invited to accompany them.

About 9 o'clock two motorists saw the Arnold car approaching the canal bridge at high speed. Suddenly its lights disappeared, and a splash was heard as the machine struck the water. The two motorists hurried to the bridge and saw air bubbles and gasoline arising in the water.

Sheriff Judson and Coroner Killip were notified, but not until daylight was the first body found, though the car was soon located and lifted with a derrick, with its rear light still burning.

The body of Miss Anderson was found floating near the bank at dawn. Later in the day the other three bodies were taken from the bottom of the canal.

The point where the car plunged down the bank is not well protected. It is believed Arnold was blinded by the glare of approaching cars or something went wrong with the mechanism of his own machine.

Carnegie Commission Awards 36 Medals, And Pensions to Survivors of Eight Heroes

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 26.—Thirty-six acts of heroism were recognized by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission at its Fall meeting here late today. Eight of the heroes lost their lives, and to their dependents the commission granted pensions.

In five cases silver medals were awarded, while in thirty-one cases the commission bestowed bronze medals. In one instance, where a hero was injured, he was granted disablement benefits. In eight other cases $12,800 was appropriated for educational purposes and $13,000 for other worthy purposes.

Among the eight heroes who sacrificed their lives in deeds of bravery were:

The widow received a silver medal, and, in addition to workmen's compensation, she was awarded the benefits of $45 a month and $5 additional on account of a daughter.

Two of the heroic deeds were performed by girls. Lillian S. Jarrell, Humboldt, Tenn., saved another girl from drowning at Humboldt July 13, 1921. Iris V. M. Payne, Peterborough, Ontario, Canada, aged 15, saved a boy from drowning at Peterborough Feb. 5, 1921. Both received bronze medals.

Those who received bronze medals included:

Anti-Saloon League Asks if State G. O. P. Will Back Coolidge on Enforcement.

Inquirer Wonders if Negative Answer Wouldn't Alienate State Organization and Party.

Orville S. Poland, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of New York, made public yesterday a letter to United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. asking whether the New York State Republican organization concurred in the program for prohibition enforcement submitted to the Council of Governors by President Coolidge and whether it would favor legislation to enable municipalities to co-operate with State and Federal enforcement agencies. Mr. Poland further asked if a negative answer to these two questions on the part of Senator Wadsworth would not mean a break between the State organization and the national Administration.

"Following the late President Harding's memorable speech at Denver, in which he called upon the nation to uphold the prohibition law, I wrote to George K. Morris, Chairman of the Republican State Committee for New York," Mr. Poland wrote. "I asked Mr. Morris on behalf of a large part of the Republicans of this State to take some unqualified stand in respect to President Harding's pronouncement. For a long time Mr. Morris did not deign to make any reply. When he finally answered, he evaded the issue and actually challenged my right to address any question to him.

"Another Republican President has made a no less unmistakable statement concerning prohibition. I refer to President Coolidge's statement and the program suggested by him to the recent conference of the Governors. The leader of the Republican National Administration, the President of the United States, sets on as the first item of his program to secure the enforcement of prohibition co-ordination of all Federal, State, county and municipal forces. I, therefore, on behalf of a large number of Republicans of the State of New York, who are also party, propound to you, as one of the influence in the Republican party in this State and who is accepted by some as the leader of that party, the following questions:

"1. Does the Republican organization in the State of New York concur in the program for prohibition enforcement submitted by President Coolidge to the conference of Governors and adopted by them?

"2. Having in mind the fact that for the most part, municipal units in the State of New York have no basis upon which to co-ordinate with Federal, State and county forces, does the Republican organization favor legislation which will enable municipalities to so co-ordinate by enacting ordinances in aid of the enforcement of existing law?

"A well-known Republican, William Allen White, advises President Coolidge that where the Republican organization of a State was wet he had better join the organization or break with it, else the West would be lost to the Republican Party.

"3. If you answer the above two questions in the negative, should not such answer, in view of your own recent, open wet stand, be construed as a definite break between the Republican organization of New York and the national Administration?

"4. If the first two questions are answered in the negative and your present refusal to stand with the Administration constitutes a break with the Administration, is it because the wet leadership of the Republican Party in the State of New York has so completed its coalition with Tammany that it feels it will need no national support in order to secure its predetermined share of elective offices and the usual division of spoils?"

HORAN DENOUNCES MURPHY AS DESPOT

ASKS WOMEN TO FIGHT HIM

Millard, Spiegelberg and Elsberg Call for the Smashing of "Boss Rule."

The assertion that the coming election will determine whether the leader of Tammany Hall can bring about the election of his favorites to the bench was made last night by Michael J. Horan, candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court on the Republican and independent ticket, in a speech at the Women's Republican Club of the Eighteenth Assembly District.

"Tammany Hall is not merely a meeting place of a political organization," Mr. Horan said. "It is a mart of humanity. It is an institution for the purchase and sale and mortgaging of men. In the battle for an impartial and unbossed judiciary, we must rely upon the women more than upon the men.

"Do you wonder at the power of a political boss when he can name the amount of what he calls a subscription for nomination to a judicial office and when he can make that price run up to six figures? And having such a source of easy revenue, do you marvel that he can bludgeon subordinate leaders into doing his will?

"There are no admirable intellectual qualities in him. Yet I do not hesitate to say that this man exercises more power today within this State and city than any monarch claims within his realm. The condition is un-American and full of danger to Republican institutions. At this time we are engaged in the last desperate struggle. We are to see whether this despot can secure control of the very citadel of freedom, the courts of this city, through the nomination and election of his favorites to the dignity of the bench.

An appeal to the women voters was made by William J. Millard, another Republican and independent candidate for Supreme Court Justice, in a speech at 108 Second Avenue. "The women will decide this election, for the issue has reached the home circle and the fireside," he said.

Municipal Court Justice Frederick W. Spiegelberg appealed to the women voters from another angle in advocating the strengthening of the power of Judges to force landlords to render adequate service in tenement and apartment houses by suspending the payment of rent until a normal standard of service was resumed.

The election of the Republican and independent judiciary candidates was urged by speakers at a number of Republican district clubhouse meetings.

"We want Judges whose selection was not made in the whispered conferences of the boss's private sanctum," said ex-Senator Nathaniel A. Elsberg at the Tenth Assembly District clubhouse, Eight West Twenty-eighth Street.

"How can we expect the ordinary man to be law-abiding unless he has confidence in the Judges who administer the law and how can he have confidence in Judges who are the personal selection of Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall?" asked William M. Chadbourne at the Eighth Assembly District Republican Club.

SAYS COTILLO HID FACTS.

Tompkins Declares Bench Candidate Was Censured by Court.

The charge that State Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo, Democratic candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, suppressed essential facts in getting permission to appeal a sentence of sixty days imposed on Paul Camiole for violation of the automobile speed ordinance and that he received the censure of the Court of Special Sessions was made yesterday by Leslie J. Tompkins, Chairman of the Non-Partisan Judiciary Committee. The facts which Mr. Tompkins said Senator Cotillo suppressed were that Camiole had been convicted twice before for similar offenses and that he had bribed another man to impersonate him in court.

In a reply to the charge, Senator Cotillo said he had come into the case without pay as the result of an appeal by Camiole's mother, and that the facts as set forth in his affidavit were as represented to him. He added that Justice John J. Freschi, who is one of Senator Cotillo's opponents on the Republican and independent judiciary ticket, had been a member of the Court which gave the opinion, construed by Mr. Tompkins to be one of censure.

Mr. Tompkins quoted the Court as follows:

"Under the circumstances of this case, involving a deliberate attempt on the part of the appellant to escape just punishment as a third offender under the traffic ordinance in this city by the gross fraud of hiring a substitute to take his place in answer to the summons of the Court and on arraignment for sentence, we are unhesitatingly of the opinion that no just complaint can be made that the sentence is excessive.

"It is to be noted that these facts were not contained in the affidavit of counsel for the appellant submitted for allowance of appeal and fixing of bail. We censure this practice as adopted on behalf of the appellant as involving the vice of misleading this Court by failure to state essential facts which should have been brought to its consideration."

Senator Cotillo said last night that when the opinion was in the making he was in Europe convalescing from an operation for appendicitis. He denied also that the opinion reflected on him personally.

PLAN SPEEDY TRIAL FOR ELECTION FRAUD

BANTON CREATES BUREAU

Names Two Assistants to Investigate All Complaints of False Registration.

District Attorney Banton, following complaints of registration frauds from managers of the Democratic Campaign Committee, announced yesterday that he had created a special bureau in his office for the investigation and prosecution of such cases, with Assistant District Attorney James G. Wallace, head of the prosecuting staff, and Assistant District Attorney Michael J. Ford, head of the investigating forces, in charge. He said that a squad of subpoena servers had been assigned to the bureau.

Mr. Banton said that a complaint received the day before from James M. Hoey, Chairman of the Tammany Hall Campaign Committee, that there had been discovered instances of false registration in the Sixth Assembly District on the lower east side was being investigated. The district is predominantly Republican and the Republican leader is Samuel Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee.

"Doubtless witnesses in this investigation will be brought here and questioned," said the prosecutor. "The usual thing is for the police to check up the registrants and where they find anything suspicious they send the facts to me. I'll send all such reports to the temporary bureau I have created for appropriate action.

"Sometimes a thing that looks suspicious on the surface turns to be all right when investigated. For instance, I have before me a complaint that a man has registered from an East Houston Street address, but the police say he doesn't live there and were told that he and his wife live on Cannon Street. Our job is to check up on these statements and learn just what the facts are.

"I am not getting very much excited about the possibility of fraud in this election. If fraud is perpetrated we'll find it out and prosecute those responsible. When interest was at white heat in the election last year we received more than 400 complaints, and the Republican organization lawyers got nervous and wanted Governor Miller to take the investigation and prosecution of those cases out of my hands and turn them over to the Attorney General of the State.

"We investigated the 400 complaints and found that there was only one genuine case of attempted fraud out of the whole lot. This does not mean that we shall relax our vigilance to run down and prosecute such frauds. Anybody who attempts fraud will be prosecuted and it doesn't make the slightest difference who he is."

Special assignments of justices to hear election cases Nov. 6 were made yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. Justices Mullan, Lydon and McGoldrick were assigned to open special terms in the New York County Court House, and Justice McCook in the Bronx County Court House. Justice Wagner was assigned to be available for such cases at 244 East Eighty-sixth Street, Justice O'Malley at 300 West 106th Street and Justice Giegerich at Arlington Avenue and 252d Street, Riverdale, their homes.

WIDOW OF F. A. OLNEY HAD THOUGHT HIM DEAD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 26.—Mrs. Effie Olney, widow of Frederick A. Olney, whose death at Bridgeport, Conn., several days ago revealed that he had dropped the family name twenty years ago and had lived in obscurity, earning his livelihood as a peddler, said at her home here today that she had believed him dead all that time.

From what could be learned here the only relative to attend the funeral of Olney, who called himself "Frederick Arnold" in Bridgeport, was a grandnephew. It was understood that he had been delegated by the Olney family to see to the burial.

The widow and her three grown daughters live in a modest home and they were simply dressed when a reporter called. They all refused to discuss the case, although the widow did rise to the defense of her husband when it was recalled that he had been termed the "black sheep" of the Olney family.

"The way he treated his family has, to be sure, been the subject of comment by certain ones," she admitted, "but as to his reason for going away, well, that simply is not the concern of any one but ourselves."

Richard Olney of Commonwealth Avenue, former Congressman and nephew of Frederick, said he had nothing to add to the statements that have appeared in the press.

TWO FIGHT TO DEATH, ARMS TIED TOGETHER

TEAGUE, Texas, Oct. 26.—In a little room in a barn at Young, in Freestone County, shortly after dusk on Wednesday, two men stood toe to toe, their left hands locked together, and fought the grimmest pistol duel Texas ever saw.

Norwood Huckaby, member of a prominent Freestone County family, and Charles A. Williams, until recently a resident of Navarro County, thus shot each other to death.

Every chamber of two pistols, a .38-calibre and a .32-calibre, found clutched in the men's hands, had been discharged.

Huckaby took his horse into the barn, which was on property occupied by him. A few minutes later Williams, accompanied by a son and another man, drove up and entered the barn.

Residents of a near-by house had their first intimation of trouble when they heard a volley.

Previous trouble between the two men, in which Huckaby received a bullet wound in the leg, was believed to be the motive for the shooting. Huckaby was a widower with four children.

Find Bones of Girls Enticed To Mountain Blue Beard's Hut

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 26.—Neighborhood tales of a mountain Blue Beard, who enticed girls to his hilltop cabin and then turned them out on the mountains to die when he tired of them, were reported to State Police headquarters today by Sergeant W. G. Brown, investigating the finding of human bones near the headwaters of Joe's Creek, Boone County, recently.

The sergeant's report did not give the name of the old man, who was said to have died some time ago, but neighbors declared that he had taken several girls, mostly from Kentucky, to his cabin on a hill between Joe's Creek and Slaughter Creek. It was about a year after they heard quarreling at the cabin which led them to believe he had driven out a young Charleston girl, that the bones of a woman and child were found at the foot of a cliff.

WILL PUNISH GUILTY IN VETERAN FRAUDS

FORBES DENIES CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The Department of Justice is preparing to present to a special Grand Jury evidence of the alleged frauds in the War Veterans' Bureau. This was announced today after Attorney General Daugherty had a conference with President Coolidge.

At the White House the announcement was later made that none of those guilty in the frauds would escape. Criminal as well as civil suits will be started as soon as the Department of Justice has collected sufficient evidence on which to proceed.

"The Department of Justice already has started verification of the bribery charges made before the Senate Investigating Committee," said Attorney General Daugherty, after his conference with the President. "If we can establish these charges in the form of evidence they will be submitted to a special Grand Jury for whatever action such a body may take."

In the face of the serious charges made against his conduct of the Veterans' Bureau by Elias H. Mortimer before the Senate Committee Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the bureau, issued a statement today, denying some of the allegations and asking the public to withhold their judgment until he could testify.

"I do not feel that I ought to make any statement in advance of the full and complete testimony which I shall give under oath on the witness stand," said Colonel Forbes' statement. "However, at the insistent urging of my friends and in response to inquiries from the press I cannot refrain from saying that every charge and every word of testimony, especially that of Elias H. Mortimer, reflecting on my personal and official integrity, are utterly and absolutely false and without the slightest foundation.

"The story of the receipt by me of a $5,000 bribe was not only false, but so absurd as to be ridiculous. The only thing I ask of the public is to withhold judgment until my witnesses and I are heard and full documentary evidence produced. In reply to inquiries as to when I will testify I can only say I do not know as that is entirely within the discretion of the committee."

The Senate Committee is reported to be ready to hear Colonel Forbes next week.

SEATTLE, Oct. 26.—In a statement issued today denying the testimony of E. H. Mortimer regarding the contract for the construction of the Lake Veterans' Hospital near Tacoma, Charles B. Hurley, President of the Hurley-Mason Company, said:

"Any suggestion of Mortimer that either I or the Hurley-Mason Company secured the American Lake Hospital contract through understanding with Colonel Forbes, Mortimer or anybody else, that Forbes or anybody else was to share with us in the profits of the contract, is absolutely false and never had any foundation in fact."

The statement set forth that the assertions of Mr. Mortimer regarding drinking parties which he said Mr. Hurley and Colonel Forbes attended, and that Mr. Hurley and Colonel Forbes had entertained a proposal that the Hurley-Mason Company and the Thompson-Black Company divide the veterans' hospitals contracts, were disproved, so far as the Tacoma building was concerned, by a statement made by Colonel E. S. Walton of the Quartermaster General's Office on March 17, 1923, to a group that included a representative of the Associated Press. The Hurley statement quoted the Walton statement as follows:

"The Quartermaster General's Office not only drew the plans for the buildings but it analyzed the bids and recommended that the contract be awarded to the Hurley-Mason Company, which was the lowest bidder. And, further than that, this division is now superintending the construction. Colonel Forbes had nothing to do with it except to sign the contract we submitted to him, which he was compelled to do under the law."

During a search of court records here last night the discovery was made that Mrs. Kate Forbes received an interlocutory decree of divorce from Colonel Forbes on Oct. 11. The suit was handled here with the utmost secrecy and efforts were made to conceal both the action and the granting of the divorce. No mention of Colonel Forbes's connections was made in the complaint. He was referred to merely as "Charles Forbes."

Deputy Prosecutor Eugene Mecham, who represented the State at the hearing, said:

"As I recall Mrs. Forbes's testimony, she accused Forbes of preferring the company and society of others to that of herself and their 10-year old daughter, Marcia. She stated that he neglected his home to a greater extent than the traveling occasioned by his position necessitated. Her health, she testified, was very poor as the result of her husband's treatment.

Judge Gillam's order directed Forbes to pay $75 a month for the next two years for the support of Mrs. Forbes, and an additional $75 monthly to maintain their daughter, who was placed in her mother's custody until she is 18 years old. All community property was awarded to Mrs. Forbes.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Publication of the Hughes-Curzon correspondence on a new reparations conference, and the later announcement that the Continental Entente powers had assented to the proposal, found response in yesterday's foreign exchange market but not on the Stock Exchange. Sterling and francs advanced; sterling sold at one time 1¼ cents over Thursday's closing, while the franc about ⅛. The movement was not particularly emphatic, however, and it left the exchange rate on both London and Paris still below the rate of a week ago.

The financial view of the new move in the reparations matter evidently is that it opens the way at least for expert determination of what Germany is able to pay; an investigation to which the door was unwisely closed by France when the international bankers' commission, a year and a half ago, conditioned its approval of a loan to Germany on this capacity being determined. The conclusions of the bankers, had they then been submitted, would not have bound the allied Governments, and Secretary Hughes emphasizes the point that the conclusions of the proposed conference will not bind them now. The present agreement, therefore, guarantees only the clearing-up of ideas on the general question. The fact that France and Belgium have now consented to it, and that they probably gave their consent before our State Department answered the British Foreign Office, is recognized as a step toward the breaking of a deadlock; but the foreign exchange market apparently reasoned that it still has no definite assurance of an ultimate agreement.

Whether the stock market adopted the same view, in its failure to give any definite response to the overnight news, need hardly be discussed; the attitude of that market toward European developments, bad or good, has for months been one of entire aloofness. Yesterday the procedure of the market was made up almost wholly of concentrated speculative selling in half a dozen scattered stocks, mostly of minor importance. This professional demonstration was sufficiently well staged to revive the somewhat jaded interest of Wall Street; but in so far as its design was to upset the rest of the market, it met with indifferent success. The day's changes were downward in the market as a whole; the decline, however, being fractional in most cases and with little sign of a general trend to prices.

All that the week-end reports of the mercantile agencies have to tell us is that no change has occurred in the business situation. The fact that volume of trade is well enough maintained to equal that of a year ago this month, "when business was moving forward in about the best volume reached since the Spring of 1920," is interesting and in many respects reassuring. But it tells us nothing of present tendencies. We know now in what direction trade was headed last October and what the subsequent movement was; but neither Wall Street nor the merchants seem clear in mind as to what course is being set today.

The remark in one of these reviews that "the reason for the delay in buying now is largely found in the heavy commitments made last Spring, when many requirements were covered for months ahead," is enlightening as to the cause of the present halt in the movement of expansion. It does not inform us, however, what will occur as these stocks of goods go into final consumption; whether we are drifting into another period of inadequate supplies, with the consequent sudden rush to replenish stocks, or shall merely keep production up to a scale on which the normal requirements of consumers will be met as they arise.

CHILDREN'S SAVINGS GAIN.

The children of 1923 place more faith in the bank thlance than in Santa Claus when it comes to the matter of selecting and obtaining desired Christmas presents, according to Frank A. Gallagher, President of the Cosmopolitan Bank, who has compiled figures of children's savings in Christmas Club branches of savings banks, indicating that $20,000,000 has been laid aside by children throughout the country for Yuletide purposes. Of this total, nearly $2,000,000 is in New York City. The greatest per capita thrift was in the Bronx.

This remarkable increase, Mr. Gallagher said, has established the child depositor as a factor of importance to be considered in the banking business, and in the future more facilities will be extended to encourage child thrift.

Figures compiled by the banker show total Christmas savings in this city, including adults, amounts to $18,000,000. For the nation at large Christmas Club deposits total $200,000,000.

COUNTERFEIT BONDS SOLD.

The United States Secret Service is looking for an Italian who succeeded recently in selling a number of counterfeit Italian bonds to Boston banks and is presumably extending his operations into other fields. Warning against him has been sent to all banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System.

According to details obtained yesterday, the Boston sales revealed thus far included a transaction involving six 10,000 lira Italian bonds sold to one Boston bank, the passing of 10,000 lira notes on other institutions and the sale of 20,000 lira Italian bonds to still other institutions. The counterfeiter gave the names of James Lupi and Joseph Delucca. He is described as from 40 to 45 years old, 5 feet 4 inches in height, weight 145 pounds, dark complexion, small black mustache, good teeth and speaks with a pronounced Italian accent. His attire includes a black derby hat, dark overcoat and a cane.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. yesterday announced the sale of $3,990,000 Missouri Pacific Railroad Company 5½ per cent. equipment trust certificates, maturing from 1924 to 1938, offering of which was made privately yesterday. The certificates are secured by new standard steel equipment, of which 25 per cent. in cash has been paid by the railroad company. The bonds were priced to yield 5.81 per cent.

Quick sale of the $12,500,000 Père Marquette Railway Company's first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, offered publicly yesterday, was announced by J. & W. Seligman & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co. and Hayden, Stone & Co., managers.

Bids from 20 investment banks were received by Marion, Ohio, on an issue of bonds amounting to $140,855, according to the report of J. L. Landis, City Auditor, received in New York yesterday. The issue was awarded to Herrick & Co. of Cleveland, who bid par plus a premium of $1,791.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $73,404,000

Public Utility Group the Largest With an Aggregate of $32,290,000.

INDUSTRIALS $18,250,000

Railroad Issues $12,500,000, With $10,364,000 of State and Municipal Financing.

The total of new bonds issued this week was $73,404,000, comparing with the $99,084,000 total of last week. In addition, there was considerable financing in cities near New York, a portion of which was accomplished in this market.

A fair index of the current week's activity is afforded in a comparison with some of the larger weeks for the last six months. On successive dates the current week's total has been exceeded as follows: $99,084,000 last week; $241,443,000 in the week ended Sept. 14, which included $200,000,000 of short-term Government notes; $79,057,-000 as of Sept. 7; $82,165,000 as of June 29; $194,354,700 as of June 15, and $82,-678,000 as of May 4.

By groups the current week's offerings compared as follows with last week:

	This week.	Last week.
Public Utility	$32,290,000	$11,070,000
Industrial	18,250,000	6,000,000
Railroad	12,500,000
State and Municipal	10,364,000	24,984,000
Farm Loan		47,000,000
Foreign Government		10,000,000
Total	$73,404,000	$99,084,000

The most striking gain was recorded in public utility financing, seven companies, including the Quebec Power Company of Canada, having come into the market. The largest issues were $11,500,000 of Southern California Edison Company 6 per cent. refunding mortgage bonds, and $10,000,000 Philadelphia Electric Company refunding mortgage bonds, also bearing 6 per cent. coupons. The biggest issue for any one group was the offering of $15,000,000 of International Match Corporation 6½ per cent. convertible debentures, and the second largest was the offering yesterday of $12,500,000 of 6 per cent. Pere Marquette Railway Company first mortgage bonds, Series A.

In the open market prices generally sagged by fractions, which, however, seemed to exert little if any influence on the market for new bonds. There were conspicuous strong spots, the most notable being the Liberty and other Government bonds. The Liberty's were active all week, buying supposedly coming from the Government's sinking fund and the British Government. Gilt-edged bonds came into good demand toward the close of the week, and while pressure of a semi-speculative nature was exerted on St. Paul and Missouri Pacific issues in the railroad group there was a substantial improvement in the demand for the lower interest bearing railroad bonds.

Foreign bonds were weak, the developments in Europe having brought the possibility of a break-up of Germany to the forefront. French, Belgian and British bonds, and even the securities of the so-called neutral countries, were affected.

Contracts for 48 Locomotives.

The American Locomotive Company recently has closed contracts calling for the delivery of forty-eight locomotives, it was reported yesterday. Of these eighteen are for the Southern Pacific, and the others for the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.

LIMITS BRANCH BANK TO ROUTINE DUTIES

BARS DISCRETIONARY WORK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Regulations under which national banks may establish additional offices and comply with the terms of the opinion rendered on Oct. 3 by Attorney General Daugherty were made public today by Controller of the Currency Dawes.

In a letter to the national banking institutions, Mr. Dawes cites the opinion by Mr. Daugherty as confirmation of an earlier opinion by former Attorney General Wickersham on May 11, 1911, that a national bank is not authorized to establish a branch bank to engage in a general banking business. Mr. Daugherty, however, made a distinction between the corporate powers of a bank as exercised by its board of directors and the purely routine or administrative functions which may be performed by bank employes.

"Upon this theory," Controller Dawes said, "while denying to a national bank the power to maintain a branch bank in which the discretionary authority of the board of directors could be exercised, he held that a national bank might establish an office or offices within the city or town in which the bank is located, at a distance from its banking house, and at or through such office or offices the bank might perform routine or administrative functions, leaving the discretionary authority of the bank to be exercised solely at the banking house.

"The right or power to establish such additional offices in the city or town in which the bank is located, not being expressly authorized by statute, but being an implied incidental power, and the functions to be performed through such offices, in the opinion of the Attorney General, being limited to routine or administrative functions, it is necessary for the Controller of the Currency, in the exercise of his general supervisory powers, to prescribe regulations in which are set forth the conditions under which offices may be established and operated.

Limits Extension of Branches.

"While the opinion of the Attorney General permits the Controller of the Currency to afford a measure of relief to national banks in certain cities where local banking practices have put the national banks to a disadvantage, he could not properly permit such national banks to establish additional offices without restriction. In localities where the other banks are prohibited from enjoying similar privileges. The establishment of such offices, being as an exercise of an implied power, must be exercised only where an actual necessity exists in each instance, and only after approval by the Controller of the Currency.

"Where a bank desires through such offices to exercise particular administrative functions not dealt with in existing regulations, an application should be made to the Controller of the Currency for a special ruling.

"With reference to applications to the Controller by national banks for permission to establish such an office or offices, the Controller will not take into consideration as a reason for his approval the fact that a bank has, prior to making such application, invested funds in property for the purpose of securing a site or office therefor.

"The above mentioned opinion of the Attorney General and the regulations of the Controller of the Currency, to which reference is herein made, have no applications to branches of national banks acquired under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1865, by virtue of which a State bank having branches may convert into a national bank and elect to retain its branches; nor to branches of national banks acquired as a result of the consolidation of national banks under the provisions of the act of Nov. 7, 1918, under which the branches of one or more of such consolidating banks, having been acquired under the act of 1865 above referred to, may be retained by the national bank resulting from such consolidation."

Confined to Certain Cities.

"A national bank will be permitted to establish such an office only in a city in which other banks are engaged in and, under existing law or regulation, are permitted to engage in de nova in banking practices which make it necessary for the national bank in question to operate such an office in order effectively to conduct its banking business.

"National banks will be permitted to establish such offices only within the limits of the city, town or village named in its organization certificate or the place where its operations of discount and deposit are to be carried on.

"Operation of additional offices of national banks established under these regulations shall be confined to the receipt of deposits and the payment of checks and other such routine or administrative functions.

"No investment in bonds or other securities for the account of the bank shall be made at any such additional office.

"No loan or discount shall be made to any customer of the bank through any such additional office that has not been authorized at the banking house by a resolution of the Board of Directors, or by an appropriate committee of such board, or by an officer or officers acting under authority from such board and no general authority issued by the Board of Directors shall vest in any officer or employe at such additional office any discretionary authority with reference to making such loans or discounts."

PREDICT BIG SUGAR CROP.

Statisticians Believe Next Year's Supply Will Break Record.

Statistics collected by Willett & Gray of 82 Wall Street, statisticians to the sugar trade, indicate the largest world production of raw sugar next season in the history of the industry. The forecast issued yesterday is for 19,145,500 tons, compared with 18,483,432 tons in 1914-15, the previous high record, and 17,947,528 tons in the present year's crop.

Since the 1914-15 production, says The Weekly Statistical Sugar Trade Journal issued by the company, the consumption of world sugar has increased "so what might ordinarily be considered an excess production, when the consumption is taken into effect, only amounts to about a normal supply of sugar to cover the world's wants."

The Cuban crop for 1923-24 is estimated at 4,700,000 tons, as compared with the last crop of 3,602,910 tons, and 3,996,387 in 1921-22.

Pure Oil Declares Regular Dividend.

Directors of the Pure Oil Company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share on the common stock payable Dec. 1 to stockholders of record Nov. 15.

LIVERPOOL BUYERS FORCE COTTON UP

Under the lead of Liverpool, cotton advanced to new high levels of the year before the market ran into increased selling pressure. A larger quantity of contracts was taken from the New York Exchange on foreign straddle operations than at any time in several years, but after this buying ceased considerable irregularity developed. Nervousness over next week's special report from Washington has stimulated activity, particularly in speculative quarters, and produced an unusually large business. After a 40-point rise that carried December over 31 cents, weight of cotton caused a loss of nearly all the advance, with May and July selling lower than the previous close in final trading. Prices showed a gain of 9 to a loss of 10 points.

With what has become almost a daily occurrence, Liverpool rose violently into new high ground for the year yesterday. Trading is still going on in the October position there, though that month expired here on Thursday. October contracts abroad advanced 47 English points, or more than three-quarters of a cent, while January rose to 17.42d and closed at the top. This widened differences between the two markets until the spread reached 450 points and resulted in the heaviest arbitrage business of the season. It was estimated that fully 50,000 bales were taken from the local ring by houses with foreign connections. This buying seemed to be centred mainly in January and March, order after order being executed the first hour against sales in Liverpool. But apparently the demand on the other side remained unsatisfied, for final prices for all months were at the extreme high figures of the session despite that the tens of thousands of bales thrown onto the Liverpool Exchange against purchases made in New York. Added to the foreign buying was an active demand from commission house and local interests, which furnished a ready market for all cotton offered at advanced prices. All three distant months rose above 30.40, a gain of $2 a bale over night, while December went through the 30-cent level during the morning.

The sharp advance attracted an increased supply of contracts so that fully 100,000 bales of cotton appeared for sale in the market within a range of 20 points. After foreign buying orders ceased with the closing of the Exchange abroad, contracts continued to appear. There was not the aggressive demand from domestic sources to absorb these offerings and later in the day a setback of over 30 points occurred. A private estimate of a yield of 10,300,000 bales with bad weather in the West belt where picking is still in progress kept the tone nervous. Spinners takings of 30,000 bales in excess of the corresponding week last year made the most favorable comparison of the season.

The strength of prices since Washington announced a supplementary report has caused heavier price fixing by domestic mills as well as stimulating speculative activity and diminishing selling pressure. Apprehension over the possibility of a sharp reduction in official figures on the outturn of the Southern cotton crop this year remains the dominant factor in the situation. Weakness in the stock market tended to increase realizing in the early hours and at one time virtually all early advance had been wiped out. The tone became nervous in final trading, with both May and July changing hands below closing quotations of Friday.

Week-end figures showed spinner takings of 355,000, against 325,000 last year, making 5,414,000 for the season, against 3,088,000 last year. The amount in sight aggregated 567,000 bales, against 325,000 last year, bringing the total so far this season to 4,148,000, against 4,554,000 in sight a year ago. There was an increase in the visible supply of 211,000, against 299,000 last year, bringing the world's supply of American cotton to 2,604,000, compared with 3,424,000 last year.

CANADIAN WHEAT FOR MILLS HERE

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Highest prices in wheat were made early and the lowest toward the close, the finish being on a rally due to a local professional reinstating a line sold out early, with net losses of ¼@⅝ cent. Winnipeg showed more strength than Chicago, gaining ⅛@¼ cent with a fair business under way in selling here and buying in Winnipeg to close an old spread. American mills are showing much more interest in Canadian wheat and it is estimated that probably 1,000,000 bushels in the way of cash and futures have been bought in the last few days.

Minneapolis mills took around 100,000 bushels yesterday at equal to 12 cents over Minneapolis December, while the Pennsylvania mills which bought recently are said to have secured Canadian equal to Kansas City hard Winter at 23-24 cents per bushed under what the latter could be bought. There seems to be no way of keeping the Canadian out regardless of the 30-cent per bushel duty, and the tariff could not be increased by the President except on 30 days' notice, which would be ample time to buy millions of bushels.

Export business was fair, estimated at 750,000 bushels, including two cargoes sold from Vancouver yesterday.

Wet weather over part of the corn belt, with prospects for fairly general rains, which may delay the conditioning of the new crop and also check the movement, was largely responsible for a fair run of commission house buying orders, and the market showed a firmer undertone with the close at gains of ⅝ cent.

Present price for December does not permit paying as high as 60 cents for No. 2 mixed in parts of the West and, with sample grade selling at 78@82½ cents, there is less disposition to sell the future until the outlook indicates much more liberal receipts. About fifty-three cars of new grain were in today, including a car of new No. 2 mixed from South Dakota.

The latter State is said to have 25 per cent. of its husking finished, and an early movement is anticipated, especially if present prices hold for a week or so longer.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,186,000 bushels; week ago, 1,211,000; last year, 1,474,000. Shipments were 649,000 bushels; week ago, 513,000; last year, 732,000.

Corn receipts were 592,000 bushels; week ago, 522,000; last year, 1,013,000. Shipments, 807,000 bushels; week ago, 337,000; last year, 863,000.

OPEN NATIONAL WAR ON BOLL WEEVIL

WILL BE CLEARING HOUSE

Campaign Will Be Opened Next Month, When Executive Committee Completes Its Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—A permanent organization to be known as the National Bollweevil Control Association was created today, marking the end of the bollweevil menace conference.

The association will be perfected by an executive committee of twenty-two members, representing ten varied interests of the cotton industry. Claude G. Rives Jr. of New Orleans, President of the Louisiana Bankers' Association, Chairman of the conference, named part of this committee, which will meet on Nov. 17 in New Orleans, when the full personnel will have been named.

The executive committee, whose headquarters will be in New Orleans, is to be composed of two members each from the United States Department of Agriculture, the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers, and railroads, banks, cotton manufacturers, cottonseed crushers, fertilizer manufacturers and newspapers, and four members who are cotton growers.

Those already named on the committee include:

Bankers—Dr. W. D. Haas of Alexandria, La.

Press—The President of the Southern Publishers' Association to represent the daily newspapers and Dr. Tate Butler of Memphis, Tenn., representing farm journals.

The resolution under which the organization was authorized read in part:

"The objects and purposes of the National Boll Weevil Control Association are to concentrate the thought and effort of the American people on boll weevil control and to obtain the assistance toward that end of all producers, manufacturers and consumers of cotton."

The Executive Committee is expected to serve as a clearing house for everything relating to the cotton boll weevil and has authority to do whatever in its judgment will assist in solving the boll weevil problem. The conference called on all phases of industry to give their whole-hearted support to the movement, declaring the problem to be a national one.

Government experts announced that every machine, instrument, scheme or formula which had been sent to the Tallulah Station by inventors had received a thorough test. They added that a large amount of junk had been assembled as a result of these experiments.

A resolution was adopted memorializing the Tarriff Committee of Congress not to take any action on reducing the tariff on vegetable oils coming into competition with cottonseed and peanut oils, until after a thorough investigation.

SAYS MEXICO WILL PAY ON LAMONT AGREEMENT

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 26.—The Huerta-Lamont agreement for funding the Mexican foreign debt will be fully carried out, the Chamber of Deputies was assured by Secretary of Finance Pani yesterday during his appearance before the House for interpellation regarding the financial condition of the republic and his recent charges of financial mismanagement against Señor de la Huerta, former Financial Secretary.

Señor Pani assured the Chamber that the foreign bankers' committee would receive the scheduled 30,000,000 pesos. Replying to a query from Deputy Prieto Laurens, he denied that he ever said that the Government was bankrupt. Instead, his assertion was that it was "marching straight to disaster."

CLOAK AND SUIT SALES GAIN

National Company Expects 1923 to Be Its Best Year.

Sales of the National Cloak and Suit Company for October are expected to establish the highest monthly record in the history of the company, according to a statement issued yesterday. Net sales for the three months ended Sept. 30 showed an increase of 21 per cent. compared with the same period last year and a gain of more than 50 per cent. when compared with 1921.

Net sales for the full year 1923, according to the company's estimate, are expected to approximate $52,000,000, compared with $45,357,586 in 1922 and $47,704,428 in 1920, which was the high record previous to this year.

Receiver Asked for Refining Co.

Application has been made in the Federal Court in Oklahoma for the appointment of a receiver for the Supulpa Refining Company, according to advices received by bankers here yesterday. The action, according to the bankers, was taken for the purpose of conserving the assets of the company. F. H. Wickett, President of the Supulpa company, is also President of the Dixie Oil Company, subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Replogle Steel Earnings.

The Replogle Steel Company for the quarter ended Sept. 30, last, reports a net profit from operations of $11,303, comparing with $66,456 in the June quarter. After provision for maintenance and depreciation, there was a loss of $79,789 against $18,741 in the previous quarter.

Gasoline Drops 2 Cents at Buffalo.

A reduction of 2 cents a gallon in the retail price of gasoline at Buffalo was put into effect yesterday, the independents following quickly the lead of the Standard Oil Company of New York which lowered the price to 16 cents. One independent company sets the price at 15 cents.

Postum Cereal Profits.

Net profits of $2,439,332 were reported yesterday by the Postum Cereal Company, Inc., and subsidiaries for the nine months ended Sept. 30, last. Sales were $17,447,835, expenses less other income $14,654,919 and Federal taxes $353,584.

$3,115,000 in British Gold Arrives.

Eighty-nine boxes of gold, valued at $3,115,000, arrived here yesterday from London in consignments to New York bankers. Thirty-eight boxes went to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

BOND SWINDLERS ACTIVE.

Swindlers are again trying to persuade stockholders to give up good securities for the worthless certificates of the old Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, which is no longer in existence.

"Hannibel, Long & Co." purporting to be legitimate brokers, giving as their address 15 or 50 Broad Street, according to the Better Business Bureau, has been soliciting stockholders of a number of companies by telephone. Investigation on the part of the bureau revealed that the firm is unknown at the Broad Street addresses, and it is assumed that the telephoning is being done from a public booth.

In one instance "Hannibel, Long & Co." offered to deliver to an owner as collateral for his good securities the 4 per cent. bonds of the Rock Island. These bonds are not the financial paper or the issue of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company but are defaulted bonds of a company which was sold under foreclosure of the United States District Court in 1916 and are worthless. There has been considerable fraudulent use of them on the part of unscrupulous operators, due to the fact that the public confuses them with the issues of the actively operating company of a similar name.

EXTRA DIVIDEND DECLARED.

Sterling Products, Inc., Has Paid $5.75 on Capital Stock This Year.

Directors of the Sterling Products, Inc., yesterday declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock, payable Dec. 10 to stockholders of record Nov. 20, according to reports in the financial district. The company previously this year had paid $4.75 a share on the stock.

Directors of Household Products, Inc., yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Dec. 1 to stockholders of record Nov. 15.

Dividend payments were resumed on the preferred stock of the National Fireproofing Company when directors declared three dividends of 1½ per cent. each on the senior issue, payable Nov. 15 to stock of record Nov. 1, 1923, Feb. 15 to stock of record Feb. 1, 1924, and May 15 to stock of record May 1, 1924.

Directors of the Pacific Lighting Company increased the quarterly dividend payment on the common stock to $4 a share, placing the stock on a $16 annual dividend basis. The dividend declared yesterday is payable Nov. 15 to stockholders of record Oct. 30. The company had been paying dividends at the rate of $14 a share annually.

Reports at present that the Congoleum Company, after distribution of a 300 per cent. stock dividend, subject to the approval of the stockholders, will pay dividends at the rate of $3 a share annually on the increased capital. On this basis stockholders will receive $12 annually, against $8 a share heretofore.

WOOL MARKET STEADY.

Market for Finished Goods Is Still Uncertain.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The demand for wool has continued of fair proportions during the past week and sufficient headway has been gained to keep the market steady at last quotations. The goods market is still moving along in a somewhat uncertain manner, but recently a few fair-sized sales of worsted yarns are reported. Little new is reported from the West.

"London opened rather stronger than expected and has maintained its opening pace. The sales in the primary markets indicate no easing in values. England is strong for crossbred offerings and the Continent keen for merinos. Exports have been fairly heavy this week."

DRY GOODS SALES LOWER.

Current Trade Road Orders Fall Below Last Year's Week.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was not equal to the volume of a week ago and was somewhat less than that of last year for the corresponding week.

"There were more customers in market than in 1922 for the corresponding period.

British Steel Shares Advance.

British Steel shares on the London Stock Exchange advanced yesterday on reports that a large American rail order had been placed with English mills. Inquiry at The Iron Age in New York indicated that the order probably was for 100,000 tons for Argentina. Steel rails in London are priced at $36 to $40 a ton against $43 in the American market.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Report.

Cut Down Park & Tilford Debts.

Debts of the Park & Tilford stores, taken over by the Schulte interests on Aug. 1, have been reduced from $1,500,-000 to $200,000, according to a statement of David A. Schulte, who said yesterday that "the frozen assets have been practically liquidated and the overhead decreased $27,000 per month."

BANKERS DISCUSS A LOAN TO GERMANY

CONVENTION AT CAPITAL

Many New York investment bankers departed for Washington yesterday to attend the annual convention of the Investment Bankers' Association. New developments in the international political situation gave rise to reports yesterday that the bankers who underwrite much of the nation's business would discuss a German loan and consider plans for its flotation when the time became ripe. Such consideration is not formally on the association's calendar, but Wall Street reports indicate its possibility, growing out of the completion yesterday of plans for an international economic conference.

The investment bankers will meet from Monday to Wednesday, inclusive, and the gathering will be larger than any other ever held, according to John Speed Elliott of W. A. Harriman & Co., who, with J. W. Prentiss of Hornblower & Weeks, slated for next year's Presidency, has been active in preparations for the convention.

One reason for the interest is the anti-bucketshop campaign conducted by the organization. Two commissions appointed by the association will report their findings on the most effective legislation to combat stock swindles, and it is understood that legislation under which New York State proceeded against bucketshops will be recommended to other States.

"The work done in New York City has been excellent," according to Mr. Elliott, who said officials and bankers worked hand in hand. "Two important methods are employed in this campaign. One is by means of the blue sky laws, while the other, which has proved so effective here, consists of scrutinizing the activities of doubtful security sellers and of arresting men guilty of fraud. The latter method, in my opinion and in the opinion of many men of the association, is the most effective yet devised."

BUSINESS MARKS TIME.

Increased Demand, However, Is Noted in Many Trade Lines.

Signs of increased demand have appeared in many lines of industry during the past week, but no general gain is reported in the nation's business as a whole, according to the weekly trade reviews. "A conservative feeling is reflected in the buying for immediate or nearby needs of clothing and some lines, as in pig iron, textiles and leather, the volume is not large enough to maintain production," according to Dun's Review.

"There is still a high rate of manufacture in some industries," says the paper, "notably in the steel and automobile branches. There is a disposition in most trades to liquidate stocks in hand before taking on fresh supplies. The slowing down process which comes after an unusual expansion is present in various quarters, yet back of the existing doubts and hesitation is the fact that the aggregate of business is large."

Bradstreet's says:

"Despite irregularities due to weather conditions or the urge of conservatism, the latter bred largely by price uncertainty, the general volume of trade and the pace of industry are fairly well maintained and apparently about equal to this time a year ago, when business was moving forward in about the best volume reached since the Spring of 1920. Warm weather early in the week, with heavy rains in wide areas midway of that period, and cool bracing atmospheres later on, have tended to lend an irregular appearance to retail trade, which needs steady, cool weather for its best expression."

STARTS LACE COST INQUIRY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The Tarriff Commission announced today the starting of an investigation of the differences in costs of production of articles of lace covered in Paragraphs 920 and 1,430 of the Tariff act of 1922.

This investigation will include specifically articles produced in whole or in part on the Nottingham lace curtain machine, or on the Levers or go-through lace machine, or the bobbinet machine, or on the lace-braiding machine, being wholly or in part the growth or product of the United States and of and with respect to like or similar articles wholly or in part the growth or product of competing foreign countries.

The inquiry resulted from applications filed by Emden & Wormster, 43-45 East Nineteenth Street, New York City, and Eugene Ellis Company, Inc., 217 Chartress Street, New Orleans. It is expected that the field work in this investigation will be conducted both in the United States and in competing foreign countries. A public hearing will be held by the commission at its offices in Washington, Monday, Dec. 10, 1923.

Price of Lead Reduced.

The American Smelting and Refining Company yesterday put into effect a new price of 6.65 cents a pound for lead. The former price was 6.75 cents.

HOPE TO RIPEN GRAIN BY ELECTRIC LIGHT

FINAL SUCCESS PREDICTED

But It May Be Years Before the Experiments Bring Forth Practical Results.

A vision of the day when vast areas of soil will bring forth in record time record crops of wheat and other cereals by being "sprayed" night and day with powerful streams of electricity was pictured yesterday by horticulturists and electrical experts. They had assembled at the Peter Henderson experimental horticultural gardens, Seaman Avenue, Baldwin, L. I., to witness the results of experiments in forcing the development of flowers and vegetable plants by means of powerful rays from electric lamps.

In the six weeks' test completed yesterday by the Westinghouse Lamp Company in co-operation with the Henderson seed company the value of electric light for accelerating the growth of a variety of plants was demonstrated conclusively, the experts present said.

It was admitted that the tests made at Baldwin did not necessarily mean that an electrical millennium for wheat growers was yet at hand. It may be years before electrically grown cereals will be on the breakfast table a few weeks after the seeds have been sown, but it was emphasized that the experiments showed that commercially and technically speaking such a possibility existed.

Dr. A. B. Stout, Director of the York Botanical Gardens, said that as far as market gardeners and growers of hothouse delicacies were concerned the tests demonstrated that there was a great commercial opportunity to be seized by this method of forced production.

"We have already got the hens to work overtime by means of artificial light, and now flowers, plants and vegetables will have to give up union hours," he added.

Many of the specimens subjected to electric light grew during the test upward of twice the size of similar plants receiving daylight only, and were considered by experts to be from fourteen to twenty-seven days in advance of normal growth. Of the plants selected for testing, flowers and vegetables having large leaf surfaces, such as lettuce and endive, responded most readily to the stimulating effect of the light.

On Sept. 1 twelve varieties of vegetables and twelve of flowers were sown in three-inch boxes, or flats, as gardeners term them. The soil used was an ordinary light sandy soil such as is generally used for starting seedlings. Two sets of flats were sown, one set for growing under the electric light and one for growing without artificial light.

Both tests were grown under identical conditions of heat and moisture on opposite benches, with the exception that one group received the additional benefit of the electric light, while the other received no light other than that provided by nature. When the electric light was turned on an oilcloth curtain divided the one group from the other. The light was switched on every night at 8 o'clock and automatically shout off at 1 A. M.

Almost from the outset, according to J. A. Fiesler of the Henderson company, there was a marked difference noted in the germination of the seedlings under the electric light. That there is certain analogy between the radiant energy of sunlight and that of an incandescent electric light was definitely established, he added.

Preliminary tests on the forcing of plants by the use of artificial light were conducted by the Westinghouse Lamp Company at Columbia University under the auspices of Professor Hugh Findlay of the Department of Agriculture of the university. The results on such plants as Boston fern, calla lillies, rose geraniums and others which are much in demand by florists were extremely favorable. In almost every case the plants grew taller, continued in bloom longer and were sturdier than those that did not receive the benefit of the artificial light.

To Tell How Wall Street Works.

"Dangerous Delusions" will be the subject of a series of speeches to be made by Jason Rogers Westerfield, Director of Publicity of the New York Stock Exchange, who left New York yesterday to speak in Binghamton, Pittsburgh, Camden, Medina, N. Y., Syracuse, Oswego, Utica, Pottsdam, Hudson, N. Y., Lawrence, Mass., and Newton, N. J. His aim is to show that the New York financial district is an essential cog in the country's business machinery.

Otis Steel Profits $2,271,660.

The Otis Steel Company reports manufacturing profits of $2,271,660 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1923, against $541,577 in the same period last year. After all charges and other deductions, there was reported net income of $1,156,-458, which was equal to $13.09 a share on the preferred stock upon which accumulated dividends equal to 14 per cent. are outstanding. Gray Goods Trading Continues.

The further rise in cotton yesterday resulted in continued active trading in the local gray goods market, in which printcloths shared to a considerable extent. The feature of the day's business in them was the selling of 38½-inch 64-60s at 10¼ cents for delivery through the first quarter of 1924. There were unconfirmed rumors that similar sales had been made at 10¾ cents. Before noon, spot and near-by lots of this construction sold at 10 cents, but the asking price at the close was 10¼ cents. November-December deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 11¾ cents, and November business in 39-inch 72-76s was done at 12 cents. Spot 38½-inch 60-48s brought 8¾ cents, with 8¾ cents asked at the close. Sheetings sales for the day included November lots of 36-inch 5.50s and 6.15s at 8⅞ and 8 cents, respectively, with 12 cents asked for 37-inch 48-squares, four-yard goods. In the sateens, November delivery business was done in 37½-inch 4.37-yard goods at 15¾ cents.

Weather Stiffens Coal Prices.

Just as the price of independent anthracite was beginning to waver, Saward's Journal will say today, a drop in temperature early this week served to steady the market and bring in a new lot of orders for domestic sizes to the smaller producers. They now have enough business in hand, so that buyers looking for tonnage at a concession are not receiving much encouragement for the time being. Another factor in the intention of the independents to get good prices for prepared coal is the slump that has taken place in No. 1 buckwheat. Conditions in the bituminous trade can be set down as pretty bad, but there have been times, even in the past two or three years, when much less soft coal was being mined and used.

Short Coat for Spring Suits.

The outstanding favor accorded the jacquette type of garment during the present Fall and earlier in the year is having its effect on the type of coat being designed for the Spring suits. Designers have watched this trend very carefully, and in a number of leading lines the suit with a smart hip length coat will be featured in the belief that it will score a popular success. The skirt to go with this short coat, it is said, will be the wrap-around kind in most instances. It will have a length of about eight inches from the ground. The contour of the silhouette, which will again be of the straight-line variety, will be softened and more youthful.

Many Letters Are Needed.

The tendency on the part of charge customers of certain retail establishments to let their payments for purchased merchandise lag has become so marked that one of the local stores is now sending out collection letters at the rate of 60,000 a business year. On a 300-business-day basis this means that an average of 200 of these letters are sent out daily, or about 5,000 a month. This does not mean that the store has 5,000 chronically delinquent accounts, as it very often happens that a single delinquent will get several letters monthly until the bill is paid or the account closed. The credit man for the store in question is at a loss to account for the slowness of payments. He realizes, he says, that living costs continue high, but contends that they are not enough higher than last year to account for the condition complained of.

Investigate Department Stores.

C. Vigneras and G. Marindaz, directors, and M. Michant, construction engineer, of Au Printemps, Paris, are now in this country studying American department store methods and construction. The directors are making a special study of finance and distribution, as well as educational work, training and other important matters. Special attention is being given to distribution, because of the problems peculiar to French department stores. Owing to the scarcity of these establishments in France, the big stores of Paris must cover practically the entire country. M. Michant is interested in construction methods, fire prevention, mechanical equipment and general store layout, as Au Printemps was burned down some time ago and is now being rebuilt. The itinerary of the visitors includes Detroit, Dayton and Chicago. They were recently entertained at an informal luncheon at the University Club here by Samuel W. Reyburn, President of Lord & Taylor, and other executives of the organization.

Not Too Many Coats.

In discussing the demand for dressy coats several manufacturers here yesterday predicted that, when the retailers come later in the season for women's coats they will find the market rather bare. The moving of stocks by manufacturers at low prices as early in the season as this, coupled with the fact that the cutting-up will be very limited, makes it a probability, they said, that the retailers will not be able to cover their later demands, say for January and February, with anywhere near the ease that they expect. Current stocks are being moved at the closest possible price by manufacturers, in some cases at a loss, and that this will continue is said to be out of the question.

Ribbon Demand Is Quiet.

The situation in the ribbon trade parallels that which prevails in broad silks. The demand is of a quiet nature, with nothing really standing out as a feature. Prices are about 10 per cent. higher than they were before the Japanese earthquake. Retailers have bought somewhat of the novelty merchandise for the holiday trade, and something approaching a spurt is looked for shortly as the period for covering these requirements draws to an end. The cutting-up trade has bought some goods for Spring use, but the amount thus far has been small. Ribbon jobbers are buying sparingly, covering only as their stocks move.

Sees Higher Silk Goods Prices.

Higher prices for silk goods are coming, in the opinion of James A. Goldsmith, President of the Silk Association of America. "Curtailment in production is growing greater every day, and, when the demand comes, there will be real scarcity," he said yesterday. "Prices of raw silk today are 10 per cent. above the levels on the day of the earthquake. The average increase in the price of manufactured goods has probably not exceeded 7½ per cent. Quantities of goods, moreover, have been sold at prices no higher than those that prevailed before Sept. 1. Altogether, every effort has been made to safeguard the interests of the ultimate consumer. No one has been more anxious than the manufacturer to avoid a runaway market because no one knows the penalty better than we. We paid for the experience several years ago. It is to our interest to maintain a moderate manufactured goods basis and a steady flow of business. In spite of this, however, somewhere, somehow, the impression has been created that an attempt has been made to take advantage of the unusual situation. As a consequence, buyers are reluctant to place business.

Piece Goods Sales Hold Up.

Over-the-counter turnover of piece goods continues to be of a very satisfactory nature. This demand from the stores has helped materially in absorbing stocks in a quiet dress goods market, a feature of the retail business being done in the silk and velvet accounts on novelty weaves. To some extent this trend has made the question of price a secondary one. Consumer knowledge of the various types of fabrics, their names, textures and colorings is reported as greatly increased. The buyer of a large local store in commenting on this yesterday, said that almost invariably the dress goods customer correctly names the fabric and accurately describes the color that is wanted. This state of affairs was unknown not so long ago, she said.

Silk Hosiery Outlook Good.

Despite the fact that leading lines of the better grades of silk hosiery have been open for Spring only a short time, the business that has been turned in to date presages an excellent season. As is usual with the opening of a new season, most of the orders received so far have been turned in by men on the road. Buyers nearer this market will operate more extensively later on. While there has not yet been time for the color trend of the new season to become definite, the indications are that most of the shades which have done well this Fall will carry over. As usual, however, a number of special hues are expected to crop up as the season advances.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Last week there were 82 revisions and 37 declines. Changes in the foodstuffs were about equally divided up and down.

WOMEN'S CLUBS CONVENE.

The New York City Federation of Women's Clubs held its sixty-second convention yesterday at the Hotel Astor. Fifteen hundred delegates and other representatives of women's clubs of Greater New York attended. The morning session was devoted to the reading of reports by the Chairmen of various committees and to the voting on the fourteen resolutions presented by the different departments of the federation.

Mrs. Eleanor B. Glogau, Chairman of the City Federation Hotel Drive, announced that a site for an eight-story hotel for working women had been purchased at 428-430 West Twenty-seventh Street at a cost of $40,000, and that the construction of the building would be begun in the near future. The hotel, she said, would be completed by the Fall of 1924 and will provide for its guests, besides a large number of single bedrooms, an auditorium for lectures, concerts and amateur plays, a dining room accommodating 200 persons, a roof garden and a fully equipped laundry where guests can do their own work at a nominal fee.

Among the resolutions passed were: That the federation go on record as being opposed to the Third Amendment relating to utilization of State forests for water power; the establishment of the post of dean in all high schools for girls in Greater New York; the granting to teachers in the public schools of a sabbatical year for travel and study, the salary of a substitute to be paid by the teacher; the adjustment of teachers' pensions to be based on their salary for the past five years instead of the past ten years; an increase in the pay of first grade firemen and patrolmen to $2,500 a year; prohibition of the sale of coal of an inferior quality; right of jury trial to those accused of unbalanced mentality; increase in the pay of field nurses in the Health Department of the City of New York; condemnation of the repeal in New York State of the Prohibition Enforcement law.

At the afternoon session an American flag was presented to the federation. Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard and the Right Rev. Bishop Herbert L. Shipman participated.

A medal of honor was presented to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt. In her speech of acceptance she declared that this generation would see the enfranchisement of women throughout the world.

NEW TUNNEL BROADSIDE.

John F. Boyle Again Accuses Jersey Commission of Waste.

John F. Boyle of the New Jersey Vehicular Tunnel Commission, replied yesterday to the statement of Theodore Boettger, the commission's Chairman, who charged that certain persons were attempting to create false impressions concerning an alleged intention to compel New Jersey to pay the entire cost of the plazas in Jersey City, instead of having New York pay half of it.

Mr. Boettger's statement was made at the close of the first meeting in Trenton, N. J., on Monday last of an inquiry ordered by Governor Silzer to the end that detailed information might be obtained in relation to the progress of the tunnel work and reasons for the increase in costs over the original estimate.

Mr. Boyle referred to the statement of Mr. Boettger as containing "glittering generalities which unfortunately are not true." He referred to a paragraph in the minutes of the commission on Sept. 11 last, which stated that under the present law the State Highway Commission of New Jersey was responsible for providing approaches to the tunnel, and said that this refuted the assertion of Mr. Boettger that no member of the commission has ever considered any plan for relieving New York of half of the cost of the approaches. Then Mr. Boyle asked Mr. Boettger these questions:

"Isn't it a fact that you cannot proceed with the plazas in New Jersey because nearly all of the tunnel moneys have been expended? Isn't it a fact that the Tunnel Commission is proceeding in its attempt to force the vacation of Eleventh Street in Jersey City, and at the same time the City Commission has offered to vacate the street for the benefit of the commission if the latter will covenant to build the plazas in Jersey City as outlined in the committee's report?"

Mr. Boyle reiterated his charges that the commission had spent moneys extravagantly and had created "job after job for favorite sons."

In reference to the statement by Mr. Boettger that the commission intends to furnish a better and bigger tunnel than originally was projected, Mr. Boyle said that the change in the plans provided for a tunnel only six inches greater in diameter than called for originally. In reply to Mr. Boettger's statement that costs were 20 per cent. higher than several years ago, Mr. Boyle, on the authority of a statement in a periodical published by the National Bank of Commerce in this city, said that iron and steel, the chief factors in tunnel construction, were from 20 to 35 per cent. higher in 1919 than they were early in 1922 when the contracts were let.

CRAIN INQUIRY ENDS.

Hearings in the inquiry by Judge Thomas C. T. Crain into libel charges filed by Police Commissioner Enright against Assemblyman Cuvillier and Magistrate Corrigan were brought to a close yesterday with an argument by Martin Conboy, counsel for Assemblyman Cuvillier. Mr. Cuvillier has not offered any defense, but as Mr. Conboy's argument developed he stands on the contention that he was privileged as a member of the Legislature to send the telegram on which the libel charge was based, and that at any rate, the crime, if any was committed, was in Albany County.

Following Mr. Conboy's argument Judge Crain gave counsel until Nov. 5 to submit memoranda. He will announce his decision on Nov. 9.

"The defendant Cuvillier," said Mr. Conboy during his argument, "was at the time of writing the telegram in question, one of the members of the State Assembly from the City of New York. With regard to the statements made upon the floor of the Assembly he was, of course, protected from prosecution by express constitutional provision. It must be obvious, however, that the duties of a legislator are not confined to the actual sessions of the Legislature. He must report to his constituents and advise with them.

"By the express provisions of the penal law as well as by the established rules of the law of libel, general communications made pursuant to such duty are presumed not to be malicious."

Assistant District Attorney Pecora spoke in opposition to Mr. Conboy and asked that Assemblyman Cuvillier as well as Magistrate Corrigan be held for the Grand Jury. Judge Crain, during the argument, expressed doubt as to whether Mr. Cuvillier had committed any crime in this county. Mr. Pecora called attention to a ruling made by Judge Crain earlier in the proceedings expressing a different view. Judge Crain said that he preferred that Mr. Pecora argue as if he had not expressed that opinion, adding with a smile: "Judges have been known to reverse themselves."

OPPOSES HAAG PENSION.

Controller Only One of Board Against Application.

A delegation from the Brownsville and East New York sections of Brooklyn appeared before the Board of Estimate yesterday to support the project for a 5-cent bus line in that territory. No one appeared in opposition to the plan, which has been presented several times. The petition, which was sponsored by the Eastern Parkway, Brownsville and East New York Transit Relief Association, was referred to the Committee of the Whole, which meets next Monday.

Opposition to the granting of a pension to Joseph Haag, who has been in the city's service for fifty-three years and who will reach the retirement limit of seventy years on Sunday, was expressed at the meeting by Frank J. Prial, Deputy Controller, appearing for Controller Craig. There was no other opposition to Mr. Haag's application.

Members of the board highly recommended Mr. Haag. His salary as assistant to the Mayor is $9,000, and upon his retirement he will receive $4,183.69 annually. Mr. Prial declared that Mr. Haag had not made any contributions to the pension fund, but it was pointed out that any one who had been in the city's service for thirty-five years when the law was enacted was not obliged to contribute.

"This is a request to pay a pension to a man who has been in the city service for more than fifty-three years," said Borough President Riegelmann of Brooklyn.

"I suppose he started in before any member of this board was born. After fifty-three years of service he is asking, under the law, the privilege given to him by the retirement act. When he completed his fifty years of service his services had been so conspicuous that this Board of Estimate gave him, by the way of a bonus, a trip to California.

"While there may be some inequalities and inaccuracies in the pension system, it seems to me to be unfair to criticise a man who, at the expiration of that period of service, holds the honor, respect and esteem of every man in the City of New York, or every man, except one, who has come in contact with him."

In casting his vote for the pension Acting Mayor Hulbert said:

"I did not expect there would be any opposition to Joe Haag. In view of the remarks of the Deputy Controller, I wish to say that Joe Haag has been an indispensable public servant. Throughout the many vicissitudes of politics he has succeeded one Administration after another."

Mr. Haag's retirement will become effective Nov. 1, but he may be reappointed to his present position.

TAXI DRIVER GETS 6 MONTHS

Sentence for Man Drunk in Cab Is Warning to Others, Says Court.

When a sentence of six months in the workhouse was imposed on Joseph O'Rourke of 152 East 105th Street for driving a taxicab while intoxicated, Justice Herrman, who presided in General sessions yesterday, said:

"We understand that you attended a party just before you were arrested. Men who drive automobiles on the streets of this city should not take part in festivities. Something has to be done to protect pedestrians, and we hope this sentence will make an impression on other automobile drivers who become intoxicated while operating cars."

Ideal City Life

FROM the windows of your garden apartment at Jackson Heights you have a never-tiring vista and the restfulness of a landscaped garden and wide parked street.

The architects who planned these garden apartment homes worked with a free hand. Their sole responsibility was to create the finest apartments that skill and understanding could suggest.

The artistic practical results of their handiwork are in evidence the minute you step into the inviting foyer and stroll through the spacious living room with its practical wood-burning fireplace; to the comfortable bed chambers and the artistic sun parlor with its great windows; and the model kitchens and the sanitary bathrooms.

IRELAND'S FUTURE

Shaw Desmond, Irish publicist, knows Ireland. In his article in November Current History Magazine he writes about his country as one can only when he knows its people intimately, their passions, their prejudices and their predilections. He visions England finally conceding to Ireland all the rights of her other dominions, including that of secession.

AUTO CRASH SHOCK FATAL TO WOMAN

FOUR OTHER DEATHS IN DAY

Priest Who Sees Man Run Down in Lexington Avenue Administers Last Rites.

A slight collision between an automobile and a motor truck yesterday on the Jericho Turnpike, near Jericho, L. I., resulted six hours later in the death of Mrs. Belle Williamson, 60 years old, in the Nassau Hospital, from a cerebral hemorrhage. Mrs. Williamson, with her husband, Horace, publisher of the Riverhead (L. I.) News, and Mrs. Ambrose Corwin of 305 Park Place, Brooklyn, were on their way to meet Mr. Corwin in Brooklyn and motor to Silver Bay, Lake George, N. Y., when the motor truck, operated by George Valentine of Mineola, drove into their car from the Roslyn Road. The impact did slight damage to Mr. Williamson's car.

Charles Hawkins, 46 years old, a schoolteacher of Ronkonkoma, L. I., received a fracture of the skull and internal injuries when he drove his car across the tracks of the Long Island Railroad at Holbrook, L. I., in the belief that the train due to leave the Holbrook station at the time was late. The train was on time, however, and struck his car and threw it against a telegraph pole.

Arthur Permuy, 35 years old, a buyer for several Cuban dry goods firms and who lived at 445 Lexington Avenue, was fatally injured last night at Lexington Avenue and Thirty-third Street when knocked down by a motor truck while on his way to his home from his office at 122 Fifth Avenue.

Father Courtney, of St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church, in East Twenty-eighth Street, near Lexington Avenue, who witnessed the accident, administered the last rites of the church to the man before he died.

Henry Kohlkoff, 60 years old, a driver, of 344 Webster Avenue, Jersey City, was killed last night when an automobile operated by a boy struck another truck and crushed him between the radiator of his vehicle and a motor truck of the American Express Company, which Kohlkoff was unloading at 134 West Twenty-ninth Street. Armine Devito, 14 years old, of 203 Jackson Street, Brooklyn, seated on one truck, attempted to back it against the curb to make room for the second truck. He stepped on the gas, however, and sent the vehicle ahead. He was held on a charge of juvenile delinquency.

In other auto accidents of the day an unidentified man was killed by a truck at Jerome and Bainbridge Avenues, the Bronx, and Joseph Kurtz of Perth Amboy was crushed to death as he tried to board a moving truck.

FREE STATE WINS ELECTION.

Attorney General Is Elected in Dublin by Plurality of 12,000.

DUBLIN, Oct. 26.—Attorney General Hugh Kennedy won by a plurality of more than 12,000 the by-election to the Dail Eireann to fill the vacancy in the South Dublin district, the result of which was announced today. Attorney General Kennedy received 23,676 votes and Mr. O'Mullins, the Republican candidate, 11,502.

This constituency covers the whole of Dublin City south of the Liffey and includes the most fashionable quarters as well as the worst slums. The figures show no important change of opinion, but indicate a slight Republican improvement attributed to intensive organization and the influence of the hunger strike among the political prisoners.

The Free State Government announces that no prisoners have been released in consequence of a hunger strike and that none will be, although freedom might be granted on other grounds.

At a meeting in O'Connell Street last evening republican speakers said that 10,000 persons were now undergoing a voluntary fast and would face death rather than endure prison. Replying to a Ministerial statement that the prisoners were being detained because if released they would get arms from hidden caches, Michael Comyn asserted that Irish republican soldiers would never give up their guns, but would keep them as heirlooms of liberty.

ENDS SONORA RECEIVERSHIP

Controversy Settled and Federal Judge Rescinds Order.

By consent of both parties to the controversy over the management of the Sonora Phonograph Company, Inc., of Oyster Bay, L. I., Judge Edwin L. Garvin, in the United States District Court in Brooklyn, yesterday rescinded his order of Oct. 20 appointing ex-Congressman John B. Johnston receiver in equity for the company. The Chairman of the Executive Committee and the President of the Sonora Company said yesterday in a statement:

"It is gratifying that Judge Garvin acted so promptly in vacating this receivership. The prosperity of the company was never questioned even by the applicants, who applied to the Court without any notice to the company or to any of its creditors. In fact, the company is now experiencing the greatest prosperity in its history. Unfilled orders are over twice what they were a year ago, notwithstanding increased production, and the net profit has never run so large.

"It is also gratifying that the plaintiffs who obtained the receivership realized so promptly that their action was creating a false impression, not only about the standing of the Sonora Phonograph Company, but about the phonograph industry in general."

SEES PEACE IN UNION.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—If the English-speaking peoples "stand together, march together and, if necessary, fight together, peace is secure and civilization cannot fail," said Justice William Renwick Riddell of the Supreme Court of Ontario in an address tonight at the fiftieth anniversary of Boston University.

"Where nations agree to look upon that which is right as right and to follow right there are no difficulties," said Justice Riddell. "If there is dispute it can be determined by principles of right and wrong. Simple plain justice and simple plain honesty are sufficient to reconcile all the disputes in this world if men and women and nations are content to allow them to be so composed. * * *

"Not the fiat of the British Empire, but the fiat of the English-speaking peoples is decisive. Once let these peoples say 'there shall be no more war' and it is known that they mean it, there will be no more war. The peace of the world, the future of civilization depends on them. If they stand together, march together and, if necessary, fight together, peace is secure and civilization cannot fail. If they part, woe unutterable."

Alexander Wolf Resigns.

Alexander Wolf resigned yesterday as an Assistant United States District Attorney. He has served the Government in prosecuting a number of important bankruptcy fraud cases. Mr. Wolf will resume private practice.

FIND RUINS OF A CITY FAR OLDER THAN ROME

FERRARA, Italy, Oct. 26 (Associated Press).—Ruins of an entire ancient city, believed to antedate the Romans by perhaps a thousand years, have been discovered near Ferrara. More than a hundred tombs have been uncovered, together with the bones of a number of persons buried in them.

There are traces also of an immense temple, fragments of which are being placed together in an effort to decipher the markings and learn the origin of the city. Wearing apparel and numerous jewels and vases, with elaborate artistic designs resembling Greek forms, were found in the tombs.

Some experts say that it may have been an Etruscan city, the language of which is still unknown, as no traces are left to form sufficient material as a basis for translation, while others believe it to have been the ancient town of Spina.

Resentment against the speech of Israel Zangwill on Oct. 14 before the American Jewish Congress has impelled Samuel Untermyer, President of the Palestine Foundation Fund, to make known his desire to resign as Vice President, Director and member of the congress.

Mr. Untermyer was so strongly aroused by the speech, which has drawn the fire of other Jewish leaders, that he sent a letter yesterday to Nathan Straus, Honorary President, making known his exceptions to the speech. Though it was learned yesterday that such a letter had been sent, Mr. Untermyer refused to discuss it, saying he preferred that no reference be made to it at the present. Mr. Straus likewise was silent on the subject.

Eighty per cent of the deaths in this country from such diseases could be postponed from a few to many years if individuals would make some slight effort to protect themselves.

KNOWING what I do about the manufacture of cigars and cigar quality, it amazes me to see a man who will argue for fifteen minutes over a salad dressing, or who will hold a spirited debate over the freshness of an egg, walk into a cigar store and in the most off-hand manner say, "Give me a good fifteen-cent cigar."

There is just as much pleasure, just as much satisfaction, just as much profit to be derived from the careful selection of cigars as from the careful selection of food. It is just as easy to acquire a taste for good cigars as it is to be satisfied with whatever the man behind the counter offers you. And it is entirely unnecessary to pay a price you cannot afford in order to enjoy the finest tobacco that can be put into a cigar.

The proof of the pudding is in the eating. Next time you buy a cigar ask for La Palina. At whatever price you are accustomed to pay—from 10c to 3 for 50c, I am certain you will find it the most satisfying, the most delightful mild cigar you ever smoked.
